NEW FRENCH DRIVE SMASHES THE LAST OF SOMME LINES

CLOSING IN ON COMBLES

French Troops Capture a Strongly Fortified Position Southeast of the City.

PRISONERS TOTAL 2,300

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—By yesterday's and today's victories the French offensive has achieved what the Germans asserted was impossible. It has driven a wedge right through the original German front, has definitely "broken the line" of boasted impregnable fortifications stretching across France from beyond the Northwestern frontier to the limits of Switzerland.

The village of Bouchavesnes and l'Abbe Wood farm beyond it were clearly behind the rows of trenches which aerial observation showed to be barring the French advance when the Somme offensive began. That under the menace of the onrushing French tide the Germans have hastily constructed other lines still further in the rear of the lost positions does not detract from the moral value of the achievement that filled the battleweary troops with enthusiasm, unknown say the latest dispatches, since the Battle of the Marne.

Tremendous as is the moral value of the latest success, its strategic effects are even more important still. Highroad No. 37 of the great arteries feeding the German front has been cut between Bapaume and Péronne, and by their advance beyond Hill 76 the French now menace directly and already sweep with their artillery the main road from Paris to Lille via Cambrai, the loss of which is expected to force the German high command to consider seriously the necessity of a withdrawal to the main line, Douai, Cambrai, [illegible] that famous "shortening of the front" that is expected here to mark the beginning of the end.

Of more immediate value is that Péronne is now under French fire from the north, west, and south, which cuts it from all communications except along communication trenches or by dangerous night transport.

On the extreme left of the French advance, northeast of Combles, [illegible] French gunners shown [illegible] action was in two parts. At 12:30 o'clock yesterday the troops charged [illegible]

[illegible] through which no human force may pass alive. [illegible] the troops advanced again. [illegible]

[illegible] it seemed as though the German morale must be seriously affected. So marked was the change that the French commander, instead of pausing for a breathing space usual after a successful bound, decided to push the shaken Germans to the utmost. Throughout the night the artillery hammered at the further German positions, and when it grew light the Frenchmen, forgetting their fatigue in victory, charged forward anew and drove the wedge still deeper into this vital point of the German line. Now instead of being "before Péronne," they are at its very gates.

ASKS DEMITRACOPULOS TO BE GREEK PREMIER

LONDON, Sept. 13.—King Constantine has asked M. Demitracopulos, former Minister of Justice, to form a new Cabinet.

Special dispatches from Athens say that M. Demitracopulos, after reaching an understanding with the King, will expound his views to the Entente Ministers and decide, according to their attitude, whether to accept the Premiership. He is understood to be of the opinion that departure from neutrality on the part of Greece is the only remedy for the present international situation, and refers to the Greco-Turkish war of 1897, when Premier Delyannis incurred all risks in order to re-establish unity in the nation, which was then divided as now.

It is reported that M. Dragoumis, the former Minister at Petrograd, will be Foreign Minister in the Demitracopulos Cabinet.

M. Demitracopulos is one of the best known lawyers of Athens. He was at one time Minister of Justice under Venizelos, but he left the latter in order to organize a weak progressive party, which he leads today. He studied in Germany and is an admirer of German methods, but he has always maintained that Greek interests lie on the side of the Entente.

ALL ALLIES AWARD HONORS TO VERDUN

PARIS, Sept. 13.—President Poincaré has decorated the City of Verdun with the Russian St. George's Cross, the British Military Cross, the Italian and Serbian gold medals for valor, the Belgian Cross of Leopold, the Montenegrin gold medal, and the French Legion of Honor and War Cross, which are awarded by the allied sovereigns in recognition of Verdun's heroic defense. The President further announced that the Emperor of Japan has decided to give the city an award of honor.

The ceremony took place in the presence of Generals Joffre, Pétain, Nivelle, and Dubois and the local authorities, the decorations being handed to the Mayor, who pinned them to a velvet cushion.

President Poincaré, in making the presentation, recalled the allied council of war in December, 1915, which drew up the plan for the offensive on all fronts, but said that Germany took the initiative before the allied preparations could be completed. The resistance had been admirable and the troops at Verdun had foiled the enemy's schemes and made possible the successful Russian, Italian, and Anglo-French offensives.

"All honor to the soldiers of Verdun," exclaimed the President. "They have sown and watered with their blood the harvest which is springing up today."

REGAINS MENTAL POISE IN EIGHTY-MILE WALK

Dr. Shaw Philosophizes for 24 Hours Between Philadelphia and New York.

Professor Charles Gray Shaw of the Department of Philosophy of New York University telephoned THE TIMES early this morning that he had just completed a journey on foot from the City Hall in Philadelphia to the New York City Hall in less than twenty-four hours. Professor Shaw left Philadelphia on Tuesday at midnight and arrived in City Hall Park here at 11:40 o'clock last night.

"I was considerably wrought up," Professor Shaw told THE TIMES, "over politics, infantile paralysis, the fading away of Matty and other grave subjects and thought the walk might settle me a bit. It did, and I heartily recommend it to any one similarly afflicted. I particularly recommend it to Charles E. Hughes.

"I have done a good deal of walking as an amateur—I walked about 1,500 miles in short jaunts last Summer—and thought if Weston could do the Philadelphia-New York trip in less than twenty-four hours in his old age I could. Weston reached City Hall at 11:35, and he went further up Broadway, I believe. I took the tube in from Exchange Place because I had come down the plank road, which was a hardwood finish.

"I traveled light, carrying only a bottle of water, some sandwiches, and a saving sense of humor. I found the last named particularly efficacious. I made four stops, averaging about fifteen minutes each—in Trenton, New Brunswick, Rahway, and Newark."

Professor Shaw said he was 45 years old, and was really old enough to know better. He thought he did now, he said.

HUGHES, ELATED OVER TOUR, SEES PARTY LANDSLIDE

SURE OF WILSON REVOLT

WON'T CHANGE ARGUMENTS

Charles E. Hughes returned to New York yesterday after his swing around the country which took him to the Pacific Coast, satisfied that he had laid the foundation for a campaign which, by Election Day, would open the eyes of the people to the shortcomings of the Wilson Administration and turn into a landslide the trend toward the Republican party which he believed was evident in practically all of the States which he visited.

It was in that spirit that Mr. Hughes addressed his audience at Plattsburg on Tuesday night and announced in bold words that there would be no change in the manner in which his campaign had been conducted. Defeat in Maine would have been a sorry blow in the face of the criticism of some of the leaders. Victory in Maine, he feels, must force others to the conclusion that his course has been the right course; that the people were in a mood to think deeply about the happenings of the last four years and, after thinking, to turn the Democratic party out of power.

It is in that spirit that Mr. Hughes, after a brief rest at Bridgehampton, L. I., will start out next Monday to continue his fight in the so-called doubtful States in the Middle West.

Mr. Hughes began his trip on Aug. 5 last. He started out declaring himself independent of all boss domination and he ended up that way. In one or two States, such as California, he fell into the hands of certain cliques of leaders, but in his private conversations with them he showed no inclination to be dominated. He steered his own course and paid little attention to advice from either Old Guard or Progressives, if such advice ran counter to what he believed was the right course. At times this attitude made his campaign hard for him, at times it helped him with the people.

His Personality Pleased.

Notwithstanding all the reports which have been heard to the effect that he was cold and austere, the Hughes personality was one of his biggest assets. [illegible]

[illegible] One reason may have been that he clung pretty much to a single line of argument which he felt was building the foundation of his campaign, and which the voters had read in the newspapers before his appearance. Another may have been that certain elements of the voters who are ultra Progressive in some of the Western States, expected a different style of attack—more of the Roosevelt type. The climax to this situation came when Mr. Hughes, after touring California for four days, left without having met Governor Johnson, the Progressive leader, although at one time they were said to have been in the same hotel in Long Beach. One report which came from the management of the tour was to the effect that Mr. Hughes did not know that Johnson was at the hotel; another that he had left just before Johnson arrived.

Failed to Meet Governor Johnson.

However that may be, the meeting between Johnson and Hughes did not take place, partly, it was said, because Johnson felt that Hughes, unwittingly or otherwise, had fallen into the hands of the Old Guard, who were fighting him, and partly because Mr. Hughes refused to come out openly for Johnson, or by his actions appeared to do so, because Johnson was opposing Willis Booth, regular Republican nominee for United States Senator in the Republican primaries.

This had its effect, temporarily at

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—The American Ambassador, James W. Gerard, is again under fire in a section of the German press, this time for a remark attributed to him regarding a speech made recently by Dr. Gustav Stresemann, National Liberal member of the Reichstag, advocating, among other things, a resumption of the submarine warfare.

Ambassador Gerard is quoted as saying that he did not understand how the representatives of districts for which export to America was a vital question could advocate ruthless submarine warfare.

The National Liberal Press Agency, in a communication to the newspapers, takes the Ambassador to task for what is termed "unwarranted intervention in a purely German question," and says that the Ambassador's remark is characterized by "that naïve presumptiousness which believes that the decision, affecting Germany's political future, will be dictated by Germany's American export interests."

The paper asserts that Ambassador Gerard would do better to leave to the responsible German authorities the decision on what use is to be made of the means at their command against England, and adds:

"The art and manner in which Ambassador Gerard (and not for the first time) looks after British interests is extremely characteristic of his general attitude."

The American Ambassador, in reply, says that he never heard of Dr. Stresemann's speech and certainly never made any public utterance of the nature attributed to him. But so far as his attitude on the submarine issue is concerned, he states, it is based on pro-American, not pro-British, motives.

CLEARS UP MYSTERY OF NICHOLS MURDER

TALAS ABSOLVED OF BLAME

Michigan Prisoner, Telling All, Involves Joseph Mulholland, Who Finally Breaks Down.

Joseph Mulholland, long under suspicion by the police of being involved in the murder and robbery of aged Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols on Sept. 8 a year ago, was trapped by a dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday afternoon into a full confession of the crime. His story, obtained with the aid of the dispatch after he had resisted twenty-four hours of previous questioning, conformed in every detail with the confession of one of his two accomplices, Arthur Waltonen, who was arrested at Ironwood, Mich., Tuesday, and who is now on his way here in charge of detectives of the New York Bureau. The story, as does Waltonen's, absolves the second butler of the Nichols mansion at 4 East Seventy-ninth Street, Onni Talas, who is now in Sing Sing serving a life sentence for the crime, from an actual participation in it.

Mulholland, who is 20 years old and who has been working as a strikebreaker, was arrested at his home at 127th Street and Madison Avenue Tuesday and taken to the Third Branch Detective Bureau. The dispatch which brought about his confession gave in detail Waltonen's story to his captors.

Confession Clears Mystery.

Mulholland became [illegible] as he read the dispatch and Acting Detective Captain William A. Jones of the Third Branch had to read part of it to him. Then Mulholland exclaimed:

"I guess you've got me! I'll tell everything I know."

The lengthy confession that Mulholland then made, together with the story of Waltonen's contained in the dispatch, cleared up the mystery of the rich widow's death on which detectives had been working for more than a year.

Mrs. Nichols was strangled or frightened to death, and up to a few days ago the only person on whom detectives had been able to fasten any blame had been Talas, the youth in Sing Sing.

The stories of the two men, just arrested, [illegible] with the final confession made by Talas.

They show that four men were in the plot to murder Mrs. Nichols and rob her house of [illegible] The missing man is known as Edward Lehto.

Tells of Death and Robbery.

"On the night of the murder Arthur and Eddie and I went to the Nichols house and tied up young Talas. Arthur had tried to get young Talas to kill Mrs. Nichols, but Talas was afraid. [illegible] went up to the third floor after Mrs. Nichols.

"I don't know just what happened upstairs, but when they came down they had the jewelry and [illegible]

The jewelry was valued at [illegible] by the [illegible] Waltonen and Lehto got no share of the booty because of the necessity of escaping without delay, nor did Talas, the detectives believe. They are now following clues as to its whereabouts and are desirous of suppressing these details until they recover it.

Has Long Police Record.

Mulholland the detectives described as one of the nerviest young criminals with whom they have ever come in contact. They have found that he already has a lengthy police record, having been convicted once on a charge of robbery, though he was later pardoned, and it is said he has been arrested many times for other offenses.

Mulholland is a slender man, and, though he says his father was Irish and his mother was born in England, has somewhat the appearance of an Italian. To the youthful Finnish servant Talas Mulholland's name was never known. That was what made it difficult for the detectives to connect him with the crime after receiving the description given by Talas of the other man in-

SUES FOR $100,000 FOR FREEING MORSE

BOUQUET HIS ONLY REWARD

Former Banker Freed by Taft Says He Thought Baum Acted from Love of Justice.

Max C. Baum has brought suit against Charles W. Morse, the steamboat man, for $100,000 in payment for his alleged service in persuading President Taft to free Morse from the Federal prison at Atlanta in 1912. The suit, which was filed about six months ago, came to light yesterday through an order signed in the Supreme Court by Justice Guy permitting the filing of papers in the case. Mr. Morse was convicted in 1909 of violating the banking laws.

Baum described himself as a real estate and insurance agent, and was said to have had more or less experience in getting evidence in divorce cases and other litigation.

Morse said last night that he didn't owe Baum any money and didn't intend to pay him any.

"Whatever Baum did for me," said Morse, "he told me he was doing because he wished to see me get justice. I think about all he did was to have some pieces put in the newspapers. I never agreed to pay him any money."

Morse scoffed at the assertion of Baum that it was he who obtained Morse's release by President Taft.

"Baum figures I have some money and he wants some of it. That's all there is to the case," Morse concluded.

Mrs. Clementine Morse is named as a defendant in the suit also because, as Baum alleges, he was retained by her [illegible] released, the latter sent him a bouquet of roses.

RAID NEWMARKET TRACK TO SEIZE SLACKERS

Military Police Stop Turf Crowd Out to See St. Leger, and Demand Certificates.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Military police carried out an extensive raid [illegible] at the Newmarket race course just before the field for the classic St. Leger went to the post. Racing had been in abeyance for over a month and thousands [illegible] attended. Every one apparently of military age, including turf writers, jockeys, bookmakers, [illegible] was compelled to give an account of himself as he entered, and the [illegible] policemen demanded either [illegible] registration cards or, in the absence of them, certificates of exemption. At the principal entrance the first hour's proceedings were almost fruitless, producing only five slackers, who had declared themselves Irishmen and not liable to registration.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Following protests made against the methods adopted by the military and the police in executing raids upon civilians in the hope of apprehending shirkers, the War Office last night issued a statement explaining that the raids were made in order to test the accuracy of many allegations made to the military authorities that large numbers of young men were evading military service. The statement says:

"It has been urged upon the War Office that so long as these young men are permitted, through the laxity of the recruiting department, to remain in civil life, it is grossly unfair to draw on other groups and classes. In order to test the accuracy of these certificates and these allegations, an examination of the certificates of exemption in the possession of men of military age was recently undertaken, and the so-called roundups have been carried out in a number of districts.

"So far the result has been to demonstrate that in those sections of the country which have been tested the allegations are without foundation."

A prominent member of the recruiting staff at the War Office hinted last night that the raids would not continue much longer. He said they had had a considerable moral effect, as many of the men who were trying to evade service had taken fright and given themselves up.

MAYOR FINDS TRANSIT STRIKE DEADLOCK; ROADS DETERMINED NOT TO ARBITRATE; ALL CITY LINES MAKE GAINS IN SERVICE

Reasons Given by Shonts for His Refusal to Arbitrate the Traction Strike Issues

Here are the principal reasons given by President Shonts of the Interborough and New York Railways Companies to the Public Service Commission yesterday for the traction companies' refusal to arbitrate the issues of the strike:

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company respectfully represents to the commission:

(1) It cannot arbitrate its right to enter into agreements with 10,306 of its employes out of a total of 11,800, when the employes who have signed are content with those agreements and are endeavoring to carry them out in good faith.

(2) It cannot arbitrate its own good faith in becoming a party to those agreements, when they are definite as to pay and terms, signed by the employes upon the recommendation of their own duly appointed agents, and today are fully accepted by the great mass of our loyal employes.

The New York Railways Company respectfully represents:

It cannot arbitrate the causeless desertion of its service by its striking employes when their differences with the company were in process of orderly adjustment under the terms of the agreement of Aug. 6, underwritten by the Mayor and the Chairman of this commission.

Strike Leader Fitzgerald's only comment on these reasons last night was:

"When one party to a controversy refuses to let some impartial tribunal decide the controversy on the merits of the case, there is every reason to assume that such a party fears defeat."

WADDELL IS 'CALLED OFF'

Confident that they had available enough men to enable them to carry through a successful siege against the carmen's union, if the strike became a long-drawn-out contest, the New York Railways Company yesterday removed the mercenary lead—the "labor adjusters," "detective agencies," and employment bureaus who furnish strikebreakers all over the country from their service for the time being.

More than a thousand strikebreakers held in the barns at 216th Street and Van Cortlandt Park and [illegible] Street and Third Avenue, nearly a third of the total number employed by the Interborough and New York Railways, were paid off yesterday, according to Frank Hedley, general manager of the New York Railways and the Interborough. They moved out of the barns where they have been encamped since the strike became imminent early last week.

"I have enough and more than enough men to man the elevated and subway," said Mr. Hedley, "and I have enough for the surface cars at present, and I know where I can get them."

Only Experienced Men Wanted.

The officials insisted that they would be able to make a steady increase in the number of surface cars running, with the service each day a little better than the day before, [illegible] Both President Shonts and Mr. Hedley made it clear that they were not taking on any inexperienced men to drive cars. The men hired at 165 Broadway, it was asserted, were all experienced, that is, they had actually operated cars and had presumably gone through the service schools that the transit lines maintain. These schools give a course lasting thirty days, and to break the strike by new men trained from the beginning would obviously be a long and devious procedure.

But Mr. Shonts and Mr. Hedley say that a few days usually suffices to renew the efficiency of an experienced motorman and bring him back to a satisfactory state of competency. Every man accepted, no matter how much or how recent experience he is known to have had, is put through a course of training and examination and is compelled to have the guarantee of an instructor and an inspector before he will be allowed to take out a car. Some men hired a few days ago at 165 Broadway will take out cars tomorrow; so far the green car service has been maintained entirely by men who did not go out on strike.

Mr. Shonts declared that there were plenty of former motormen about New York who were glad to get back into service. When asked if most of the men who had stepped out of motormen's jobs had been dismissed for some offense or infraction of discipline, he said he didn't think so.

"A good many of them simply got

SUBWAY CARRIES RECORD CROWDS

Transports 400,000 More Persons in 12 Hours Than Ever Before in Normal Times.

RUNS AN EXPRESS A MINUTE

Two-Minute Local Schedule Is Maintained—Strikebreakers Now Garbed in White.

From 7:30 A. M. to 7:30 P. M. yesterday the New York subway system carried nearly 400,000 more persons than it ever transported before under normal conditions in twelve hours. Express trains ran at the rate of one a minute, locals every two minutes. There was some congestion, some confusion, but on the whole the system demonstrated that it is meeting the strike situation with a maximum of efficiency, and that so far as the railway proper is concerned, the loss of employes affiliated with the union is not now affecting operation.

These were the observations of a NEW YORK TIMES reporter, who spent practically the whole day underground yesterday in an endeavor personally to observe how the trains were running in the face of [illegible] the railway service was demoralized by the strike.

In addition to the steady service maintained throughout the day, General Manager Frank Hedley made good his promise [illegible]

Crowds Congest Platforms.

Though the Interborough officials experienced practically no difficulty in operating and keeping a sufficient number of trains on time, the problem of handling the crowds that filled the stations, particularly at Ninety-sixth Street, caused a number of guards to be used as platform policemen.

People fought and pushed to enter the express trains, and last night the jam at the Fourteenth Street station became so great that five extra policemen were detailed to prevent persons from being crowded off the platform to the tracks.

As it was, Mrs. Mary McKettrick of 210 West Fifty-third Street was crowded against the railing and fainted from fright. She was revived and went home.

Early yesterday morning the word was passed to loyal men and strikebreakers that the Interborough wanted them all to co-operate with the company to show that the Amalgamated leaders were not sincere when they said the subway was badly crippled.

Every man was put on his mettle and it was plainly apparent from the way the guards and conductors went about their work that they desired, as one of them said, "to let everybody know that we can do this work just as well and may be better than the fellows who were here before us." As for the motormen, they seemed bent on establishing new speed records from Van Cortlandt Park to Atlantic Avenue and South Ferry.

Last night in the express trains running northward with their freight of home-going workers there were many comments on the service and the general opinion was that since the beginning of the strike the service had been much improved.

BETTER WORK BY NEW MEN

CARMEN'S ARBITRATION PLAN

Fitzgerald Tells Service Board Strikers Must Be Reinstated and Union Recognized.

Coincident with marked improvement in traffic conditions throughout the city, officials of the traction companies whose men are on strike refused yesterday, as it had been indicated they would, the request of Mayor Mitchel and the Public Service Commission that they arbitrate the questions at issue in the strike with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes.

They persisted in this refusal even after the union leaders had offered not only to arbitrate, but to waive objection for the time to the "master and servant" contracts, if they should be modified so as not to hinder the workers from joining a labor union.

The stand of the traction heads destroyed any hope Mayor Mitchel and Chairman Oscar S. Straus may have had of bringing the two parties together immediately and of ending the strike at once. Mayor Mitchel frankly admitted that he was at a loss to know what to do next to relieve the situation, and it was made plain by traction heads that suggestions of either mediation or arbitration would be useless.

Hundreds more strikebreakers were put to work yesterday, and railway managers declared they would not be satisfied until they had completely crushed the power of the union leaders.

Large Increase in Service.

President Shonts of the Interborough said last night that the traffic on the elevated had been normal during the day, and that on the subway about 20 per cent. more than the normal number of trains had been run in the middle of the day. On the New York Railways lines 173 more cars were operated yesterday than the day before. The maximum in operation was 291 at 5 P. M., as against 230 on the previous day. At 6 o'clock the company had 270 cars running, as against 240 on the day before.

The unprecedented service given in the subway and the increasing number of cars on the surface lines yesterday were pointed to as proof that the roads were [illegible] hope will win the public to their side.

"The public already knows who is to blame for the strike [illegible]

Will Not Ask for Legislation.

Mayor Mitchel and Chairman Straus [illegible] The Mayor said he would stand ready to offer his services should either side call on him, but he denied printed reports that he contemplated asking Governor Whitman to call the Legislature to enact a compulsory arbitration law. He also denied that he had considered asking the Board of Estimate to grant a franchise to the New York Motor Bus Company, which has had an application before the board for more than a year.

"I am willing to do what I can," said the Mayor, "but it will only do harm to circulate such stories. I never had either plan in mind, and my only reason for denying the stories is that their acceptance would destroy the little hope I still have of bringing the two sides together."

TRACTION HEADS FIRM.

Reiterate Refusal to Arbitrate at Service Board Hearing.

The refusal of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and of the New York Railways Company to have any further dealings with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes was read to the Public Service Commission yesterday morning by Richard Reid Rogers, general counsel for the companies.

Alfred A. Cook, counsel for the Third Avenue Railway Company, joined in the refusal, although he made no formal statement, and he also requested that the commission conduct a special investigation of the reasons for the leaders of the carmen's union calling out the service employes of that company. This request was granted by Chairman Straus, who said the hearing would commence at the offices of the commission at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

William B. Fitzgerald, general organizer for the carmen's union, who appeared before the commission with several other leaders of the labor organization, read a prepared statement offering to arbitrate.

Mayor Mitchel, who had been sitting with the commission by courtesy during the investigation, was present.

Shonts's Statement Read.

At the request of Julius Henry Cohen, special counsel for the commission, Mr. Rogers read a statement by Theodore P. Shonts, which was as follows:

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company respectfully represents to the commission:

(1) It cannot arbitrate its right to enter into agreements with 10,806 of its employes out of a total of 11,800, when the employes who have signed are content with those agreements and are endeavoring to carry them out in good faith.

(2) It cannot arbitrate its own good faith in becoming a party to those agreements, when they are definite as to pay and terms, signed by the employes upon the recommendation of their own duly appointed agents, and today are fully accepted by the great mass of our loyal employes.

The New York Railways Company respectfully represents:

It cannot arbitrate the causeless desertion of its service by its striking employes when their differences with the company were in process of orderly adjustment under the terms of the agreement of Aug. 6, underwritten by the Mayor and the Chairman of this commission.

The officers, agents, and members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes have constantly made either veiled or open threats of a strike while we were endeavoring by conference to adjust all matters of difference with our employes. When a difference arose about taking back convicted criminals they declined our suggestion of arbitration and passed a strike resolution. We yielded the point to preserve peace. Then while our conferences were proceeding to a harmonious close on the New York Railways matter they called those men out on a sympathetic strike because of a pretended grievance respecting employes of the subway and elevated lines. They insisted, with a threat of strike, that the contracts of employment of the elevated and subway employes should be canceled and when we offered to leave all disputes to the courts of justice they actually called the existing strike. They have broken their agreements with the other railroad companies in this city having absolutely no connection with our affairs and called their employes out on a sympathetic strike.

Any further conferences with such men would get us nowhere, and in the meantime our discipline would be demoralized, to the great injury of the public and ourselves.

Both companies must respectfully decline to hold any further conferences with the officers, agents, or members of this association or of any persons affiliated with them.

It is apparent that they cannot be depended upon to keep their agreements for the peaceable and orderly adjustment of differences.

Both companies respectfully state that they will continue their unabated efforts, against all opposition, to maintain the service which it is their public duty to afford the citizens of this city.

INTERBOROUGH RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY,
NEW YORK RAILWAYS COMPANY.
By THEODORE P. SHONTS, President.

The Union's Statement.

As soon as Mr. Rogers had finished reading, Louis Fridiger, counsel for the street carmen's union, informed the Mayor and the commission that Organizer Fitzgerald also had prepared a statement replying to the request for arbitration made by Mr. Mitchel and the commission.

"Before I make any statement as to our position," said the labor leader, "I want it understood that anything I say here in behalf of our people will be said without any fear of the outcome of this situation. We have not been defeated on the issue that is before the people."

He then read as follows:

While we are concerned mainly with the recommendations made by the Mayor and by this commission, and while I desire to refer to them alone, there is one statement made by the commission in its opinion which we can not permit to pass without comment, and that is the statement contained on Page 5: "This controversy does not involve the issue of trade unionism in this city."

We most decidedly except to this statement and submit that it is unwarranted and unjustified by the evidence. I do not desire to get in discussion or argument with the Mayor or this commission with reference thereto, and will, therefore, only call your attention to the testimony of Mr. Quackenbush, who stated that one of the issues, if not the main issue, of this controversy, was, as Lincoln once said: "This country can not exist half slave and half free," and the roads or lines of his clients could not be operated half union and half non-union, clearly showing that the issue raised by him was distinctly one of unionism.

As to the recommendations made by the Mayor and this commission, it seems hardly necessary, in fact quite useless, for us to state our position with reference to them in view of the positive rejection of them by the companies through their President, Shonts, and Vice President and General Manager, Hedley.

However, if his Honor, the Mayor, and this commission desire me to state what our attitude is, so that the people of the City of New York may know which of the two parties to this controversy, the companies or their employes now on strike, is the more blameworthy for the deplorable conditions made necessary by this strike, I am only too glad to do so.

Condition Precedent to Peace.

First, any position which I might take with reference to these recommendations would be dependent upon the companies agreeing that all employes, including those who have been discharged by the company, be restored to their former positions and ratings without prejudice as of Aug. 29, 1916, and that both the companies and the employes be deemed placed in the position as to all matters as of the 30th day of August, 1916, this to include recognition by the company of their right to organize, their right to meet collectively and in conference with the company, and, third, that the company recognize the right and agree to the policy of arbitration of all matters in dispute which cannot be agreed upon in conference.

As to recommendation No. 1, we will arbitrate the question of the fairness or unfairness of the individual contract of employment, called by the company "working agreement." As to the second recommendation, we will arbitrate the question of the fairness or unfairness of the methods employed by the company in obtaining signatures to them; and, as to the third recommendation, we will be only too pleased to take the suggestion of this commission that the conferences heretofore held between the companies and the committees of the employes and their spokesmen should be continued with an impartial person, who should have no authority to decide, but merely to preserve the parties from misunderstandings and disagreements, and that such conferences in the future may be held in public; and I desire to state that the suggestions in the third recommendation as to an impartial person presiding over the parties mentioned in the recommendation and the public character of the conferences are most excellent ones.

Accepts Compromise Contracts.

It appears that on the 30th of August the officials of the Amalgamated first heard of the distribution of these contracts when the working standards were submitted to them as a basis for discussion. As soon as they had their counsel's opinion of the effect of this agreement upon membership in the union, they suggested that in addition to the four clauses there should be added the following:

Fifth—Nothing in this agreement is to be held to preclude any employe from joining any organization or any union, and will not preclude him from participating in any movement toward the betterment of his working conditions or the increase of his wages, and in the event that he sees fit to join such an organization with such object in mind, it will not be considered a breach of this agreement.

It appears from the minutes of the conference and the direct testimony before us that if such a course had been accepted difficulty might not have arisen at this time.

In view of this finding, of course, we expect that the members of our organization shall, notwithstanding these so-called "working agreements," have the right not only to all the benefits of our organization, but to participate in all of their deliberations in any way they see fit.

I desire that it be well understood that this is not what we want, but what I would be willing to recommend to our men and what I think they would probably accept, in the hope that the present deplorable conditions may be brought to an end and the public be saved from further trouble and inconvenience.

This offer is made with the understanding that it is to include all roads now on strike.

3d Av. Co. Wanted Hearing at Once.

When Organizer Fitzgerald had finished reading his statement Chairman Straus suggested that hearings be started at once on the causes of the strike on the Third Avenue Railroad Company, but this was objected to by the lawyer for the carmen's union. Mr. Straus then asked if it would be agreeable to both sides to start this morning, but this also was objected to by Mr. Fridiger.

"We have arranged for a monster parade tomorrow of all the employes now on strike," said the lawyer. "The parade is of primary importance not only to the men but to this commission and to the public at large, and we respectfully ask that we be relieved of the need of appearing here tomorrow."

This excuse did not satisfy Mr. Cook, the lawyer for the Third Avenue Company, who said he was anxious to have the inquiry start without unnecessary delay.

"I do not think the rights of the public should be dependent on whether a parade is to take place or not," he said. "It ought not to take long to find out whether the company or the men who went on strike were in the wrong."

Mr. Straus finally consented to accede to the wishes of the lawyer for the union, and the hearing was put over until this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

SEES INTERBOROUGH WASTE.

Fitzgerald Says Railway Heads Are Squandering Public's Money.

William B. Fitzgerald, General Organizer of the carmen's union, charged last night in a statement that the Mayor and the Public Service Commission had put the strike blame on President Shonts, General Manager Hedley, and the Directors of the Interborough. He also accused the Interborough of "going buccaneering with its gunmen"; of having flouted the city authorities, and of squandering money in its efforts to beat the strike because, "in the language of the streets, they are sure of theirs first, and the city will always be last."

The statement charges Mr. Shonts with refusing to arbitrate through fear of losing, and asserted that the strikers were ready to accept the arbitration proposal made to both sides. It says in part:

"The Mayor of New York, the Public Service Commission, and the public generally at last know where the blame rests for the traction trouble in this city and are alive to the danger that confronts them. The Mayor and the Public Service Commission, after a four days' hearing, fixed the responsibility for the strike on President Shonts and General Manager Hedley and the Directors of the Interborough Company.

"The Mayor and the Public Service Commission have made recommendations for resumption of the conferences and arbitration of the difficulty in such a manner that even the Aug. 5 agreement has been improved upon. An impartial presiding officer and public conferences will be the surest way to prevent both misunderstanding and public deception.

"President Shonts and General Manager Hedley did not even show the Mayor and the commission the courtesy of waiting for the meeting, which was publicly announced, before issuing a statement. Instead they published in advance of the meeting a bold, defiant statement under the guise of an address to their 'brotherhood employes' in which they practically insulted the Mayor and the commission. If the Interborough is so sure of its men, why does Shonts find it necessary to arrange with one of his own bankers to give his so-called loyal employes $10 each to keep them at work?

"Mr. Shonts is already convicted in the public mind, but I fear the people of this great city do not appreciate the full extent of his lawlessness and that of his associates. They can afford to be insolent and defiant to the Mayor and the Public Service Commission; they can afford to be bold in their methods; they can go buccaneering with their gunmen, and they have the millions to spend to prevent their employes from organizing—so long as the city pays the bills."

Fitzgerald charged also that it was because of "his own opulent salary" that F. W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Street Railway Company, had no sympathy with collective bargaining.

"Whitridge, the autocrat, Whitridge, the bourbon, can well afford to decry union labor," said Fitzgerald. "He does not have to combine with his fellow workers to earn a decent living wage because he is in receipt of a salary of $60,000 a year which, like Hedley, he considers scant. He is President of the Third Avenue Railway Company; yet a year ago he owned but a single share of stock and he has drawn from $50,000 to $60,000 a year out of the company for the last eight years.

"Mr. Whitridge was appointed receiver of the Third Avenue after the failure of the New York City Railways in 1907. All the surface lines of Manhattan and the Bronx were foisted on the Interborough when the traction ring blackjacked its way into the bonanza subway by threatening Belmont with subway competition. The beneficiaries of this transaction were Ryan, Whitney, Berwind, Elkin and Widener.

"The record of the stockholders' meeting shows how popular Mr. Whitridge's salary is with the minority stockholders who demanded that his salary be kept down to $25,000."

SUGGESTS CITY OPERATION.

Leubuscher Says Defeat of Strikers Is Not a Permanent Solution.

Frederick C. Leubuscher, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the League for Municipal Ownership and Operation in New York City, wrote a letter to Chairman Oscar S. Straus of the Public Service Commission yesterday, asserting that the only permanent solution of the transit controversy was for the city to take over the street car companies and operate them.

"The 'breaking' of the street railway strike is no solution of the relation of the transit companies to their employes," wrote Mr. Leubuscher in part. "The strike emphasises the fact that the people of New York have been farmed out to the transit companies and that the city has abdicated its rights. The viciousness of the dual subway contracts is made clear.

"There cannot be any peace in the transit situation while, as at present, the companies can earn large dividends on watered stock, and underpay their employes."

LEAFLETS HINT AT VIOLENCE.

Labor Leaders Repudiate Printed Threat Against Interborough Lines.

A veiled threat of violence in connection with the traction strike was contained in leaflets circulated in this city yesterday. The suggestion was made that it might prove dangerous to ride on the subway and elevated. The leaflets, which were on bright pink paper, read:

WORKERS, LOOK OUT!

You know that the capitalists of the R. R. trust want to crush the workingmen into slavery, helped by the authorities, the police and some traitors of our class.

Well, workers, sisters and brothers, we don't want to harm you, you are our own blood, so take our advice—do not take the "L" or the subway, but if you do, do not blame us. Your brothers,

THE WORKINGMEN POLICE.

restless and inclined to change," he said. "We are not taking on any men with bad records. There are plenty of competent ex-motormen available."

It was admitted, however, that a few new men were being trained—mostly truck drivers, a class of men who, Mr. Shonts said, were already acquainted with a good deal of the technique of working through traffic, and who had been found by experience to learn the work of motormen rapidly. None of these will be allowed to run cars until fully qualified.

Waddell Was "Called Off."

This means, the passing from the strike, for the time at least, of James T. Waddell, known as "the King of the Strikebreakers," who came on from Chicago when the strike started in a special train, whose spectacular progress caused much commotion along the way. His firm, Bergoff Brothers & Waddell, were still advertising for motormen yesterday morning, but to a TIMES reporter Mr. Waddell said: "I've been called off."

"What is the trouble?" asked the reporter.

"I don't know," said Mr. Waddell. "I suppose the Mayor and the Public Service Commission must have put it up to them pretty stiff."

The Mayor and the Public Service Commission, however, denied that they had had anything whatever to do with the strikebreaking situation, or had made any recommendations; and Mr. Hedley explained that it was simply a case of having already on hand more men than were needed.

The word seems to have gone out early Tuesday that there were to be no more men hired. A TIMES reporter who visited the Waddell agency at 493 Seventh Avenue on Tuesday afternoon in the guise of a motorman seeking employment found three men playing cards, who looked him over and told him he might come back next day, but that there was nothing doing at present. No other seekers for employment were on hand.

The reporter then went to 100 West Street, another office of Bergoff Brothers & Waddell, where he was one of two applicants. This office is in the same building as an army recruiting station, but neither seemed to be doing much business just then. Here it was said no more motormen were wanted, but that there was some need of guards. He was told to return the next day, and upon returning yesterday morning was met by Mr. Waddell himself who said, as told above, that he couldn't give any more men work just at present.

Another agency visited was that of James Kelly at 145 West Forty-ninth Street, where only guards for the protection of strikebreaking workingmen were wanted. Here business seemed to be brisker, as ten or eleven determined-looking characters were seated about the office and applicants for employment came and went. This is the firm that furnished "guards" for the piano-makers' strike a few years ago.

The reporter then visited the New York Railways offices at 165 Broadway and found there a crowd of not less than 200 men looking for employment. In the course of the day the total number of applicants here was between 500 and 600, and it was from these that ninety-five motormen were selected. A preliminary inspection of the waiting employment seekers was made by employes of the company, who turned away the less-acceptable looking and gave application blanks to the others. These blanks are large and elaborate affairs, and begin with a warning that statements made and references given are investigated, and that false statements render the applicant liable to fine and imprisonment.

Many Don't Turn in Blanks.

The blanks provide for information about the applicant's life, health, family and dependents; his previous employment by the company, if any, and his reasons for leaving; the names of all persons who have employed him in the last five years, and four character references. One applicant, a negro, who had looked good enough to the scouts to be intrusted with a blank, cast one glance over it, folded it up and remarked, "Good night!"

Others seemed to be daunted by the character references, and a considerable number of those who received the blanks did not turn them in. Those who filed them received information as to the instruction which they were to receive, and the tests which they were to undergo, before being allowed to take cars out of the barns.

CAR OFF TRACK INJURES 3.

Brakes Didn't Work — Carbide Causes Scare—Less Violence.

Three persons were injured yesterday morning in the fourth accident in two days on cars operated by inexperienced strikebreakers. A southbound Broadway car of the Third Avenue line, running without passengers, ran into an open switch at Manhattan Street and jumped the track, striking three pedestrians. Augustus Diner of 505 West 134th Street, the most seriously injured, was bruised about the head and legs. He was taken to the Knickerbocker Hospital. Frank Youngs of 535 West 129th Street and Jerome Feiner of 3,143 Broadway were treated for slight bruises and went home. The motorman who, according to the police, was an inexperienced man, said he had tried to use the airbrake but that the car could not be stopped.

Police and Fire Department officials were excited for a time yesterday by a rumor that a stick of dynamite had been found in the Brooklyn tunnel of the Interborough subway, 1,000 feet from the Borough Hall Station and about 300 feet out in the river. The substance was discovered by a trackwalker, and an assistant inspector of combustibles pronounced it dynamite and threw it into the river as being the safest place for it. But Inspector Dixon, in charge of the Bureau of Combustibles in Brooklyn, conducted an investigation of the paper that was wrapped about the stick, and from this and other evidence found that it was only a stick of calcium carbide used in acetylene flares in the tunnel.

Edward A. Maher, Jr., assistant to his father, the General Manager of the Third Avenue lines, and his secretary, Joseph F. Feeley, appeared before Magistrate Nolan in the Harlem Court yesterday and asked permission to carry revolvers, saying their lives had been threatened in anonymous letters. They received permits.

Violence was even less yesterday than it had been on the preceding days. There was the usual stone throwing and intimidation of motormen, but very little, and the strike's record of no fatalities and no real riots remained unbroken. The most important instance of rioting yesterday occurred about 9 in the morning, when a crowd of several hundred persons surrounded a south-bound Fourth and Madison Avenue car at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third Street and chased the crew off. Car windows were broken by stones before police arrived and dispersed the crowd, making four arrests.

Charles Herkowitz, 80 Stanton Street, was sentenced to twenty days in the workhouse by Magistrate Koenig in Night Court on the charge of having led a mob which chased Henry Smith, a negro strikebreaker, several blocks after he left the car barns at Grand and Corlear Streets, and beat him.

Samuel Liebowitz, a law clerk, 71 East Ninety-seventh Street, who was one of the prisoners taken Sunday in the demonstration at Madison Avenue and 103d Street, was sentenced to thirty days by Magistrate Nolan in Harlem Court. Isaac Kuschner of 74 East 108th Street was sentenced to ten days, and Anna Lansky and Dora Treger, both of 331 East Thirteenth Street, were held in $1,000 bail each. All were charged with throwing stones.

William Leahy of 446 Cherry Street, a striking conductor, was held in $5,000 bail by Magistrate Murphy in Essex Market Court on the charge of obstructing railroad traffic by thrusting an iron bar in the slot between the car tracks.

CAR CRASH VICTIM DIES.

Coroner Angered by Absence of Witnesses from Bronx Hearing.

Frank Kratz of 341 Bronx Park Avenue, one of those injured in the smashup at West Farms Square early on Tuesday morning, when a Union Railway surface car upset two jitneys, died last night at Fordham Hospital. This is the third death as a result of the accident, and thirteen other persons were injured.

Coroner William J. Flynn intended to resume his hearing on the causes of the accident, but adjourned it until 2 o'clock today when he found that Captain John T. Vickery and Alexander Cohen, officers of the Washington Detective Agency, which is furnishing the strikebreakers in the Bronx, and Harry Carrigan, superintendent of the West Farms barns for the Union Railway Company, were not present. The Coroner spoke sharply with Joseph Donohue, attorney for the company, who he understood had promised to produce the three men.

"I wanted to find out all about the movements of cars from the barns," he said. "As long as you take pushcart men from Mulberry Street and put them in charge of trolley cars, so long will this have a bearing on such cases." The three men were subpoenaed for today.

yesterday morning until 10, counted 56 southbound expresses and 22 locals and 51 northbound expresses and 24 locals. At noon the express-a-minute schedule was working smoothly, but it was not until well after 2 o'clock that the local two-minute schedule was established.

On each train the loyal employes were stationed at the ends with the strikebreakers, or, as they prefer to be called, "new employes," strung along between. In many instances the old employes were paired off with men hired yesterday in order to instruct them in their duties.

Despite the fact that the strikebreakers as a body handled the situation very well, there were some who got badly tangled in the operation of the side doors. Very often they wouldn't open them at all, and when they did it was in grudging fashion, so that many a fine hat was rumpled when its fair wearer tried to squeeze through the partly opened exit.

Another thing that did not worry the "new employes" very much was the changing of the destination signs. It was quite common yesterday to see an express leave Bowling Green to whirl Brooklynward with a sign announcing Dyckman Street as its destination. One of the guards tried to convince an elderly gentleman that Dyckman Street really was beyond the bridge.

Again, at Worth Street, a local stop, a guard who later admitted that "they didn't have doors like that in Toledo," became excited as his train slowed down, and opened the doors on the wrong side. It was a lucky chance that some one, preoccupied by business, did not walk out the opened door to the express tracks.

While the long delays which have occurred at stations since the strike have been blamed to the inexperience of the strikebreakers in hurrying passengers on and off their trains, the police yesterday said that the waits could be attributed to the union activities. The police explanation was that members of other unions have deliberately set about to delay the trains as much as possible.

Their method, according to the police, has been to get eight or ten men at an express station and, after taking unnecessary time to board the train, suddenly to discover that they wanted to take a local.

ALL LINES MAKE GAINS.

Bronx Leads in Surface Service, with New York Railways Next.

Transportation conditions improved materially yesterday on all the surface lines affected by the strike except those in Westchester, where the Third Avenue Railway Company abided by its decision not to attempt any service whatever.

The Union Railway in the Bronx again made the most notable gains, officers of the Third Avenue system devoting their chief attention to that borough because of the greater hardship caused by lack of cars in its broad territory.

In spite of the greater care with which Union Railway managers were said to be selecting their raw strikebreakers yesterday because of the fatal accident the day before, enough men were recruited to bring the total maximum operation to 115 cars—twenty-seven more than on Tuesday. The improvement in numbers enabled the company to furnish more crosstown service than on any day since its men struck.

Many thousands of Bronx dwellers still used the New Haven and New York Central Railroads and other thousands stayed off the cars through fear of accident, so the public itself aided somewhat in lessening the congestion.

On its Manhattan lines the Third Avenue Railway Company had eighty-three cars moving at 3 o'clock, nine more than the day before. Strikebreakers were used to attain this result, and the company went on busily with preparations to attempt more adequate operation within a few days.

The New York Railways Company, though persisting in its determination not to use strikebreakers, made its most notable gain. There were 295 green cars in motion at 4 o'clock in the afternoon—seventeen more than on Tuesday. That was about 23 per cent. of normal weekday operation.

The Second Avenue Railroad used no strikebreakers and made less headway than the other companies. It ran twenty-five blue cars yesterday—a little less than one-fourth its usual total and a gain of two over the previous day.

Company heads pointed to the official police figures of the day's operations with great satisfaction last night as indicative both of their ability gradually to restore service and of a tendency on the part of the strikers to weaken.

Union leaders insisted that the gain, except on the New York Railways, represented only a more liberal use of strikebreakers, and asserted that the New York Railways Company's proved inability to run even one-fourth its cars with its own employes after trying for days to break the strike, demonstrated that the walkout on its lines had been highly successful.

ELEVATED SERVICE IS GOOD.

Eleven More Trains Run at Rush Hour Than on Tuesday.

Claims by their managements that they were unaffected by the strike seemed confirmed yesterday in the operation of the elevated trains. Trains left the South Ferry station during the rush hours on a four-minute schedule which became, on the Sixth Avenue line at Rector Street, where the expresses were put on, a two-minute one, and after Franklin Street, where more trains were put in commission, very nearly a one-minute schedule. The schedules on the other lines were maintained at about the same proportion.

On the Ninth, Third, and Second Avenue elevated roads, with expresses and locals combined, a two-minute schedule was maintained fairly successfully.

The trains during the rush hour had the usual number of cars, seven each on Sixth and Third Avenue trains, six on the Ninth Avenue line, and five on the Second Avenue. On Second Avenue during the slack hours, after 10 o'clock in the morning and before 4:30 in the afternoon, more cars than usual were run, five to a train in the place of the regular three. In all 229 trains were in operation on all lines at the 5 o'clock rush hour, an increase of eleven over Tuesday.

It was explained that there was no trouble in getting men to take the strikers' places and that professional strike breakers were not needed. A TIMES reporter saw a large group of men at the South Ferry waiting for jobs, and some were employed. Questioning elicited that these men were all New Yorkers, and that each was seeking a bona fide guard's job with the Interborough.

All the guards and ticket takers of the elevated roads who were interviewed yesterday, said that the congestion had been less than on any previous day since the strike started.

There was some congestion in the rush hours, especially in the morning yesterday, but the only inconvenience caused now and then was that a train would be held up a few minutes at one place or another and the schedule thus disarranged.

RUSSIANS HOLD FAST IN CARPATHIAN FIGHT

AIR BOMB SINKS DESTROYER

PETROGRAD, Sept. 13.—The Russians are holding the ground they won in the recent fighting in the Carpathians despite heavy counterattacks by the Teutonic forces, according to today's War Office statement, which says:

In the region of Riga and on the river Owina the activity of the enemy's air fleet increased considerably.

In the region south of Jesupol (in Galicia, ten miles south of Halicz) enemy attempts to cross the river Bystritsa were frustrated by our fire.

In the wooded Carpathian region, along the upper course of the river Charny-Cheremosh, the enemy launched unsuccessful attacks on the heights captured by us.

In the Baltic, on the evening of Sept. 9, our fleet successfully bombarded enemy trawlers in the Irben Strait. Some of these were compelled to run ashore.

BERLIN, Sept. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—A Russian destroyer has been sunk in the Gulf of Riga by a German aeroplane squadron, says a report given out by the German Admiralty today, which reads:

On the evening of Sept. 12 several German naval aeroplanes attacked the enemy's sea force in the Gulf of Riga. Several hits were obtained and one of the enemy destroyers sank immediately. In spite of heavy shelling all the aeroplanes returned safely.

The repulse of violent Russian attacks on a long front in the Carpathians is announced by the War Office today. The announcement follows:

Front of Prince Leopold of Bavaria: The situation is unchanged. Russian attacks north of Dvetnemouth and near Garbunovka were repulsed.

Front of Archduke Charles Francis: In the Carpathians the Russians made a simultaneous attack along the whole front between Smotrych and the Golden Bystritsa. They were repulsed everywhere, with the heaviest losses, by our gallant troops under General von Contas.

VIENNA, Sept. 13, (via London.)—An official statement from General Headquarters issued today reads:

Russian massed attacks against our Carpathian front, between Smotrych, southwest of Zabie, and the Golden Bysritsa failed before the brave resistance of the defenders with extraordinarily heavy Russian losses.

In East Galicia there is nothing of importance and only moderate artillery and bombing activity in Prince Leopold of Bavaria's front.

AUSTRIAN LINES SEVERED.

Italians in Trentino Capture Position Dominating Important Pass.

ROME, Sept. 13.—Italian troops in the Dolomite Alps, on the far northerly line of the Austro-Italian front, have captured a position commanding Travenanzes Pass and cutting Austria's communications between the Travenanzes Valley and the Lagazuoi region, the War Office announced today.

A group of enemy seaplanes attacked Venice between 1:30 and 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, dropping a number of incendiary and explosive bombs. The Church of San Giovanni Paolo, the Home for the Aged, and several private buildings were struck and slightly damaged. There were no casualties.

Bombs were also dropped on Chioggia, causing outbreaks of fire, which were quickly extinguished.

The official bulletin today says:

Minor offensive actions continue in the Arsa and upper Posina Valleys. On Monday evening we repulsed attacks east of Griso and in the Zara Valley.

North of Falzarego our Alpine troops gained possession of a position which not only commands Travenanzes Pass, but also interrupts enemy communications between the Travenanzes Valley and the Lagazuoi district.

Last evening enemy aircraft bombarded Venice, Pordenone, Latisana, Marano, Grevignano, and Aquileia, wounding a few civilians and doing slight damage.

Vienna Tells of Air Raids.

VIENNA, via Berlin, Sept. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The War Office issued the following statement today regarding air raids on the Italian front:

On Tuesday night our seaplane squadron dropped bombs on the railway precincts and military objectives at Cervignano. Several hits on the railway station were obtained, and fires were started at various military points.

Another seaplane squadron the same night attacked the naval port of Venice. Hits by the heaviest bombs were observed in the arsenal docks and near the gasometers, in Fort Alberoni and the docks at Chioggia. Despite very heavy bombardments, both squadrons returned safely.

REPORTS DR. BLAKE ILL.

American Surgeon Was Suddenly Stricken, His Associate Says.

The French liner Touraine arrived yesterday from Bordeaux with four American surgeons and eighteen ambulance drivers who have been from six to twelve months in France looking after the wounded.

Dr. A. W. Desjardins, who has been at Dr. Joseph A. Blake's hospital, returned for a short vacation after being abroad for eighteen months. He said that on Sept. 1, when he left the hospital, Dr. Blake was taken suddenly ill.

"I have been unable to find out," he said, "what is the matter with Dr. Blake or how he is getting along. I telephoned to Mrs. Blake and she said that her husband was ill in the hospital."

Dr. Desjardins said that the trains with wounded from the Somme were arriving in Paris about three times a day when he left. Each train had 500 cots and seats for another hundred. Only the serious cases were brought to Paris to be operated upon, he said. Other cases were sent to Normandy and Brittany.

NEW DUTCH STEAMER ANTWERPEN IS SUNK

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The new Dutch steamer Antwerpen of 11,300 tons gross has been sunk, according to an announcement made today by Lloyd's Shipping Agency. The sinking of the Norwegian steamer Kong Ring was also reported by the agency. The crew of the latter vessel has been saved.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 14, (via London.)—The Norwegian steamer Lodsen, 1,247 tons gross, has been sunk.

The Dutch steamer Antwerpen was built at Newport News. She belonged to the American Petroleum Company of Rotterdam and left Newport News in ballast on her maiden voyage for New York Aug. 24 and sailed Aug. 31 from Bayonne, N. J., for London on her first trip across the Atlantic.

The Antwerpen, which was the first foreign ship ever built at Newport News, was in command of Captain Herman Segebarth, who formerly commanded the oil tanker America. She was 460 feet long, had a 60-foot beam, and was 30 feet in depth. The steamer was an oil burner and carried wireless apparatus.

The Kong Ring was a vessel of 1,611 tons. She was owned in Christiania.

David T. Warden, head of the foreign department of the Standard Oil Company, said he superintended the building of the Antwerpen. After the vessel was completed, Mr. Warden said, she was placed under American registry for twenty-four hours so that she could pass the Steamboat Inspection Board and get her papers. The following day the American flag was lowered and the steamship was transferred to Dutch registry.

SEEKS HOLIDAYS FOR JEWS.

Board of Education Split by Motion Made by Barondess.

Joseph Barondess asked the Board of Education yesterday to excuse with pay those teachers and clerks, who would be absent from their duties on the Jewish New Year and Day of Atonement, Sept. 28 and 29 and Oct. 7. He said that they could not conscientiously attend without violating their religious convictions.

Arthur S. Somers objected to the resolution on the ground that it established a dangerous precedent. It opened the door of excuse to Protestant and Catholic employes for similar absences. These, he said, felt that they owed a duty to the city; it was a question of bread and butter; they must eat to be able to pray. He wanted the matter referred to the Committee on By-Laws for its opinion.

Mr. Barondess then withdrew the words "with pay" and made his resolution read: "excused without pay." His motion was seconded by Leo Arnstein.

Dr. Ira S. Wiles said that the resolution was specific legislation, and contrary to the educational policy not to take cognizance of religion. Thomas W. Churchill said that he thought Mr. Barondess was perfectly right; if employes wished to absent themselves on solemn religious days they should be permitted to do so.

The matter was referred to the Committee on By-Laws to report back to the board at its special meeting next Wednesday.

volved. Talas knew Mulholland only as "The Wop," which seems to have been a nickname by which he was known in the pool and dance halls of the upper east side. One of the bulletins issued by the detectives during the year they have worked on the case named Mulholland simply as an "unknown man," and gave his physical description.

Waltonen's arrest, which resulted in that of Mulholland and in the final clearing up of the mystery, was brought about through co-operation with the police by a Finnish clergyman, the Rev. John E. Lillback of 830 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, and the co-operation of numerous Finnish newspapers. While young Talas was on trial his case aroused sympathy, as he appeared to have been a youthful dupe. The task of trying to run down the other men was placed in the hands of Captain Jones. Rev. Mr. Lillback, hoping to save young Talas from the electric chair, procured the Police Department's photographs of the two men named by Talas—Waltonen and Lehto—and with the aid of Finnish societies and associations had them printed in Finnish newspapers througout the country. It was noted that Waltonen, for instance, had a "large scar between the thumb and index finger on the back of his right hand," and that he had reddish blonde, wavy hair, and one upper gold tooth, and would be likely to procure employment as a butler or barber.

Police Get Tip from Lawyer.

The description was published in Michigan, and even Finnish preachers, appealed to to help young Talas, read it to their congregations from their pulpits.

A month ago the New York police received a letter signed only "Counsel," and without any address, from Ironwood, Mich. It was typewritten, and the writer said that he thought a client of his had recognised Waltonen working in a local barber shop. The writer asked that Detective John Fogarty, whose name had appeared beneath some of the printed descriptions, insert a personal advertisement in a Chicago newspaper, notifying the writer what reward was offered for Waltonen's capture. The police here authorized a $250 reward, and an advertisement reading: "Counsel: Reward $250" was placed in the Chicago newspaper on the day named. New York detectives were then sent to Ironwood, and the persons who had recognized Waltonen and who, while waiting for the advertisement, had spent sleepless nights shadowing him, took the detectives to the barber shop where he was found. A brief telegram from the detectives informed Captain Jones Tuesday that Waltonen was under arrest and had involved Mulholland as "The Wop" in a confession, and Mulholland was arrested Tuesday. He was found working as a strikebreaker on an elevated train.

The quizzing of Mulholland, however, was for many hours a discouraging task. He was too experienced, and he didn't believe from the brief telegram of Detectives Enright and Fogarty that the police "had anything on him." The police had suspected him before in connection with this case, and for seven months Captain Jones had kept him under surveillance, and he knew it. Once detectives had tried to question him about the Nichols murder. On that occasion he lived up to his reputation for effrontery, and demanded that "if they had anything on him, they arrest him and have it out in court." His mother, too, made the demand at the District Attorney's office, insisting that her son was being unduly persecuted by the detectives. Tuesday afternoon, all Tuesday night, and all of yesterday morning, and most of the afternoon he stolidly insisted innocence.

Trapped by Times Dispatch.

The dispatch from a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent in Ironwood which arrived yesterday afternoon and with which Captain Jones confronted Mulholland, read:

Special to The New York Times.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 13.—Arthur Waltonen confessed in detail today to being a member of the party that murdered and robbed Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols in New York on the night of Sept. 8, 1915. To New York detectives and the local police Waltonen said he would return to New York and plead guilty to his part of the murder. Waltonen's confession is as follows:

"I was born in Finland in 1892 and came to this country about six years ago and settled in New York. I became associated with the wrong kind of my countrymen and obtained employment at the home of Mrs. Nichols, whom everybody knew as a millionaire widow.

"I worked at her home with the four other servants for several months. During that time I met many of them I found in the dance halls and pool halls. They all knew of Mrs. Nichols's wealth and asked me to help them get rid of her. I was afraid.

"At last I left the job and recommended Onnig Talas to my mistress as a good man. Talas was employed by Mrs. Nichols in June, 1915. After that time we commenced to use Talas as our tool to murder the old lady. He refused often. On the night of Sept. 7, 1915, Eddie Lehto, Mulholland, Alex Sampson, and I, met in a pool room on 105th Street and planned the killing.

"The following night we went to the widow's mansion. Talas opened the door for us. We were masked and some of us carried guns. We ordered Talas to kill his mistress. He refused and we bound him and then went up to the widow's room. When we entered she arose as if to defend herself. One of us grabbed her, but she fell backward immediately. We examined her and thought she died of heart failure. We hurried around the room, took earrings, rings and other jewelry from her person and then scattered in all directions. I hung around New York for several days waiting to hear from the other members of the gang in order to get my share of the booty. I never heard from them and as the police were after me I beat it for Buffalo. At Buffalo I obtained work on a steamer and traveled on the lakes until the lake season closed. I went to Superior, Wis., for a time and later in January or February came here and obtained employment in the barber shop at Walter Point. About [illegible] months ago a fellow from Waukegan, Ill., whose name is John Pelto, was shaved by me. I knew him as soon as I saw him and suspected he recognized me as being the person wanted in New York. After shaving him I heard nothing more until I was arrested yesterday, but I always had a suspicion that the detectives would get me soon. I am willing to go back to take my medicine, but I hope all of the other fellows will get what's coming to them when I get through."

"The case is now complete," said Fogarty.

One More Man Sought.

Mulholland was held on a charge of homicide. Waltonen is being brought to New York by Detectives Enright and Fogarty. The police have been unable to gain any trace of the man who is still missing, Eddie Lehto. His description, taken from the police records, is:

"Eddie Lehto—Age, about 30 years; height, 5 feet 6 of 7 inches; weight, about 140 pounds; dark blond hair, light complexion, oval face, talks with a Finnish accent; looks like a Swede; when last seen wore a blue serge suit, black cap and shoes. This man is likely to apply for and accept any kind of a position, as he has been employed as a lineman, janitor's helper, sailor, and carpenter."

The only clue the police have as to the whereabouts of Lehto is a rather old one indicating that several months ago he went to Canada. Captain Jones, however, who called in the aid of ministers, societies, associations, and newspapers in the search for Waltonen and Mulholland, is determined to continue the search for Lehto.

SUBMARINE AGITATION CEASES IN GERMANY

Controversy Over Food Dictator's Policy Supplants Demand for Unrestricted Attacks.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (via London, Sept. 13.)—The weeks which have passed since the appointment of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as Chief of the General Staff have been marked by almost complete cessation of the discussion in regard to resumption of submarine warfare on the old or on a more vigorous basis. Nonpartisan newspaper observers who are in touch with leading statesmen and politicians express the opinion that for the present at least there will arise no question of a change in submarine policy. The administration of Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg now feels itself fully in control of the situation in this respect.

The controversy over the methods employed in connection with the food dictatorship has now supplanted the submarine issue in the conservative and other newspapers which are opposed to the Chancellor. These newspapers are engaged in arguing with Adolph von Batocki, head of the Food Regulation Board, the pros and cons of compulsory production as opposed to an increase of maximum prices as the method of enlarging the production of foodstuffs.

Herr von Batocki has declared himself a convenient opponent of the theory that the food problem could best be solved by compulsory methods; that is, by prescribing what farmers should plant. But he also has little sympathy with the demand of the agrarians for increase or removal of maximum prices to encourage production. Accordingly the present system will continue.

Should the submarine situation remain as at present and should he be assured that no revival of the underwater campaign is contemplated, Ambassador Gerard may take advantage of the opportunity for a trip to the United States, as he feels the need of a vacation.

The Ambassador hopes that before this he will witness completion of the prolonged, difficult, and delicate negotiations which he is conducting for relief of interned civilians in Germany and England. As a result of his efforts two proposals are under consideration. One of them calls for a general exchange of civilians under parole not to serve during the war. The alternative plan is the release of all men more than 45 years and others unfit for military service. These plans are now before the British Government, and the acceptance of either would mean the success of a difficult task of humanitarian diplomacy.

The Advantage of a Bank designated by the Court

WHEN a business house gets into serious financial trouble, the law provides for the appointment of a Receiver or Trustee in Bankruptcy.

The Receiver is held personally liable for the funds that come into his hands.

The law relieves him from that liability, however, on condition that he deposit these funds in a banking institution designated by the U. S. Court.

In selecting such institutions, the Court naturally must weigh the question of safety.

MAY MAKE SHIFT IN TEUTON WAR PLANS

GERMAN EYES ON FUTURE

Berlin Said to be Trying to Secure Her Eastern Interests—Turks and Bulgars Questioning.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 14.—The Daily Mail publishes the following from its Amsterdam correspondent:

"A striking article in the well-informed Frankfurter Zeitung on the meeting of the Kaiser, the King of Bulgaria, the Archduke Charles and Enver Pasha at the Kaiser's headquarters says: 'A discussion is proceeding about which the next generation will perhaps talk and write more than about the events which now appear to us greater and more important.'

"This journal believes that the Turkish Foreign Minister, Halil Bey, is discussing in Berlin the future political relations of Turkey and Germany, while the debates at headquarters are mainly military. In any case, the chief topic under discussion is 'the new organization of the Balkans and securing of German interest there, where for two years German troops have fought in true comradeship, first with the Turkish troops at the Dardanelles and then with the Bulgarians in Serbia and Macedonia.'

"The new combined action against Rumania has shown the necessity of greater solidarity and the desirability of a union which the rust of future time will not be able to loosen. Two main 'problems, therefore, under discussion are: First, a final settlement of the Balkan question, and secondly, the measure and form of the share which Germany will have in future in the finally pacified and satisfied Balkans. Questions regarding the future of Serbia are apparently already settled between Bulgaria and Austria, but it is probable that a more formal and final alliance between Bulgaria and Turkey is being aimed at.

"More important, however, are the military discussions which may tomorrow favorably influence the war. 'Indissoluble bonds between the Turkish, Bulgarian, German, and Austrian armies for common protection and common policy' are one of the chief lessons of the war and must be further emphasized. Such bonds neither threaten the independence of the different States nor are they a threat to the rest of the world, but it is clear 'we can protect ourselves only by a close combination.'

"The well-known connections of the Frankfurter Zeitung with the Imperial Chancellery render this article by far the most interesting yet published."

The Daily Mail, commenting editorially on the article, says:

"What we gather very clearly from the article is that Bulgaria and Turkey are asking awkward questions of the Chancellor. The journalist does what he can to obscure that fact. The Turks and Bulgarians are wanting to know where they come in. They understand that so far as Germany is concerned the war is now a struggle to found a Greater Germany across Asia Minor.

"They see that Germany cannot move forward in the west, and that she is staking everything on a chance of creating a brand new German Empire, stretching from Hamburg and possibly from Antwerp to the Persian Gulf. A Balkan express train to Constantinople and beyond—there is the symbol of Germany's dreams. The Turks see it, and the Bulgarians see it, but they also see that Germany's ambitions can only be realized with their assistance and at their expense, and that they will have to do a great deal of the fighting.

"The utmost Germany is now capable of, either in the east or west, is a war of defense. If she is ever to possess the near eastern empire on which her heart is set, her allies must carve it out for her.

"Therefore it appears that they are very inconveniently pressing for a promise of what is to be their reward. When they have plucked the apple and handed it over to Germany they would like to be sure of getting at least the core. What share are they going to have in the new German Empire they are expected to spend their blood and treasure in erecting? Are they simply to serve as a carpet from Germany's front door to Asia Minor?

"These are the questions von Bethmann Hollweg's newspaper has been put up to answer, and of course it cannot answer them. It can only hand out soothing syrup. A truthful reply would break up the combination, for the truth is, when the Germans eat the apple there will be no core left over for any one else, that Turkey and Bulgaria will be under the German thumb when the German Empire stretches into Asia Minor. If we read aright the Frankfurter Zeitung's article, the only advice which von Bethmann Hollweg gives them is to open their mouths and shut their eyes and take what the 'old German Gott' sends them."

Talk of Changing War Plans.

AMSTERDAM, Thursday, Sept. 14, (via London.)—The German newspapers attach profound importance to the conference now taking place at German Eastern Headquarters. Those in attendance include the German Emperor, the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg; Chief of Staff Field Marshal von Hindenburg, and First Quartermaster General von Ludendorff, representing Germany; Archduke Charles, representing Austria-Hungary; King Ferdinand and the Crown Prince, representing Bulgaria, and Enver Pasha, Turkish Minister of War.

The Dutch papers suggest that the conference is considering new and drastic strategical changes, in the nature of sacrifices, on one or both fighting fronts.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—The presence at Grand Headquarters of the East of Enver Pasha, where King Ferdinand of Bulgaria is also the Kaiser's guest, is regarded as highly significant for political and military developments in the near future, Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg having apparently been called to participate in the council.

It seems that Enver only arrived at Grand Headquarters after an extensive round trip to the Turkish positions on the Russian and Rumanian front. Thus he was just in time to congratulate the Ottoman troops, who, in conjunction with the Germans, have been successfully repulsing the fierce Russian onslaughts at the Zlota Lipa and the Dniester.

At the Turkish Embassy in Berlin it was said that Enver before returning to Constantinople would also visit the Ottoman contingent fighting with the Germans and Bulgarians in Dobrudja.

POILUS HOAXED THE WORLD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—French poilus appear to have hoaxed the world. English papers have been quoting supposed opinions of various distinguished Frenchmen, like Rostand, Richepin, and Rodin, on the military order against beards. These comments appear to have been accepted as genuine on two continents. They were in reality bogus remarks attributed to the eminent men named, but invented by a witty contributor to Le Fuse, one of the trench papers by which the French soldiers beguile their leisure.

The Journal des Débats quoted the comments with due appreciation of their humor, but the correspondent who first sent the story to America, whence it has come to England, appears to have thought them genuine or, at least, to have omitted sufficiently to indicate the humorous character of Le Fuse.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

In connection with the latest French attack which has resulted in such a grave menace to a part of the German lines in the immediate vicinity of the Somme River, it is appropriate to consider the general situation in this sector as it has developed since the 1st of September, when the first of the present series of French thrusts was made.

One fact in relation to these thrusts stands out pre-eminently, and that is that upon each occasion the French infantry went forward, not without opposition, it is true, but with comparative ease, and established new lines not a few hundred yards in advance of the old, but anywhere from half a mile to three miles in advance.

The question naturally arises, therefore, 'Why is it that now the French are able to make what one might well term such abnormal gains, when but a little while before they apparently had great difficulty in advancing even a few yards? The point of view has been expressed that the Germans are intentionally giving way slowly, so as ultimately to shorten the line which they have to hold, and which suddenly has been increased nearly 900 miles by the intervention of Rumania.

On practically all fronts, the war has developed into a great siege, which will continue as long as the Central Powers retain the power to hold the lines by which they are circumscribed by the forces of the Entente. That this power has, since early June, been greatly reduced by the enormous losses incident first to the Russian attacks and later by the attacks on all fronts which the Entente Powers have been delivering against it, is a fact which needs no comment.

With this reduction of defensive power has come an additional new line to defend, and not only no new forces with which to defend it, but an increase in the number of enemy forces which ultimately may reach a million men if abnormal methods of recruiting are resorted to. The obvious answer is for Germany to shorten her lines by a withdrawal somewhere.

Let us examine the three fronts with this view. On the Saloniki front no such shortening is possible. The limitations imposed on the Teutonic armies are the limitations of geographical features which cannot be changed. The Allies, moreover, have selected their lines and the Teutons have to oppose them. To attempt to draw in would be merely to expose one or both of their flanks to a turning movement, which, with Rumania in the rear or even without Rumania, would be a fatal manoeuvre.

On the Russian front the situation is a little different. There are several sinuosities in the German lines in Russia, which, while they could not be flattened out without material sacrifice, nevertheless, in a case of emergency, might be straightened. From Riga, for example, the lines break far away to the southeast along the Dwina River. Further south at Baranovitschi there is another break where the line drifts into the Pinsk Marshes. Between Polesse and the Carpathians the line is generally straight.

The total gain, if these irregularities were to be eliminated, would be relatively small; but even so, it would take more men per mile of line to defend the new shorter line than the old. The reason for this is that the line, because of the great marsh areas breaking in, is not continuous and does not have to be. Once out of this marsh area and the entire line must be manned. Again, any movement westward, which affects the Austrian Army in Galicia, lengthens the line by reason of the fact that the Austrians as they fall back must not only retain their north and south position, but must also flatten out against the Carpathian wall to defend the passes or submit to an invasion of Hungary.

Finally one comes to the western front as the only possible front in which such a manoeuvre is feasible. With a sacrifice in territory but of no real military advantage, the German lines in the west can, it is true, be shortened by the elimination of the Noyons salient and the retirement to the line of the Scheldt.

Let us suppose this is the German intention and see how it can be made to fit in with the facts. Consider first the battle of the Somme, where the only effort of the Allies is being made. It is a fact which a simple measurement on the map will show, that the result of the successes of the Allies to date has been to lengthen the German lines rather than contract them. This may be but part of the German plan, and the shortening process is to come later with a greater retirement over a larger front. But had this been the German plan, how easy it would have been, and still is, for them to abandon, under British pressure, the salient between Ginchy and Arras rather than resist by every means in their power the attacks against Thiepval, the key to the salient. The British attacks have been sufficiently heavy to allow the Germans to fall back with good grace, but they refuse to fall back.

Suppose the Germans continue to fall back a few yards at a time, apparently as a result of the driving power of the Entente. It means that they acknowledge defeat; that they say to the world: "We are giving the best we have, but we are not strong enough; our enemies are more powerful in attack than we are in defense, in spite of our long period of preparation for just what has come."

Suppose, on the other hand, that von Hindenburg were to order a retirement not under fire, but a voluntary retirement, and should say to the world: "This is a strategic move. You can see we are not forced to this by any military superiority on the part of our enemies, but rather it is a move which will give us a decided advantage over them."

Which statement would have the more disheartening effect on the German people, the more important effect on Germany's prestige in the neutral world?

Again, consider the German supply of food and raw material. Germany is cultivating many hundred square miles of her enemies' territory and harvesting the crops for her own population, civil and military. A retirement means a further shortening of supplies, even now none too abundant. Her supply of iron is drawn partly from her own resources, but largely also from the occupied French and Belgian territory. Can she afford at this time, when the demands on her munition plants are greater than ever before, to reduce voluntarily her available resources of raw materials? Her supply of coal to operate the railroads, which she must keep going at full capacity in order that her supply system may not fail, comes in great part from the French district of which Lens in Artois is the centre. Can this be given up? Or will it be without a struggle?

Finally, there is the situation created by the allied press, that the war must be won on the western front; that Russia may act as the hammer and the west as an anvil, but when the final blow is struck, the scene of it will be in France. Can this be ignored by voluntary retirement which, in the eyes of the neutral world, will be an admission of defeat?

These are the principal considerations which must be borne in mind in forming an estimate of the causes for the French successes. The conclusion to which they lead, is that Germany will stand defeat by the powers now in the east and submit to a forced withdrawal to the gates of East Prussia, regardless of the effect on her allies, before she will yield in voluntary retirement before a people whom the German people have been taught to feel only the bitterest hatred, the British.

WARSHIPS BOMBED IN RUMANIAN PORT

FEW PRISONERS AT SILISTRIA

Bulgar Commander in Dobrudja Accuses Rumanian Troops of Atrocities, According to Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—German seaplanes have attacked Russian sea forces off Constanza (Rumania) and the coast to the south, the War Office announces today. Hits on one battleship, one submarine, and several destroyers were observed. All the seaplanes returned unharmed.

In accepting the resignation of General Pflanzer-Baltin, says the Overseas News Agency, Emperor Francis Joseph sent a letter in his own handwriting thanking the General for the excellent services he had rendered. The letter expresses regret that the General's ill-health makes it impossible for him to retain his commission.

According to reports from Sofia to the same agency, General Bessarabesku, commander of the recently captured Rumanian fortress of Tutrakan, attempted to escape in a boat after the fall of the last fortification. The boat carrying him was sunk by Bulgarian artillery, and the General was drowned in the Danube.

Averesco to Command in Dobrudja.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—It is announced from Bucharest that General A. Averesco, former Rumanian War Minister and the Kingdom's most distinguished soldier, who initiated the brilliant invasion to Transylvania, has been transferred from the northern front to command in Dobrudja. General Averesco is another illustration of the military leader who has risen from the ranks, as he entered the Rumanian Army as a cavalryman forty years ago. General Averesco's place in Transylvania has been taken over by General Crainiceano, who also is a former Chief of the General Staff and War Minister.

Bulgarian troops, which took the Danube fortress of Silistria, in Rumania, capture of which was announced by the German War Office on Sunday, apparently did not take prisoner any considerable number of Rumanians.

The official Bulgarian statement of Sept. 11, which was received here today, says the Rumanians retired "on both sides of the Danube, pursued by our cavalry." [Although this translation of the Bulgarian statement, if taken literally, indicates that the Bulgarians have forced a passage of the Danube, it is improbable that the Bulgarian War Office meant to convey this meaning. The Bulgarian report of the following day makes no mention of any such operation.] The statement follows:

Along the Danube there was artillery firing at Tekia, Widin, Lomorjechovo, and Ivichton.

In Dobrudja our offensive continues. Yesterday our troops entered Silistria, being welcomed enthusiastically by the population. The Bulgarian tricolor now floats over Fort Arabtabia, [probably Fort Arabadzilar, near the Danube, half way between Silistria and Tutrakan.] We captured artillery and a large quantity of material. The enemy troops retired northeastward and on both banks of the Danube, pursued by our cavalry.

The Rumanian War Office communication, issued today, says:

There have been light skirmishes on the whole of the north and northwest fronts. We took 378 prisoners.

On the south front there has been an exchange of gunfire all along the Danube, while in Dobrudja we are in contact with the enemy on the entire front, with lively engagements between patrols and advance guards.

A detachment of the enemy which had advanced up the Danube was counterattacked and repulsed, leaving in our hands eight German guns.

SHIFTS TROOPS TO RUMANIA.

Mackensen Said to Have Thinned the Macedonian Front.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Sept. 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—Information just received from Rome controverts the assertion that Field Marshal von Mackensen is leading an army of 400,000 in Dobrudja, made by Count von Reventlow so late as two weeks ago.

On the other hand, within the last six weeks rather reliable reports stated that some 50,000 Germans were being sent down the Danube, while several divisions of Turks were being removed from the Dobrudja front and sent to Galicia. The only point, therefore, whence Mackensen's army could have been drawn was the Macedonian front. This is confirmed by dispatches received in Rome which suggest that a really large part of the Bulgarian and German troops in Macedonia have been transferred to Dobrudja.

This transfer began silently probably four weeks ago while the Bulgarians were making a demonstration in the guise of a boasted offensive. Their attacks on the Allies' right and left wings, their occupation of the Greek forts, and the general manifestations of activity were intended only to cover the removal of a considerable part of their troops to another field where greater danger threatened them. The allied troops at Saloniki are fully prepared and supplied in all respects for a great offensive. Their munitions are inexhaustible, and the health of the troops is good.

When the attack begins it will be discovered that by removing some 150,000 or more Bulgarian troops to Dobrudja Mackensen simply sacrificed his southern front to save his northern one. The Bulgarian Macedonian army is estimated at about 230,000 men.

Since the above reports came in news has been received that another division with some Turks has been sent to the Rumanian front along the western Danube, opposite Orsova.

CHARGE MANY ATROCITIES.

Bulgars Accuse Rumanian Troops of Cruelty to Population.

BERLIN, Sept. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The Bulgarian official statement of September 11, received here today, contains the following:

The retreat of the Rumanians, Russians, and Serbians was accompanied by the most horrible cruelties, especially on the part of the Rumanians, against the defenseless population. A report from the commander in chief, dated Sept. 10, says:

"Since the first day after the crossing of the frontier it has been established that the Rumanian Army has committed a series of inhuman atrocities which more and more prove to have been incredibly bestial. Some days before the declaration of war the Rumanian authorities took all cattle without formal requisition. When the Rumanians retreated they formed special detachments for the burning of Bulgarian villages. The villages of Tsakior, Altomrovo, and Srebarna and others in the vicinity of Tutrakan and Silistria are still burning.

"One detachment which was defeated near Sangalar on the evening of Sept. 7 sent a company with two officers to the village of Srebarna. All the male inhabitants were assassinated during the night. The streets were filled with the bodies of innocent persons, which were mutilated in the most horrible fashion. A number of children were burned in locked houses. The women and the remaining children were carried to Silistria.

"On Sept. 9 the men of Alifak were taken to the bank of the Danube and killed mercilessly. Their bodies were thrown into the river. Inhabitants of the villages of Kalipetrovo, Altmir, Cradmur, and Dabuk were transported to the west bank, near Kalarash, in order to protect the cowardly enemy from the fire."

Greece Sends New Minister Here.

ATHENS, Thursday, Sept. 14.—The official journal today publishes the nomination of D. Caclamanos as Greek Minister to the United States.

M. Caclamanos, who was formerly Minister to Italy, will succeed Agamemnon Schliemann, who was recalled in September, 1914. Since then A. Vouros has been Chargé d'Affaires of the Greek Legation at Washington.

FRENCH AND SERBS CAPTURE A TOWN

ITALIANS JOIN IN FIGHTING

British Again Withdraw Behind the Struma—Warships at Kavala Bombed.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The Italian troops landed at Saloniki several weeks ago have joined in the fighting in the Struma region, thus indicating that the offensive on this front is developing systematically as positions of vantage for a great drive northward are gathered into the lines.

French and Serbian troops on the western end of the front have captured the town of Sorovitz, near Florina, according to a dispatch from Athens.

The statement issued by the Paris War Office today says:

On the Struma front no change in the situation is reported. Very lively cannonading continues. In the region of the Beles Mountains Italian troops are engaged in the direction of Dutkova, (near the Struma, fifteen miles west of Demir-Hissar) and Dzuma.

On both sides of the Vardar, allied artillery sharply bombarded Bulgarian organizations to the north of Makukovo and Majadag.

Serbians Push Steadily Forward.

On our left wing the offensive operations of the Serbian Army are being actively pursued despite the lively resistance of the enemy. Northwest of Kovel the Serbians occupied an important position after engagements in which the enemy suffered heavy losses. In the direction of Kaimakcalan the Serbian advance guard fought its way forward.

Northwest and west of Lake Ostrovo sharp encounters are in progress. Southwest of the lake our troops made an important advance and our artillery set on fire several places occupied by the Bulgarians.

The Serbian official communication says:

A violent artillery duel was started by the Serbians yesterday. Serbian infantry at many points expelled the Bulgars from their advanced positions and occupied them. The Bulgarian counterattacks in the course of the night were completely repulsed, whereas the Serbian attacks carried out during the night were successful.

The British forces which crossed the Struma River last Sunday and captured several villages have been withdrawn, after having inflicted heavy losses on the Bulgars, according to a report sent by the British press representative at Saloniki.

The official report made public by the War Office today merely says:

Except for patrol encounters east of the river, there have been no developments on our Struma front. On our Doiran front both our own and the enemy's artillery has been active.

Following is a bulletin made public today by Italian Army Headquarters in Rome:

Saloniki front: On Monday and Tuesday, in the district west of Butkovo Lake, our columns had skirmishes with Bulgarian detachments, which were driven in beyond the Demir-Hissar-Doiran railway line.

Bulgars Claim Successes.

BERLIN, Sept. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—An official announcement issued yesterday at Sofia says:

On the Macedonian front, near Ostrovo Lake, there was activity on the part of patrols, as well as artillery fighting. A small enemy detachment was repulsed in the Moglenica Valley. In the valley of the Vardar and near Doiran the artillery fighting was spirited.

Two Italian companies with machine guns and one squadron of cavalry advanced in the direction of Bulkova (near the Struma River) and Dzuma. We made a counterattack and dispersed them. Thirty Italians were captured. This was our first encounter with Italian troops.

In an encounter in the Struma Valley, near Nevoljen and Kardziko, on Sept. 10 the enemy lost seven officers and 100 men killed. We captured many rifles and a quantity of ammunition thrown away by the enemy, who fled in panic. We took prisoner two Scotch officers and more than 100 British soldiers.

A hostile fleet is cruising off the Aegean Coast. Our hydroplanes made a successful attack on enemy warships in the harbor of Kavala.

VIENNA, Sept. 13, (via London.)—Army Headquarters today issued the following bulletin:

PEOPLE IN KAVOLA MASSACRED BY TURKS

PARIS, Sept. 13.—The Greek port of Kavala was pillaged and civilians massacred by Turkish Bashibazouks, (irregulars,) on the withdrawal of the Greek garrison, according to a Saloniki dispatch to the Havas Agency. The dispatch says that the Bulgarians sent an ultimatum to Colonel Christodoulos, commander of the garrison, on the night of Sept. 10. Colonel Christodoulos then left with 1,900 men for Thasos.

A terrible panic occurred in the city when the garrison withdrew. The Bashibazouks entered and, after breaking open the prisons, indulged in an orgy of pillage and massacre. All who could fled before the invaders.

The Bulgarians are now camped at Calmorman and Kuchukserman. Bulgarian aeroplanes flew over Kavala on Tuesday and dropped bombs which killed nine persons.

MAY TUNNEL BOSPORUS.

Berlin Hears Turks Are Seriously Considering the Project.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—A project for the construction of a tunnel under the Bosporus is being discussed at Constantinople. Engineers have worked out detailed plans showing that the project is feasible and financially profitable, while its strategic importance is obvious.

FRENCH SMASH LAST OF THE SOMME LINES

cluded a powerfully organized trench system south of Le Priez farm, (lying due east of Combles) the village of Bouchavesnes and a position known as the Abbé Wood farm southeast of Bouchavesnes. This farm lies about 600 meters (650 yards) east of the Péronne-Bethune highroad.

In the last two days' fighting the French have captured 2,300 prisoners, ten guns, and about forty machine guns.

The importance of the new positions gained by General Foch's troops is seen in the desperate attempts made by the Germans today to recapture them. Very heavy fighting developed around the Abbé wood farm. The Germans succeeded at one time in recapturing it. A strong counterattack, however, put the French again in possession of it. Farther south, the Germans made several attempts to recapture Hill 76, (east of Cléry,) which led to hand to hand fighting. The French, however, held their ground.

The British still remain inactive on their part of the Somme front, no fighting of even minor importance being reported today.

In the Verdun sector the French continue to gain ground by methodic attacks. The Germans made a strong counterattack east of Fleury today, but were repulsed.

The French War Office statement this evening follows:

North of the Somme we appreciably extended our positions in a portion of our front facing Combles and took by assault, south of Le Priez farm, a complete and powerfully organized trench system.

Desperate fighting occurred during the day on our centre and right wing, where the Germans made energetic efforts to recapture lost ground. One violent enemy attack with two regiments against l'Abbé Wood farm succeeded at first in its recapture, but the irresistible return to the offensive of our troops threw the enemy back from his position, which we now occupy completely.

Hill 76 on the south was also the object of enemy attempts, but after a series of hand-to-hand encounters, with fluctuating fortunes, our infantry maintained all its gains.

The number of unwounded prisoners captured yesterday and today exceeds at the present time 2,300. Important booty abandoned by the enemy and counted up to the present amounts to ten guns, including several heavy pieces, and about forty machine guns in the Bouchavesnes sector alone.

South of the Somme artillery fighting continued very actively in the region of Vermandovillers and Chaulnes.

On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) after intense artillery preparation, the Germans attacked the positions we recently carried east of Fleury. They were completely repulsed, leaving seventy prisoners in our hands.

On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report.

The French official statement, issued this afternoon, says:

North of the Somme fighting continued last evening, with distinct success for our arms. The village of Bouchavesnes was attacked toward 5 o'clock in the evening, and carried in its entirety by our troops in a brilliant fight, despite the enemy's resistance. He had strongly intrenched himself. During the night our infantry organized itself in the conquered position. The Germans did not attempt a counterattack.

This morning our troops, continuing their advance eastward, took by assault the Bois l'Abbé Farm, situated 600 meters eastward of the Bethune road, southeast of Bouchavesnes. We took some additional prisoners during these actions and captured a large amount of material. No precise figures have yet reached us on this subject.

To the north of the Astra (the Avre?) a surprise attack directed against a trench in the region of Andrechy gained us additional prisoners.

On the right bank of the Meuse, (Verdun front,) we made some progress in the northern portion of the Vaux-Chapitre Wood. Artillery fighting continues with moderate activity in the Fleury-le-Chenois region. Everywhere else the night was calm.

The British statement, issued this evening says:

The general situation continues unchanged. An attack made last night on our lines from the direction of Mouquet Farm was stopped by our fire, and the enemy driven back to his trenches with considerable loss.

The hostile artillery activity is normal.

The afternoon statement was very similar. It follows:

The general situation is unchanged. There is nothing of importance to report.

Berlin Admits Loss of Village.

BERLIN, Sept. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The capture by the French of Bouchavesnes, on the Somme front, is reported in the official announcement from the War Office today. The statement reads:

Front of Field Marshal Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria: The battle north of the Somme has recommenced. Our troops are engaged in heavy fighting between Combles and the Somme. The French entered Bouchavesnes. Artillery duels of great violence continue on both sides of the Somme.

Front of the German Crown Prince: East of the Meuse, (Verdun front,) attacks made by the French in the sector of Thiaumont and Souville failed, causing them sanguinary losses.

ADVANCE AT HIGH SPEED.

French Dash Into Bouchavesnes Takes Germans by Surprise.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—The speed of the French advance in Tuesday's battle on the Somme front took the Germans completely by surprise, according to a description of the fighting given by an eyewitness. He said:

"The attack began at 12:30 P. M. in perfect order. The officers had difficulty holding their men, some of whom started even before the appointed time. In a few minutes the first objective was carried and at 12:35 the news arrived that the Berlingot trench was already occupied. Then information came in fast of further gains and the observers saw a stream of surrendering Germans running toward the French lines.

"Many of the Germans who surrendered were hit by the curtain fire of their own artillery. Most of them were troops who had recently arrived from the Verdun front. The prisoners declared that though they expected the attack the rapidity with which it was delivered took them by surprise. They said that when they started to come out from their shelters they found the French troops already in the trenches.

"The Germans seem to have suffered very heavy losses from the preliminary bombardment alone. A Captain said that his company lost more than half its effectives during this bombardment. The co-ordination between the artillery and the infantry was perfect, thanks to the aviators. One aviator located a German battery of 105s and gave the range to the French artillery, with satisfactory results.

"By 3 o'clock part of a brigade of light infantry had reached the Bethune-St. Quentin Road before Bouchavesnes. The attack on Bouchavesnes began at 4:30. Half an hour later a Bengal light flared up from the centre of the village as a signal that the French troops had entered the place, and at 5 o'clock its capture was completed. This brings our advance on this front since July 1 to a depth of ten kilometers."

GERMANS ON SOMME ARE EAGER FOR PEACE

Letters Found in Captured Dugouts Show Entire Lack of the Old-time Boastfulness.

By PHILIP GIBBS.
The London Daily Chronicle Dispatches.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Tuesday, Sept. 12.—It is extraordinarily difficult to know whether all the British shell fire and all the dead have yet begun to shake the confidence of the Germans in the strength of their war machine.

Some of the officers who have come in as prisoners still keep their pride. They have seen the losses inflicted on them in and behind their lines but say "You can't beat us. We can't be beaten."

That is different from the old phrases, "We are winning. Victory is certain for Germany." But it is a long way from the acknowledgment of defeat or possible defeat. There are times when the pessimists among us are tempted to think the Germans have mysterious reserves of strength from which they can heal their wounds, and that the success gained is only local and has not yet injured the German war machine in any vital part or struck a blow which has reached the heart of the German people.

The cure for such pessimism is found in letters captured in the German dugouts and on German prisoners. They draw the veil aside and tell the naked truth, and through all these letters written by men whose sons are fighting or dead, and by comrades in arms, not hiding their thoughts from each other, there is a cry against the bloodshed and misery of this war, and for peace at all costs.

"By now the town of Offenbach has 3,000 widows, and besides that there are the unmarried men who have fallen."

"Our company lost all its officers and the men, but that is the same with every company and every regiment on the Somme. I, alas! could not get the much-desired wound to send me home."

There have been riots in Hamburg and other places, according to letters found in the trenches, and in the spirit of civilian Germany there is rising anger against those who made the war and caused all this misery and who keep it lasting for political and dynastic reasons. The German Socialists at last, it seems, are beginning to find their voice again, if one may judge from such letters as the following, written by an educated hand:

"You ask how far the peace movement has advanced. It is impossible to say anything definite, but we Socialists are now going to present to the Imperial Chancellor a great peace memorial containing the signatures of those citizens who want a speedy peace without annexations and without violence to other nations. These lists will be collected from the whole empire and handed to the Chancellor. God grant that their names may be put down in millions, that the Government may see that the great mass of the people want an early peace.

"One may hope this accursed murdering of peoples may come to an end soon, but, unfortunately, the obstinate ones have no wish for peace. They are working in all countries against it with all their power, for the international capitalists can do no better business than they are doing now, and their purses appear not full yet.

"With us the distress gets greater from day to day, and already many poor people are suffering from underfeeding. We will, however, hope and act, for surely the good sense of the peoples may conquer in the end."

54,000 PRISONERS ALLIES' BAG IN WEST

French and British Have Also Captured 260 Guns and 647 Mitrailleuses Since July 1.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 14.—The Times correspondent in Paris sends the following dispatch:

"For the first time since trench warfare was firmly established has a big operation succeeded in smashing right through the trench armor of the German front. The capture of Bouchavesnes takes the French right through the great German defensive organization as it existed when the battle began two and one-half months ago. For the first time the western front has been pierced.

"This is a significant fact, but its importance can easily be exaggerated. Nothing faintly approaching the strategic ruptures to which General Brusiloff has accustomed us has been achieved. Ever since the fighting began the Germans have been digging miles behind their line and there is no doubt there will be much fierce fighting and long waiting before the first ray of daylight let in through the chink at Bouchavesnes really lightens the horizon.

"Since the beginning of the offensive on the western front the French and British on the Somme, and the French at Verdun have been able to announce the capture of 260 guns, 647 machine guns, and, roughly, 54,000 men. These results already constitute a victory, and it is quite evident the French do not intend to remain where they are either on the north or south of the Somme, where the artillery bombardment is still in progress."

HUGHES EXPECTS PARTY LANDSLIDE

least, on the Progressives in other States and until Johnson's victory over Booth the situation looked as if it might prove serious. Mr. Hughes, following his belief that what he had done was for the best, went on with his campaign unaffected by the reports he must have heard. When Johnson was nominated, Mr. Hughes sent a congratulatory telegram from Estes Park and received a reply thanking him. Then he went on his way.

Republicans yesterday were proclaiming that the stand which Mr. Hughes had taken on the passage of the Adamson bill by the Wilson Administration granting the demands of the railroad employes in order to prevent a strike would be one of the biggest assets that Mr. Hughes would have in his campaign. Some of these men were the same ones who had urged Mr. Hughes to go lightly on the issue until he put aside restraint when heckled in Nashville, and came out with vigorous utterance against the "rule of force."

There was a distinct feeling of dread about this issue in Maine, not as a National issue, but because it was felt that, sprung on the eve of a State election, it might hurt the State fight by alienating labor votes. Mr. Hughes feels that the result in Maine was a thorough vindication of the course he pursued in refusing to take a middle ground even for the time.

Analyze Maine Victory.

Coupled with the apparent success of the so-called "eight-hour day" issue in Maine was the fact that the vote indicated the return of from 80 to 90 per cent. of the Progressives to the Republican fold, figuring conservatively. The political analysts of the Hughes camp figured it out that this was due to two things: First, that the Progressives of Maine at least liked the attitude and personality of Mr. Hughes as well as his outspoken utterances for the end of pork-barrel legislation and economic, efficient government; second, that there was an ever growing determination on the part of the followers of Colonel Roosevelt to put the Wilson Administration out of power.

This revolt against the Wilson Administration, the Hughes leaders hold, is stronger than many imagine throughout the country. They feel that it will aid materially the other issues which they are satisfied will give Mr. Hughes a sweeping victory in the West. They feel that it will be one of the deciding factors in New York State and that Mr. Hughes will carry this State by a large plurality.

Mr. Hughes and his advisers are satisfied that from now on the dissensions among some of the factional leaders must cease and that Maine has vindicated the Hughes methods in endeavoring to show the people the faults of the Administration by forceful reasoning instead of ultra fiery personal attack.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Charles E. Hughes arrived at his Summer home from New York tonight at 6:30 o'clock. Mrs. Hughes, who came here yesterday, was at the station to meet him and they drove at once to Tremedden, their cottage. Mr. Hughes made it known that he wished to get a complete rest before starting on his second campaign tour Sunday night or Monday.

PLACES HUGHES WILL VISIT.

The itinerary for Charles E. Hughes on his second trip, which will keep him away until Oct. 1, is as follows: Leaving New York City at 8 A. M. on Monday, Sept. 18, he will stop at Buffalo and leave there early next morning for Chicago. On Tuesday, Sept. 19, he will speak in Chicago, Peoria, and Springfield. On Sept. 20 he will return to Chicago and leave two hours later to visit Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, and Milwaukee.

Leaving Milwaukee on Sept. 21, he will return to Chicago and leave there at 4 A. M., going to Monon, Lafayette, Delphi, Logansport, Peru, Wabash, Huntington, FortWayne, Decatur, Portland, Winchester, and Richmond, Ind. Leaving Richmond at 7 A. M. on Sept. 22, he will go to Newcastle, Anderson, Muncey, Elwood, Tipton, Frankfort, Kokomo, Marion, North Manchester, Warsaw, Goshen, Elkhart, and South Bend.

Leaving South Bend at 8:45 A. M., he will journey to Laporte, Michigan City, Gary, Valparaiso, Plymouth, Rochester, and Indianapolis. On Sunday, Sept. 24, he will rest at Indninapolis and the next day will leave for Greenburg, Cincinnati, Middletown, Franklin, and Dayton. On Sept. 26, leaving Dayton at 8 A. M., Mr. Hughes will go to Springfield, Columbus, Toledo, Port Clinton, Sandusky, and Cleveland. He will leave Cleveland on Wednesday, Sept. 27, and go to Akron, Orrville, Canton, Alliance, and Pittsburgh.

He will leave Pittsburgh at 1 A. M. on Sept. 28 and speak in Trenton, N. J., Jersey City, Weehawken, Albany, and Saratoga. Leaving Saratoga at 8 A. M. on Sept. 29, the candidate will make short stops at Binghamton, Endicott, Oswego, Waverly, Elmira, Corning, Hornell, and Wellsville. On Saturday, Sept. 30, Mr. Hughes will speak in Jamestown and at two meetings in Buffalo.

TRIP A SUCCESS, SAYS HUGHES.

Charles E. Hughes and several of his campaign managers were the guests at luncheon yesterday of National Chairman William R. Willcox at his home, 635 Park Avenue. Among the guests were Herbert Parsons, George W. Perkins, Charles B. Warren, of Michigan; Albert Martin, of Virginia; Everett Colby, of New Jersey; F. W. Estabrook, of New Hampshire; Oscar S. Straus and Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr. Frank H. Hitchcock had to leave at noon for Chicago. He held a long conference with Mr. Hughes at the Hotel Astor immediately upon the nominee's arrival in the morning. Every one at the luncheon agreed that the Maine election had taught some lessons. It was said that the Democrats had first-class organizations in all the principal cities of Maine, which was responsible for the Republican vote not being larger. Taking a leaf from the Democrats' book, the Republicans will attempt to form similar organizations in all the important States. One Republican leader said yesterday that if they had been as well organized in Maine as the Democrats were, they would have had a plurality of 25,000 at least.

On his arrival in the city Mr. Hughes went to his headquarters in the Hotel Astor and met several prominent Republicans, among them Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, Hamilton Holt, President Schurman of Cornell, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, and Senator James H. Brady of Idaho. Senator Smoot had an hour's private talk with Mr. Hughes. Mr. Hughes said of his Western trip:

"The trip which I have just concluded was a marked success. Everywhere there was a great deal of interest shown and the cordiality of the people was marked. In this respect the situation in Maine was no different from that of other States. I feel that there is a real basis for confidence in the result. The management of the campaign is effective, and I am perfectly satisfied."

WANT TO BET ON HUGHES.

Wall Street Commissioners Say They Can't Find Wilson Money.

In the offers of election betting on the Broad Street curb and in Stock Exchange offices yesterday the odds on Hughes widened to 2 to 1, but so far as could be learned no bets were recorded by any of the commissioners at that or any other odds.

Edward McQuade, one of the commissioners on the curb, said that he had been trying all day to put all or any part of $5,000 on Hughes at 2 to 1, but had not been able to get down a nickel. A member of the Stock Exchange said he had a customer willing to put a large sum at the same odds, but had heard of no Wilson money.

G. O. P. STATE CONFERENCE.

Hughes Will Indorse Whitman at Saratoga Sept. 28.

The Republican State Executive Committee decided yesterday to hold a State conference at Saratoga on Sept. 28. A platform will be drawn up and Presidential electors selected. Charles E. Hughes has promised to address the conference in the evening.

Mr. Hughes, in his address, it was said yesterday, would come out with an indorsement of Charles S. Whitman for Governor. Governor Whitman has insisted on this to offset stories recently published that Mr. Hughes had told his friends that he considered Mr. Whitman and William M. Calder a weight upon his campaign. Governor Whitman was nettled at these reports and told members of the National Committee that it was absolutely necessary for Mr. Hughes to make a public appearance in his behalf for the good of the ticket in New York State.

Those who will take part in the Saratoga conference are the 150 members of the State Committee, Senator Wadsworth and the United States Senatorial nominee, the forty-three candidates for Congress, the 150 Assembly nominees, the fifty-one State Senate nominees, the County Chairmen and delegates from each Assembly district to be selected by the various County Committees.

WILSONS AT SHADOW LAWN.

President and His Wife Return After Visit to His Sister.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 13.—The President and Mrs. Wilson reached Shadow Lawn shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon, returning from New London, where they had been since Monday in attendance on Mrs. Anne E. Howe, the President's sister, who has been critically ill with peritonitis. They left New London at 6 o'clock this morning on the Mayflower, landing on the New Jersey shore at Sandy Hook, where an automobile from Shadow Lawn was waiting for them.

The Mayflower was kept in hourly touch by wireless with the submarine station at New London, so that the President might receive constant reports on his sister's condition, and her physicians have been instructed to notify Shadow Lawn immediately if any marked change occurs.

Mr. Wilson was reluctant to leave New London, but Mrs. Howe's physicians and members of the family advised him strongly to go. They told him that, from now on, his sister would be under the influence of opiates a large part of the time and would be unable to recognize him, and that, even should she be conscious of his presence, it would be likely to excite her and prejudice any slight chance she might have for improvement. These considerations, with the pressure of official business accumulating here, finally induced the President to leave.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 13.—Mrs. Anne Howe, President Wilson's sister, who is critically ill here, is gradually losing strength, her physicians announced tonight. A bulletin issued at 9 o'clock by Dr. E. P. Davis of Philadelphia and Dr. H. M. Lee of this city said:

"Mrs. Howe has been comfortable throughout the day. There is a perceptible loss in strength tonight."

DUNNE AND LOWDEN WIN IN ILLINOIS CONTESTS

Democrats Give the Governor 80,000 Plurality—Lowden Gets 75,000 from Republicans.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Governor Edward F. Dunne, Democrat, was renominated in today's primaries. Colonel Frank O. Lowden of Ogle County won the Republican Gubernatorial nomination. Governor Dunne won by a plurality exceeding 80,000, handily defeating William B. Brinton, who was supported by the Roger C. Sullivan faction of the Democracy. Governor Dunne received a large vote down-State, which the Sullivanites could not overcome in Cook County.

Colonel Lowden defeated Senator Morton D. Hull and Colonel Frank L. Smith by an apparent plurality of 75,000.

The battle for Congressional nominations was particularly bitter in the Chicago districts. Incomplete returns indicate that Medill McCormick and Burnett M. Chiperfield have received the Republican nominations for Congressman at Large. William E. Williams, present Representative, and Everett Jennings seem to be the Democratic nominees on the face of partial returns.

James R. Mann, Republican leader in the House, is renominated in the Second Congressional District, defeating the Rev. Melbourne P. Boynton, anti-saloon candidate, by approximately 15,000 votes. Ex-Senator Lorimer, seeking the Republican nomination in the Sixth Congressional District, was defeated by Arthur W. Fulton by about 2,000 votes.

Several of the representatives in Congress had little opposition, among them being Martin B. Madden, Democrat, First District; A. J. Sabath, Democrat, Fifth District; James McAndrews, Democrat, Sixth District; Fred A. Britten, Republican, Ninth District, and George Edmund Foss, Republican, Tenth District.

The seats of James T. McDermott and Frank Buchanan, Democrats, are insecure on the face of scattered returns. McDermott apparently has been defeated by Alderman Charles Martin, Sullivan candidate.

Buchanan, supported by the labor unions, was opposed for the Democratic nomination by Michael Dominowski and John Edward Van Natta. Buchanan relied almost solely on labor unions to furnish him votes to obtain a renomination and practically ignored the Democratic organizations. Apparently Dominowski has won.

In the Eleventh—the Joliet-Aurora-Elgin district—Ira C. Copley, Republican incumbent, was opposed by Frank W. Shepperd, who had the old Federal machine backing. Copley apparently won by 4,500 plurality.

There was a remarkable falling off in voting by women in Chicago and throughout the State. The women in Chicago apparently did not cast more then 18 per cent. of the total vote.

Congress Contests in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 13.—Unofficial but nearly complete returns from yesterday's Democratic primary indicated today that ex-Governor Jared Y. Sanders was nominated to succeed Representative Lewis Morgan from the Sixth District by a majority of about 1,000 votes. In the Seventh District, where there was a three-cornered fight, Representative L. Lazaro appeared to have defeated his two opponents, T. A. Edwards and A. M. Barbe, by a small plurality. A second primary may be necessary.

Arizona's Governor Is Renominated.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 13.—Returns indicate the renomination of Governor George W. P. Hunt, Democrat, in yesterday's primary, by a majority of about 3,000. Tom Campbell, Republican, was unopposed for the Gubernatorial nomination. Henry Ashurst, Democrat, and Joseph H. Kibbey, Republican, were nominated for the United States Senate. Congressman Carl Hayden, Democrat, was renominated. The Republican nomination is still in doubt.

Carlson Leads in Colorado.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 13.—On the face of returns, Governor George A. Carlson was nominated by the Republicans in yesterday's primary as a candidate to succeed himself. With 396 precincts heard from, Carlson's vote was 15,596, while that of Samuel D. Nicholson of Leadville, his opponent, was 14,913. At Carlson's headquarters it was estimated the Governor would be nominated by at least 2,000. Mr. Nicholson's managers refused to concede defeat.

RUSSIAN OPERAS TO BE SUNG HERE

BY BOSTON OPERA COMPANY

Although it had generally been understood that the Boston Grand Opera Company would not be heard here this season because no opera house was available for its use, it was learned yesterday the organization, which is under the direction of Max Rabinoff, will give a week of opera here early in November, just prior to the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House. The theatre to be used will be Oscar Hammerstein's newest opera house on Lexington Avenue and Fiftieth Street.

This week of opera, among other things, will give New York the first Russian opera sung in the original tongue it has ever had. A prospectus issued by Mr. Rabinoff shows Rubinstein's "Demon" and Rachmaninoff's "Aleko," both Russian operas, as works in the répertoire, and it is understood these will figure in the engagement here. Another important work is Giordano's "Andrea Chenier," which will be almost a novelty, since it has not been heard here for many years. Mascagni's "Iris," with Tamaki Miura, the Japanese soprano, in the title rôle, will also be given, and Montemezzi's "The Love of the Three Kings," a comparatively new work.

The company will also give while here a special performance of Verdi's Requiem, in which four of its most important singers will be heard as soloists. They are Luisa Villani, soprano; Maria Gay, contralto; Giovanni Zenatello, tenor, and José Mardones, bass. This probably will be done with local choral organizations assisting the opera company's chorus. A special scenic setting has been devised for the Requiem, representing the interior of a cathedral.

One of the novelties will be scenery for "Iris" designed by the Japanese artist, Ikuma Arishima of Tokio. The ballet will be a feature of the company and its membership includes sixteen dancers who were here with the Diaghileff ballet last season.

Among the principal artists of the company will be Elvira Amazar, Tamaki Miura, Maggie Teyte, and Luisa Villani, sopranos; Maria Gay and Elvira Leveroni, contraltos; Enrico Arensen, Riccardo Martin, and Giovanni Zenatello, tenors; and George Baklanoff, Thomas Chalmers, Paolo Ananian, José Mardones, and Eugenio Mariacheff, baritones and basses. The musical director is Roberto Moranzoni, and the conductors include Fulgenzio Guerrieri, Adolf Schmid, and Alexander Smallens.

TO HEAD LUNACY BOARD.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Dr. Charles W. Pilgrim, Superintendent of the Hudson River State Hospital, was today appointed President of the State Lunacy Commission by Governor Whitman. The salary is $6,000 a year. Dr. James V. May, former head of the board, resigned some time ago to accept a similar place from the State of Massachusetts at nearly double the salary. Dr. Pilgrim is 57 years of age and has been head of the local and other hospitals for twenty-three years. He was appointed to the same position by Governor Higgins and served as President of the board in 1906-1907.

UP 20 HOURS IN A BALLOON.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—The balloon "Greater Philadelphia" which left this city last night, with three passengers, in a long distance flight to break the State record of 355 miles in twelve and one-half hours, descended at Woonsocket, R. I., today, according to a dispatch received here from Charles Y. Scully, one of the passengers. The balloon was in the air 20 hours and 15 minutes and covered a distance of about 250 miles.

The other passengers were Dr. Thomas E. Eldridge and George N. Storch, all members of the Philadelphia Aeronautical Recreation Society.

MOVE TO SAVE STIELOW.

New Affidavits Filed to Prove Condemned Man Innocent.

Affidavits which it is thought may save Charles Stielow from execution were served yesterday upon District Attorney Knickerbocker of Cattaraugus County by the attorneys for the defense. More than fifty affidavits have been drawn up and include statements from Dr. Bernard Glueck, the newly appointed psychiatrist at Sing Sing prison, where Stielow is confined pending the outcome of the hearing on Sept. 27 before Judge Rodenbach of Rochester, N. Y.

"Affidavits we have obtained from experts who have made microscopic examinations of the Stielow pistol and the bullets which killed the victims of the tragedy show conclusively," said Stuart M. Kohn, chief counsel for Stielow, "that the testimony given by Albert H. Hamilton, the firearms expert employed by the State at the trial of Stielow, was not correct. These experts made the examination of the pistol and the bullets only a few days ago, and they did so without charging a fee against the Stielow defense fund. I asked them what they would charge to make this examination and they promptly replied that they would do it for the honor of it."

Affidavits are presented showing the movements of Erwin King about the time of the murder and believed by the defense to go a long way toward confirming the confession King made to Mrs. Grace Humiston.

In confirmation of the King confession and showing that he did not retract for some time after his first conference with District Attorney Knickerbocker, the defense offers the affidavits of two Buffalo reporters, G. Stuart Berrill of The Buffalo Evening News, and Raymond C. Myer, of The Buffalo Times. Mr. Berrill in his affidavit said that he talked with King while the latter was confined in the Little Valley jail and King told him how he had murdered Phelps and Mrs. Wolcott, and when he asked King how he came to confess, the prisoner said because he thought it was the manly thing to do.

AWAIT MacMILLAN REPORT.

Head of Crocker Land Expedition Expected at Cape Breton Island.

The steamer Danmark, the second relief ship sent after Donald B. MacMillan and his associates of the Crocker Land expedition, who went into the north in 1914 to investigate land which Admiral Peary mistakingly thought he saw on his way to the pole, is expected to arrive at Sydney, Cape Breton Island, next week, it was said yesterday at the American Museum of Natural History, by one of the backers of the expedition. No message has been received from the Danmark since she started after the MacMillan party, but it is believed at the museum that the vessel is returning with all of the explorers safe on board. Ensign Fitzhugh Green, of the United States Navy, who went with the party and returned to America recently to make a report of the nonexistence of Crocker Land, is on his way to meet the Danmark.

Although the explorers were unable to find any land, they traveled extensively in the polar regions and, it is thought, will bring back much scientific information and data. MacMillan, when last heard from, was starting on a 1,000-mile journey across the ice. There is no positive information that he is on the Danmark, but the authorities at the museum do not believe that the vessel would return without him, and they are eagerly awaiting his report.

NED WAYBURN MARRIED.

Stage Director Wedded Marguerite Kirby, Former Actress, on Sept. 5.

Ned Wayburn, a prominent stage director of musical comedies, and Miss Marguerite Lee Kirby, daughter of William B. Kirby of Bridgeton, N. J., were married in Stamford, Conn., Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 5. The bride was formerly on the stage under the name of Mabel Woodrow, and played in a number of Mr. Wayburn's companies.

Mr. Wayburn has produced musical plays both here and in London. Last Winter he managed the Century for a brief season, and he is now Florenz Ziegfeld's stage director.

Toto Recovers His Dog Patty.

Patty has been restored to Toto, his master, and joy reigns again at the Hippodrome. Louis Barron, a chauffeur, of 507 East 179th Street, found the brindle bulldog that draws the Hippodrome clown across the ice in the ballet scene in front of a shop near the playhouse. The porter was trying to chase the pup away, and Barron rescued him and took him home. When he saw the clown's advertisement in yesterday's TIMES he returned Patty to Toto, and was handsomely rewarded.

Hodge Coming in "Fixing Sister."

William Hodge will come to New York within the next few weeks in a comedy by Lawrence Rising, entitled "Fixing Sister." The play was produced in Boston last Spring and ran there four months. The four acts of the play pass in a fashionable New York home. Mr. Hodge will be surrounded by the original cast of principals, among these being Miriam Collins, Jane Wheatley, Ida Hamilton Deane, Charles Canfield and George Lund.

Musical Revue for Castles in Air.

Edward F. Temple, who produced the first Hippodrome shows, is staging a musical revue with which Castles in the Air will begin its new season Thursday night, Sept. 28. The roof has been redecorated to represent a small corner of the arena of Plaza del Toro, Granada, and a burlesque of "Carmen" will be a feature of the program. Helen Trix, Ernest Hare, Patsy O'Hearn and Alice Van Ryker will head the cast, and the Marvelous Millers will dance.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Eddie Foy and his seven children have been engaged by Charles B. Dillingham and Florenz Ziegfeld to take a prominent part in their first revue at the Century. Hazel Dawn is another addition to the Century cast.

Before beginning her engagement in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Constance Collier will play a brief engagement in vaudeville in a romantic costume playlet. W. Lawson Butt is the latest addition to "The Merry Wives" cast. Mr. Butt will act the role of Ford.

Rehearsals of Zellah Covington's new comedy, "The Simp," were begun yesterday with a cast that included William Carey, Rose Wilbur, Mollie Campion, Howard Truesdale, Robert Blaylock, Charles Mussett, Lillian Van Arsdale, Richard Freeman, William Bittner, Adelbert Knott, Daisy Stampe, Russell Simpson, Frederick Guest, and the author, who will play the title part.

Paul Schindler will be the musical director of last year's Hippodrome show when it goes on tour next month. John Philip Sousa will return from Atlantic City for rehearsals next week.

Lumsden Hare has been engaged by William Faversham for the role of the General in G. B. Shaw's comedy, "Getting Married."

Bernard Granville has composed two songs, "The Road That Leads to You" and "Think of Me," and dedicated them to the Actors' Fund of America. The songs are being recorded by a phonograph company, and when the records are placed on sale a share of the profits will be donated to the charity.

A picture called "Idle Wives," based on a novel by James Oppenheim, will replace the current film offering at the Maxine Elliott next Monday night.

Sergeant John MacGregor, recently arrived from the trenches in France, where he served with a Canadian regiment of Kilties, will play the bagpipe during the showing of portions of the film, "The Daughter of MacGregor," at the Strand next week.

60,000 IN PARK HEAR COMMUNITY CHORUS

LIGHTS GLEAM OVERHEAD

Motor Cars and Rowboats Filled with Those Who Are Unable to Approach Closely.

A thousand lanterns gleamed last night among the trees and over the waters of the big lake in Central Park. On the north shore of the lake was a large platform over which were focused the rays of a score of incandescents that set off from the dark woods behind rows and rows of women in white dresses and scores of men grouped in the rear with song books in their hands. These were the members of the Community Chorus, and they had transformed Central Park for the evening to give their "Song and Light Festival," a form of entertainment new to New York.

It was an invisible audience they sang to. Beneath the dark trees it was scattered by the thousands along the east shore of the lake where the boathouse is; it thronged the big plaza by the Terrace Bridge and the Bethesda Fountain, and filled the high banks of the south shore up to the Bow Bridge. Its number was added to by persons in rowboats who heard the music from the lake, each boat dotted with colored lights.

Police and park officials said it was the largest crowd which had ever been in Central Park for a single event. Captain Edward J. Bourke of the Arsenal Station, who was in charge of the police arrangements, estimated the audience at 60,000. That did not take into account the little groups who gave up combatting the crowd and listened from benches hundreds of yards away, or the persons in automobiles which drew up at the sides of the distant roadways. The voices could be heard at a considerable distance.

Familiar Songs Are Sung.

The Community Chorus, which had thus transformed Central Park, is an organization of persons whose motto is: "Every one can sing—and wants to." All Summer it has been rehearsing—if you can call it that—by the bandstand in the Central Park Mall, and any one who happened by was entitled to sit down and join in, which act constituted him or her a member of the chorus on the spot. There are no voice trials, no examinations as to musical ability, and no dues. You simply sing the best you can, and let it go at that.

Last night they demonstrated what they had accomplished. They had an orchestra and a soloist, and all that sort of thing, and Harry Barnhart was there. The latter fact is important, for Harry Barnhart, who is called conductor on the program, is in reality the Community Chorus himself. The audience found that out before the evening was very far advanced.

About 9:30 in the evening they reached that part of the program called "Community Singing," under which were listed "Nancy Lee," "Old Black Joe" and "My Old Kentucky Home." Barnhart, who had been the life of the party for the chorus and officials on the platform side of the lake, remarked when they got to "Old Black Joe" that this was where he would get the people across the water. So he turned around and invited them to sing.

His chorus started "Old Black Joe," and suddenly stopped, and then those gathered around the platform could hear from the woods across the lake a mighty chorus of

I'm coming! I'm coming!
And my head is bending low!

Classics Not Neglected.

As the song rolled across the water from the absolutely invisible thousands, it had a strangely stirring effect, something that could not be duplicated in a thousand years of concert halls and opera houses. It seemed as if all the 60,000 were trying their best as the old melody of Stephen Foster rolled out, now one front and now another of the unseen singers sounding louder at different parts of the lake.

That was the high point of the evening. There was a long program, in which Wagner, Mozart, Haydn, and other composers figured, and it all went well and sounded attractive with the wooded hill of the north shore as a sounding board, but the large invisible chorus gave a thrill unlike any other.

During the evening the rumor got around among the chorus that somebody was so enthusiastic over the success that arrangements were to be made to defray the expenses of another festival night.

"Do we sing tomorrow night?" asked a deep bass voice from among the men singers during a lull in the proceedings.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Barnhart. "No angel has appeared as yet."

But apparently an "angel" did materialize before the evening was over, for late last night Arthur Farwell, who is President of the organization, called up the newspapers to say that the festival would be repeated this evening in full.

That perhaps will not be altogether good news for the force of policemen, drafted from strike duty, who handled the great crowd under the direction of Captain Bourke. A squad of Boy Scouts assisted and did good work, according to the Captain. One of their jobs was to pick up paper and litter the auditors threw on the ground, so as to keep the park in good order. One of the police precautions was to have half a dozen patrolmen in rowboats provided with ropes and life preservers, who patrolled the borders of the lake ready for accidents.

The soloist of the evening was Mme. Alma Simpson, who sang "Dich Theure Halle," from "Tannhäuser." Claude Bragdon was master of lights, and Frederic Watson assisted at the piano. Secretary L. W. Fehr of the Park Board welcomed the singers on behalf of Commissioner Cabot Ward, who had co-operated in the arrangements, and told them they had drawn the largest crowd in the history of park gatherings.

MRS. SEELYE SEEKS CASH.

Young Daughter of Aubrey Boucicault Sues for Allowance.

Mrs. Renée Boucicault Seelye, daughter of the late Aubrey Boucicault, the actor, and granddaughter of Dion Boucicault, applied in the Surrogates' Court yesterday for an allowance from her own estate, which is valued at $250,000. The suit showed that Mrs. Seelye, who is only 18 years old, is at outs both with her husband and her legal guardian. She contemplates a trip to Europe, the action revealed, having decided to make her separation from her husband permanent. The latter, Clarel R. Seelye, is advertising director of the Sterling Advertising Service. Mrs. Seelye's application charges that she has been supporting him.

Mrs. Seelye's income is from trust funds left to her by her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac E. Holbrook. She was married with the permission of the Surrogate in 1914, but left her husband on May 5 last. Her guardian, with whom she says her relations have been unpleasant of late, is Frederick C. Leubuscher, a lawyer. She said in her petition, filed by Leon Kauffman, that the net annual income of her estate was now $6,500, and that she was receiving an allowance of $4,500 for her maintenance under a decree of the Surrogate in 1914.

FEDERAL RATE MAKING SUPREME.

The United States District Court at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has refused an injunction against an increase of express rates within South Dakota, as ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Accordingly, on Friday the Federal zone and block rates will prevail over State-fixed rates. The South Dakota express rates were reduced by the State Commission on the order of the Legislature, "entirely in the interest of the consumer," according to The Sioux Falls Press. But the Sioux City jobbers complained that the rates were so low that they could not compete in the South Dakota market. The rates complained of had been judicially declared reasonable. It is not alleged that they are confiscatory. The case, therefore, is not the ordinary one of a complaint of a shipper against a carrier, or of a carrier against a commission, or of the reasonableness of an individual rate, or of the reasonableness of the relation of rates to one another. It is practically a case of a market in one State against the market in another State. It might almost be said that it is a case between States, or between South Dakota and the nation, since the rates disallowed and the rates established are both officially fixed.

The principle established is that the citizens of one State have a right to trade in another State on an equality with the citizens of that State. The principle condemned is that any State can create preference for its own citizens in its own markets, or can discriminate against the trade of citizens of another State by creating discriminations against them by rates officially declared and judicially approved. Cheapness to the consumers of South Dakota cannot be created at the expense of the loss of trade to Iowa jobbers, if that trade is taken away by discrimination in rates. The freedom of trade within the United States cannot be destroyed by predatory rate making, even with the assistance of commissions and local courts. The United States is the overlord and will keep a fair ring for the fight between competitors.

Here emerges another idea in rate making. Regulation started with rate fixing, passed into the regulation of profits, and now concerns itself with the regulation of markets. The older cases were personal. The later cases are official and political. The Federal court takes the stand that the Interstate Commerce Commission is superior to the General Assembly of South Dakota in the regulation of rates on business exclusively intrastate. The Federal power fixes the rates on business originating and terminating wholly within the State whose lawful rates were annulled because conflicting with the Federal rate system.

The case has aroused dissatisfaction locally. The Sioux Falls Press asks: "Is the right of the people of a State "to the least expensive carrier serv"ice commensurate with fair earn"ings for the carriers paramount? "Is rate regulation devoted to the "interests of a few business men in "neighboring States? Or is it in"tended for the benefit of the masses "of the people?" The Press makes common cause with Nebraska, where there is a similar disapproval for the supremacy of Federal over State rates. Thus The Lincoln Journal says:

> Class rates established by the State Commission are knocked galley west, (by the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission,) and if the railroads care to do so they have the permission of the Interstate Commission to establish rates in Nebraska higher than the old rates * * * which the railroads voluntarily established and enforced for years as reasonable. * * * The order means that the State Commissions may devote their entire time to ordering old depots fixed up and railroad crossings repaired, for they will be relieved of the duty of making rates of any importance. All this is in accord with the recent Republican platform adopted at Chicago, which foretold the doom of State rate making.

In the light of the Nebraska, South Dakota, Shreveport, and Illinois two-cent-fare cases, all along similar lines, the Republican platform seems behind the times. The plank reads: "The entire transportation system of "the country has become essentially "national. We, therefore, favor such "action by legislation, or, if neces"sary, through an amendment to the "Constitution of the United States, "as will result in placing it under "exclusive Federal control." There is plenty of comment in the States named to the effect that it is now under Federal control to an extent which disaffects them. The Interstate Commerce Commission was slow in getting to work, but, now that it is at work in the right direction, why should not the Republicans be content not to force the issue faster than there is need or may be prudent? Why should not the Democrats feel the same way about it? Why should politics or sectionalism enter into a question which is essentially national and commercial? Conceivably, if there had been an Interstate Commission with jurisdiction over slavery there might not have been a rebellion. Why take out of the jurisdiction of the Commission the question of continental free trade, so overwhelmingly important that the complaints of minor fractions of any section seem petty and unpatriotic in the sense of readiness to seek selfish advantage at the expense of general interests?

NO MORE OMNIBUSES.

The proposal to call out of committee in the Board of Estimate the motor bus franchises which have been happily suppressed for a year or so, and pass them, as a means of relieving the city while the street railroad strike prevails, is entirely illogical. The bus franchises would be permanent. The public objection to them is that traffic in Manhattan is already too greatly congested to warrant the introduction of more motor buses on the thoroughfares. The temporary relief any new vehicles of that sort could give would be postponed for a month, if not longer. Nobody expects the carmen's strike to last that long.

The complaint of overcrowded streets would be heard on every hand if this proposal should be seriously received. If we are going to have a general motor bus service in Manhattan we must stop most of the street railway traffic permanently. Doubtless the promoters of the new motor omnibus lines thought they had made a good play, but they were mistaken. We can put up with the temporary jitney service while the strike lasts, but we can have no permanent clogging of city traffic by hundreds of new omnibuses.

SETTLE IT.

Inasmuch as Mr. FITZGERALD, in reciting the terms on which arbitration would be satisfactory to him, virtually confesses that the traction strike is a failure by asking that provision be made for the return of the strikers to their old places when the trouble is over, we imagine that the officers of the Interborough Company will, on reflection, perceive that it would be the part of wisdom and good sense for them to join in an effort to adjust the pending differences substantially on the plan proposed by the Mayor and the Public Service Commission. The company says that "it cannot arbi"trate its right to enter into agree"ments with 10,306 of its employés "out of a total of 11,800." Its "right" to enter into these individual contracts is unquestionable, it is not involved in the second finding of the Mayor and Mr. STRAUS. The question they proposed as one fit for arbitration is not the right of the company to make these contracts, but whether the making of them was contrary to the agreement of Aug. 6. That is a matter of construction and interpretation. It is very clearly one the company can, without loss of honor, dignity, standing, or any other valuable thing, submit to an impartial adjudication. The third question suggested for arbitration, that is, whether the Interborough Company procured the acceptance of these contracts by fraud, misrepresentation, coercion, or intimidation, is not one which it could well be asked to have arbitrated. It would facilitate the adjustment if that question were dropped.

The Mayor puts the case very clearly when he says that the purpose of the memorandum issued by himself and the Commission was "to get the "situation back to the position of "Aug. 30, when the company and the "men were still conferring. From that "we hope to trace it back further "still to the agreement of Aug. 6." That is the plain, straight way to a settlement, honorable to both sides, and it holds out the promise that the goal will be reached, to the great relief of a much inconvenienced and disgusted community.

That would correct the error of having arbitration in the middle of a strike instead of before its beginning. It would seem to be necessary that there should be an interpretation of the agreement of Aug. 6. If it stands in the way of an incontestable right of the Interborough to make contracts with its own men, reason would call for its amendment, as the company can hardly be expected to surrender so much. Mr. FITZGERALD's point that the right of the men to organize and to form a union is involved need not stand in the way. The Interborough people do not deny that right. It would be futile if they did, for the right to organize is everywhere admitted. The situation is that they deal with their men now through collective bargaining. Their men have formed a union which appears to please them better than Mr. FITZGERALD's sort of union. What the company does insist on is that Mr. FITZGERALD should not be allowed to coerce its men into joining his union. Upon that point public opinion will, of course, support the company.

The Mayor and the Public Service Commission find that both sides have sinned in some respects, therefore it is meet that both should come forward, if not in repentance, at least in a reasonable mood, with a disposition to yield minor and unessential points rather than prolong the strike. It is a failure, it was foredoomed to failure, it has broken down into a sort of guerrilla warfare. The Interborough Company has maintained its service and the street railway companies are improving theirs every day. But the annoyance is still very great and the public has had quite enough of it. The way to settle it is to settle it.

SARRAIL'S LONG-SILENT GUNS.

The fighting in the Balkans has been for politics. There has been no real offensive and no sign of one, so far as the south is concerned, and no offensive in the north except Rumania's and the counterattempt to stop her. SARRAIL's army of French and British remained passive while on all the other fronts the Allies were attacking Germany and ringing themselves around her. The Russians held the Germans in the north while they drove the Austrians before them in the south, but SARRAIL remained motionless. JOFFRE began his Franco-British offensive on the Somme, but there was no sign from SARRAIL. CADORNA captured Gorizia and added his share to the hammering of Austria, and still SARRAIL did not move.

Then there came news that Russian and Italian forces had been added to the French and British at Saloniki, and an advance was expected, but none came. Fighting was reported, and the conclusion was jumped at that this was the Saloniki drive, but it was not. The Bulgarians were simply making an incursion into Greece. Then Rumania entered the war, and invaded Transylvania. Instantly the Bulgarians and their allies sought to disconcert this invasion by an advance into southeastern Rumania. The invasion was not disconcerted; it went steadily on. But to prevent the dislocation of the Rumanian plan the French and British have come to the rescue with an assault on Bulgaria from the south. This may be the long-expected drive, but there is as yet nothing to prove it. Its object appears to be the protection of Rumania while she proceeds with her attack on Transylvania. If it accomplishes its purpose and relieves Rumania from the counter-invasion, SARRAIL may relapse again into the strange quiet which he has maintained while every front but his was thundering and flaming.

This torpor of SARRAIL's, which is, of course, a torpor imposed upon him by JOFFRE's command, is the present mystery of the war. It is a political torpor, just as the Bulgarian attack on Greece, misinterpreted at first as the beginning of a drive by the Allies, was a political attack. The Franco-British army at Saloniki was held while political negotiations went on, and when the Russians and Italians joined it political negotiations still held them all. It was not because they were not ready in a military sense that they were not allowed to move; to suppose that would be to suppose that Rumania was allowed to begin an attack in which her allies were unready to support her, and thus invite disaster. The Bulgarian attack on Greece, apparently a foolhardy thing, was made because the Bulgarians knew the Saloniki army would not or could not stop them. They incurred no danger of being crushed. The Bulgarians knew the political situation. They have apparently counted on the continuance, for the time, of this immunity, and attacked Rumania. This was too much, and the Allies have stirred; but they have stirred only enough to save Rumania and not enough to bring on the great battle of the Balkans.

Politics has been the Commander in Chief in the Balkans, and is still. The political game, however, must by this time have been played nearly to its end. The real Balkan campaign must be in sight.

AN UNFORTUNATE ISSUE.

Nobody outside the State of Georgia will be disposed to pass any criticism upon the fact of Mr. HUGH M. DORSEY's triumph in the State primary held on Tuesday, when he was made the Democratic candidate for Governor by a very large majority. It is the "issue" upon which support for him was sought, it is the character of the appeal made to the people in his behalf that are the cause for misgiving. The canvass which brought about Mr. DORSEY's nomination was very largely made upon the basis of anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic prejudice, and Mr. THOMAS E. WATSON's publication, which is frankly devoted to the propagation of racial and religious antipathies, was most active in his support.

Mr. DORSEY was the Solicitor General who conducted the prosecution of LEO M. FRANK for murder. FRANK was convicted, the death sentence was commuted by Governor SLATON, and FRANK was afterward lynched by a mob. It is entirely the affair of the people of Georgia if they wish to reward a public servant for performance of duty. But it cannot be to their interest that a political campaign should be made upon issues of race and religion. When passion of that kind is stirred the electorate is little inclined to scrutinize the qualifications of the candidate for the office to which he aspires. All other questions, interests, and concerns are lost in that issue, and that the least worthy of all. It is much too late in the history of civilization for the cropping out in this enlightened Republic of these outworn bigotries.

It was charged in Mr. DORSEY's campaign that outside interests had contributed a large fund to secure his defeat in the primary as a punishment for the part he took in the trial of FRANK. The charge was untrue, like many others made during that campaign, but if any outside interest or organization had desired to inflict the greatest possible harm upon the State of Georgia and its people, it could have found no better way than that devised by his friends and supporters in making their choice of issues for the primary contest. It is deplorable that such questions should have been raised in the State of Georgia and that there should have been such a response.

A DOLLAR A MINUTE.

Invitations to contribute to campaign funds throng the mails. All parties are crying for the root of all evil, which doesn't fall into the campaign chests with the ease of the bad old days of "fat-frying." The Republican Club of North Yakima, in the State of Washington, has a financial plan whose merit, whose original genius, is worthy of the Northwest and to be recommended everywhere. A Dollar-a-Minute luncheon was the crown of the club's primary campaign. All candidates and their friends were invited. Every Republican candidate had to pay $1 for every minute of his speech. The minimum was $2. Non-candidates were allowed to air their eloquence on the platform at the rate of $2 a minute. No deduction was made for applause or interruption. An exemplary fine was levied for the use of ancient platform decorations, like "view with alarm," "efficiency and economy," "point with pride," "firmness," and "vacillation."

A sublime and productive scheme. While it tends to conciseness of speech, what a host of candidates and orators will not be restrained, even by the size of the bill, from occupying an hour. The assessments for cant and moldy phrases, the commonplaces of political harangue, would amount to millions. Every speaker would be fettered by the iron law of Pay or Shut Up. North Yakima has tapped an inexhaustible source of campaign contributions.

JAPAN AND CHINA.

Having by reason of the war practically a free hand in China, disorganized by revolution, sectional jealousies and pecuniary troubles, Japan, one with Russia since their treaty of July as to "their territorial rights or special interests" in the Far East, inevitably proceeds with her policy of economic expansion, accompanied with what might be described as political and military penetration, what she would perhaps call the protection of her interests in China, interests which she has every advantage of position, and, more, of fortune, to enlarge. The Chengchiatun incident of August in Eastern Mongolia was of the kind which European Powers have habitually taken advantage of to serve their territorial aims or commercial ambitions. It is only the United States that is in a position, by its disinterested dealings with China, to criticise, if it merits criticism, the Chinese policy of Japan since the war began.

The Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs, replying to inquiries made by the American Ambassador by instruction of our State Department, affirms that:

> The clash at Chengchiatun, being between military forces, was of a serious character, and, therefore, in order to prevent a recurrence of such trouble, Japan was requesting, in addition to proper apologies and monetary compensation, that Japanese officers should be reappointed as instructors in the cadet school, (probably at Mukden,) and suggesting that the Chinese Government should ask for the appointment of Japanese advisers to be stationed with Chinese garrisons in South Manchuria and Eastern Mongolia, and that, as an extension of its ex-territorial rights, the Japanese Government should be permitted to station Japanese policemen in towns where there are large Japanese settlements.

The Minister declares that nothing in the demands infringes Chinese sovereignty or impairs the Root-Takahira agreement. While there is no mention here of those special interests which Japan was reported to have demanded, the demand for police rights and for the appointment of Japanese military advisers in Southern Manchuria and Eastern Mongolia is differently interpreted at Tokio and in Peking. The State Department's interpretation will doubtless be reached after a fuller knowledge of the facts than is accessible to the public. So long as no exclusive rights and privileges are granted to Japan, so long as the Japanese Government keeps the door open, Washington will have no cause of complaint. In the interim of the war the status quo has a way of advancing. After the war Great Britain and other Powers with great interests in China will have their part in the discussion. There is no reason to suppose that Japan has any other than friendly intentions toward the United States, but naturally she is most friendly to herself, and for the moment she is almost in a position to be judge of her own cause. But her statesmen are too wise to irritate China to the extreme of a commercial boycott; and they can have no intention to diminish the treaty rights of the United States. It is not obstruction of the open door that has kept the United States from her proper part in developing the resources of China. It is the still provincial horizon of the American people, their want of interest, prosperous as they have so long been in their own mighty domains, in foreign enterprise. That horizon has been widened by the war, but slowly. It is only by investing money in China, specially friendly to us, that we shall acquire a position and exert an influence in the Far East proportionate to our national wealth and power. Japan is on the spot, and equal to, if not invariably tactful in the use of, her rich opportunities.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Warned by Ills of Neighbors. There is little chance—probably none at all—that New York City is to have imposed on it an ordinance like that which now aggravates the traction situation up in Westchester County. In ordinary times, of course, a plausible argument can be made for prohibiting the employment as motorman or conductor by any urban transportation company of men who have not had fifteen days of competent instruction in the performance of their duties. The likelihood, indeed, that the companies at any time willingly would endanger their property and their service, as well as risk a lot of damage suits, by putting on their cars men without whatever amount of training their work requires, is so small as to be hardly worth considering, but these corporations are not much loved anywhere, and many ears are pleased by the stern promulgation against them of an order not to do almost anything that really or seemingly would inconvenience or imperil the public.

It is because this view of the matter, and only this view, was taken by the citizens of Yonkers, Mount Vernon, and New Rochelle that the fifteen-day ordinance was passed there without exciting any protests. Its passage, however, while never of measurable advantage to the patrons of the car lines, causes a complete suspension of traffic to begin as soon as does a street car strike, and to last till the strike ends. Naturally, the strikers like it, and, as naturally, local politicians, with a deep respect for the vote of any large and well-organized group, are willing to earn valuable favor by action which, when taken, pleases such a group and offends nobody.

Here and now the pleasing cannot be done so easily. Our Aldermen may introduce, and our Aldermen even might pass, an ordinance of this kind, but its real purpose and only effect are now so well known that its final validation is hardly conceivable. Almost any street car service is better than none at all, and though nobody is very fond of the strikebreaking fraternity, or feels its members to be the best of guardians for life and limb, yet they have their uses as a temporary expedient. At least they hasten in one way or another the termination of a street car strike, and that is invariably what the general public wants, with no strong concern as to the method of attainment.

He Waited to Get a Reward. An interesting and even important question in both morals and civics is raised by the incidents connected with the arrest out in Michigan of the man WALTONEN, who is reported to have confessed the murder in this city of Mrs. ELIZABETH NICHOLS. That crime, involving, as it did, a form of treachery from which no employer of domestic servants not thoroughly known as to character and associates is quite safe, attracted much uneasy notice at the time of its commission, and the efforts of the police to capture the murderers have been properly persistent.

The devices used for the attainment of this end included the wide distribution of circulars describing the man who presumably strangled Mrs. NICHOLS. One of these circulars led to the recognition of WALTONEN in the shop where he was working as a barber, but it did not lead to his immediate denunciation and arrest. Instead, the first and only effectual thought of the recognizer was of getting the offered reward, and, until that had been arranged to his satisfaction, he revealed neither his own identity nor the criminal's hiding place.

It would be going too far, perhaps, to say that if there had been no reward there would have been no arrest by this particular detective, but his resort to an anonymous communication in the "Personal" column of a Chicago paper as a means of obtaining the assurance he sought shows that he thought of the reward more than, or at least as much as, he did of performing his duty as a citizen. The delay thus caused easily might have led to the criminal's escape from the punishment he deserves as thoroughly as any murderer could. Had that occurred, the man who discovered him in the barber shop would have been a proper object of severest criticism and possibly liable to prosecution for interference with justice.

As usual, the offer of a reward for the apprehension of a criminal had a bad effect as well as a good one. The sort of zeal it inspires not infrequently brings about a desirable result, but the indirect consequences are demoralizing in several ways, and especially in that of making more or less perfunctory the pursuit of criminals when there is no money to be gained by it.

They Find a Way to Help. From all over the British Empire, according to a dispatch from London, many of its sons and not a few of its daughters are sending to the Government sums of money to assist it in meeting the expenses of the war. The gifts range from a few shillings taken from the tin banks of children to checks for hundreds of pounds given by well-to-do men and business firms unsatisfied with the amounts they are contributing in the shape of taxes. They come from those who for one or another reason cannot render direct and immediate service as soldiers.

Probably the lightening thus effected in the enormous financial burdens borne by Great Britain is no more than slightly appreciable, but the impulse toward patriotic sacrifice that finds expression is an admirable one.

Of course that impulse has not been felt by the "conscientious objectors" to war, no matter for what purpose waged or by whom. Their ambition is only to prove the possession of a virtue superior to that of the men who are fighting for their country, and they protest against everything except sharing the benefits of a victory so rudely gained.

It really is a pity that no convenient means of sparing the "conscientious objector" this form of inconsistency has been found—no way to make him realize that consciences are not always either the best or the safest of guides.

TEUTONIC ALLIANCE PLANS.

Chamberlain's Experience and the Efforts Which Followed.

Siasconset, Mass., Sept. 10, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. Gotthell deserves the thanks of your readers for the letter in which he so effectively directed the searchlight of history upon Professor Münsterberg's "meditation" upon a future alliance of Germany, America, and Great Britain. I was living in Berlin at the time when Mr. Chamberlain fell into the German trap described by Dr. Gotthell, and I well remember the mocking chorus of the "reptile" press commanded by Prince von Bülow upon the incident. But I also remember, with peculiar satisfaction, the masterly manner in which some six years later the British Ambassador in Berlin turned the tables on Mr. Chamberlain's tricksters.

Not once, but many times in the meantime, Count von Bülow, as he then was, had put into practice the "principle" he so amiably explains in his political memoirs of cultivating the friendship of Great Britain for the attainment of objects hostile to her interests. Finally, after a peculiarly flagrant example of this perfidy in China, the cup of British bitterness overflowed and the directors of British diplomacy decided to refrain from all further co-operation with Germany. They approached France and devoted themselves to the task of settling the disputes with that country which Germany had systematically endeavored to aggravate.

Unable to believe that the British had really seen through his diplomatic game the German Chancellor instructed Count von Metternich, the Ambassador in London, to hoodwink "the nincompoops"—as the Kaiser affectionately styled the British Cabinet—afresh. Count von Metternich accordingly visited the British Ambassador at Berlin and pathetically complained that in no corner of the world would British diplomacy lift a finger to help Germany. He preferred to attribute this attitude to the influence of Mr. Chamberlain, whom von Bülow had grossly insulted during the Boer war for daring to mention the contemptible British Army in the same breath with the heroic and sacrosanct German Army. Count von Metternich indulged in a homily at the expense of Mr. Chamberlain, saying it was a pity so "great" a statesman should permit his policy to be actuated by a "petty" feeling of spite. The British Ambassador listened politely and then innocently asked—an exact record of this conversation, by the way, is contained in the German Foreign Office record and was published at the time as the result of an indiscretion:

"Do you remember, Count, how Count von Bülow some years ago at Windsor drew Mr. Chamberlain into a corner and spoke to him with enthusiasm of the desirability of a triple alliance of Germany, Great Britain, and the United States?"

The German Ambassador confessed to having heard something of the matter.

"And do you remember, Count," Sir Frank Lascelles proceeded, "how Mr. Chamberlain subsequently, somewhat indiscreetly perhaps, advocated in a speech the idea so warmly recommended to him by Count von Bülow?"

The German Ambassador said he did remember that.

"Do you also remember," the British Ambassador sweetly pursued, "how, when that speech was published, the German press jeered at it and how the semi-official organs of Count von Bülow rejected it with contempt?"

"No," said Count Metternich, "I do not remember that."

"Well," responded the British Ambassador, "Mr. Chamberlain remembers it perfectly."

It is, I think, eminently worth while to recall this conversation, and the circumstances prompting it, at a moment when the Kaiser's representatives are once more attempting to hoodwink the English-speaking public.

W. F. BULLOCK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Choate is out for Mr. Hughes. What in the world is the meaning of that? Is it a backfire? Mr. Choate is a lawyer and a diplomat to boot, (which may imply a lot.) Is he really trying to dampen the hyphen element for the advantage of Mr. Wilson? Diplomats work in devious ways. Mr. Roosevelt is out for Mr. Hughes. Mr. Roosevelt is (apparently) the most honest, the frankest, and the most outspoken public man we have ever had in the United States. To hear him talk makes one believe that he would bare his innermost soul to convince his fellow-citizens of his sincerity. Why does not he and Mr. Choate as well come out into the open? What (assuming that these gentlemen are sincere in their international views) confidential understanding have they had with Mr. Hughes?

P. F. O'BRIEN.

A "World Paper."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like the privilege of suggesting that a "world paper" be established, published once in each twenty-four hours at all the great centres of the earth, with identical articles, but each in the particular language of its community.

WILLIAM S. B. DANA.

Grantwood, N. J., Sept. 11, 1916.

THE PATTERAN.

Sultry, southern, soft September! Summer holds her scented breath
At the glory she has garnered for December's icy death!

Where the cypress vine is scarlet, where the quail are whistling free,
All the gypsy winds are calling—calling, calling, calling me!

Oh! to leave the little sorrows, little joys and strifes behind,

For I've trod the trails they beckon, in the long and long ago!
In my dreams they drift to haunt me, like a voice I used to know!

Swift today were I, as ever, were my feet unbound and bare—
Did I loose its dusky masses, just as long and black my hair!

I would seek my nomad kinsmen! 'Twixt the stars and balsam straw,
Would I find the creed forgotten—live by Truth instead of Law!

Will I follow? Nay; the calling of my neighbor's gods is strong;
And they hush the wistful whisper with their whimpered Right and Wrong!

In the ashes of my dreaming, when my dreaming youth is through,
I shall weep its wasted wonder!—Comrade, is the dream with you?

Is it that, in each September's sentient, southern, saffron span,
You must hush its gypsy voices—pass its silent patteran?

CONFESSIONS OF A CENSOR.

Delightful Bits From the Many Soldiers' Letters Which Pass Under His Eye.

From a Member of the British Censoring Staff.

A CERTAIN POSTAL STATION IN AN ALLIED COUNTRY, Aug. 15, 1916.—One of the oddest things about censoring is the easy way in which one takes to reading other people's private correspondence. Shades of the past, when one averted an honorable eye from the letter lying half open on a friend's (or even an enemy's) desk! And here I sit, because it is war time, before a large table covered with serried rows of letters, with instructions to open them all and search diligently therein for, first, information likely to be useful to the enemy; second, anything likely to discourage recruiting, and third, false information likely to alarm or depress a credulous public.

After one uneasy day I take to it as a duck to water, and the qualms of a lifetime vanish. My inquisitive nose goes impartially into business letters, family letters, love letters and letters written simply to pass away the time. There are more family letters and love letters than any other kind, though I suspect that they are also partly the result of idleness and the franking system.

The little room in which we sit is a cell in the large hive of a hospital in the war zone, and the writers of these letters are either sick or wounded, and their first thought is to write of their safety and welfare. This does not take the form of long descriptions of illness or wounds. The great majority of men linger long and lovingly over the hospital menu, with its four meals a day, and make a grateful reference to the kindness of doctors and nurses, but the cause of their being in hospital is dismissed as a "septic wound," or "that ferocious 'trouble,' the foe of the British soldier, call' dysentery." Suffering is rarely mentioned, but most writers seem to prefer wounds to dysentery.

Among many Spartans one, however, stands out who wrote that, barring pneumonia, and a coming "oppertshon" on his "thum," he feels well in himself. Very little comment is made on the country and surroundings, though the writers are probably out of England for the first time. For one reason the patients are carried from ship to bed in a closed ambulance, but even to those allowed in the grounds the only subjects worthy of mention are the perpetual sun, "the same as we call in England hot," says one cautious writer, and the "antiques" of the night-gowned inhabitants, which in this sense does not mean antiquities. Only a budding Münchausen, with the willing assistance of idle friends in the ward, occasionally undertakes to comment on the customs of the country to some credulous friend in an English hamlet. On the other hand, the sight of electric trams is greeted with delight in scores of letters, and commented on with loving detail.

There are several things which make reading these letters easier than at first seems possible, when one is dismayed by the sight of hundreds of pencil-scrawled pages. To begin with, few letters are very long, with the exception of a percentage of rambling love letters, and the formula of beginning and end takes up a certain amount of space. "I write these few lines, hoping to find you in the best of health. As I am glad to say I am in the Pink. (The fact of being in hospital is not allowed to interfere with purity of style.) Right back soon. From your loving soldier husband to my dearest loving wife and darling children," or "Fondest love from your ever-loving," is the usual beginning and end, with a suitable arrangement of crosses for kisses. Crosses occur in all letters except business ones, and are bestowed on men friends and also on young ladies to whom the writer signs himself "Yours truly."

Between these formulas the censor's eye travels rapidly over a glancing reference to health, a description of the day's routine, with careful analysis of the food, a request for parcels, and a lament for those which have never arrived. Messages to friends and inquiries about the children and the letter is read. Welsh letters are flowery, and Irish letters illiterate, with references to the Holy Mother, and requests to tell innumerable Mikes and Pats and Katies that he was after asking for them. There is another type of letter that is infinitely more trouble. It is well written, in a small hand, and very long. The writer does not feel in the Pink, nor are kisses included. He thinks and comments on what he sees, and speculates, generally wrong, and gives names, and altogether the censor curses his power of skating on the thin ice of what may not be said.

As for love letters, you may think that knowing they are to be read by the censor reduces them to letters unworthy of the name, missives of an early Victorian propriety. The married man writing a devoted, affectionate letter to his wife upon family matters is far more disturbed at the idea of the censoring to follow than the ardent lover, who lavishes kisses and endearments brazenly throughout the letter. He even writes, S. W. A. K., (sealed with a kiss,) across the open flap of the envelope, cheerfully unconscious that the censor, who does not include kisses in his war work, performs the office with some mechanical device, or, simpler still, a damp rag. He occasionally shakes one's faith by writing identical letters to two or more girls. Love, not being a normal condition, incites him to bashfulness; sometimes he is even untruthful, and quite often fatuous. Certain lovers become literary under the influence of the hospital library, but even this does not excuse the romantic and untruthful soul, who, after the opening formula, "I write these few lines, hoping to find you in the best of health. As I am glad to say I feel in the Pink," included a poem, which he said he had dashed off in an idle moment. It began:

With purple softness on the gray are set,
My amethystine blossoms on the grass.

Let us hope that the divergence in style makes less impression on the young lady than it does on us. Another young gentleman whom we only knew as Albert wrote to his sister that he could not break off with Bella, as it would break her heart. After reviewing the situation critically he decides that there is nothing to be done, and that they must remain engaged. "God! how she loves me!" he concludes quite simply. We turn with relief from him to a Maori writing to a fellow-warrior. "God be with us 'til we meet again," he says, "but look out for them dam Turkey." An excellent sentiment whether the foe be Turk or Hun.

But, whether they treat of love or other matters, these letters leave us in the end with a stronger belief in man's inherent righteousness. This hospital is as other hospitals. The men lying in their cots or shuffling about are recruited from all sorts and kinds. Some of them are good to look upon, some coarse, and some weak-looking; but an overwhelming number seem to be endowed with courage, belief in their cause, and love of home and family. These letters reveal men's minds very much "en déshabillé," and if it is an ungrateful task thus to pry into them, what censor in any hospital will ever forget such revelations of patience and courage? Can it fail to touch any one that thousands of men—and rough men, too—still write pitifully affectionate letters to their mothers? There are more letters written to mothers than to wives, sweethearts, or friends. I only echo the hope of the gallant soul who writes back across the seas that "there h'is happy days in store for us all." Such men have earned victory, and with it happy days.

HINDU IMMIGRANTS.

They Do Not Expect to Live on $5 to $9 a Year.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of Aug. 16, 1916, there appeared an excellent editorial note on my letter regarding the proposed Immigration act. Among other things, you say that "American workingmen desire to avoid competition here with the labor of men who have been accustomed to live on $5 to $9 a year. They believe that such men, if freely admitted in considerable numbers, would surely underbid them in the labor market; that the employment of such immigrants would tend to reduce wages and lower the prevailing standard of living."

I would say that we do not ask for an unrestricted privilege of immigration into this country, but I do feel that we are right in asking for the same privileges that are granted to immigrants from Europe. As to the fear of organized labor that Hindu immigration will tend to lower the standard of living here, I would say that it is a mistake to suppose that the Hindus are able to live on an income of only $5 to $9 a year. They are not living; they are dying. Moreover, the Hindus in this country do not content themselves with any such income, but demand and receive the same wages that are paid to American laborers in the same line of work.

At the end of your article you intimated that Hindu exclusion in Canada was due to local causes only, uninfluenced by any imperial policy to keep the Hindus at home in order to prevent them from being contaminated with ideas of political liberty which they would be sure to acquire in the United States and the self-governing colonies of Great Britain. The treatment of the Hindus in the British colonies differs from the treatment accorded to other Orientals. This can only be accounted for by the influence of the Imperial Government.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 8, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Cecil Rhodes's part in the British-German-American understanding is interesting, as written by Salomon Toledano.

Cecil Rhodes was bitterly disliked in Germany because (to quote his own words) "Dr. Jamieson upset the apple cart." However, the Kaiser evidently considered Rhodes a great Englishman, so expressed a desire to meet him. The two big men met, and shortly after the interview the late W. W. Stead (who perished in the Titanic disaster) published a review on Rhodes's life and work.

An account of the meeting is given, Rhodes having told Stead that it was at this meeting that the Kaiser first suggested to him the idea of the establishment of scholarships at Oxford. This statement may easily be verified by looking up The London Review of Reviews of that time.

I have just returned from Toronto, where I spent a week's vacation. I am a Bulgarian citizen of the United States, but enjoyed the same liberty as all Americans residing in the town. I am hopeful for Russian success in the Balkans and the Allies' victory, with freedom for all the nations. Many thanks to the Canadian Government.

SOUTHERN NATIONAL GUARD

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It appears that Mr. Lodge states that there are 2,000 troops from Virginia, 500 from Louisiana, and 3,000 from Texas now on the border. South Carolina has two regiments, known as the Palmetto Regiments; a company of engineers, and a company of cavalry from this city, about 2,500 in all. If his facts in regard to other States of the South are as true as those from South Carolina the South is being done a great injustice. It is not fair to the South, nor the country, that these misleading statements in regard to the militia should stand.

It should be remembered in this connection that the coast artillery companies were not called to the border. A regiment of coast artillery from this State recently held an encampment at Fort Moultrie of this city, and I presume there are other similar conditions elsewhere. While it is true the National Guard is not all it should have been, yet it should be clearly kept in mind that the new provisions did not go into effect in time to increase the efficiency of the guard at the time they were called out by the President. In the case of the cavalry company of Charleston, known as the Light Dragoons, this company was not mustered into the service until after the passage of the present Hay act, although the company had been in existence a great many years. This was due to the fact that this company was obliged in the past to own and maintain its equipment in the way of horses, and the expense was prohibitive as regards many of the young men who otherwise would have belonged to this squad.

A. V. SNELL,
Charleston, S. C., Sept. 9, 1916.

Seek Out the Cause.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Despite the reassuring statements of the doctors, cases of infantile paralysis are still registered from day to day, and it is feared that we shall see the scourge at work again next year.

As one of many who have suffered through the persistence of the plague this week—despite all efforts to preserve a dear, healthy, little child from contagion, may I entreat THE NEW YORK TIMES to press for a more thorough and instant inquiry into the cause and the possible prevention of infantile paralysis?

A wide-spread fear prevails that it is due less to dirt and flies than to the shameless and systematic poisoning of the people by cold-blooded adulterators of milk and provisions. The gratifying announcement made by Mr. Straus as to the immunity of those who use scientifically pasteurized milk is both reassuring and disquieting.

What of the millions who do not buy pasteurized milk? And what of the formaldehyde which has been found in so many kinds of food in current use, and especially in some of the most popular kinds of milk?

If people are being murdered wholesale by ruthless money-grubbers, why should the offenders not be treated as murderers? It is, I know, a very, very big "if." But it is high time that the public were protected against even the chance of being victimized by unscrupulous "get-rich-quick" criminals, however powerful and influential they may be.

NAME NIGHT SCHOOL HEADS.

Announcement Causes Lively Dispute in Education Board.

Lively discussion followed the presentation by the Committee on Special Schools, at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Education, of the nominations of twenty-seven persons as Principals of evening elementary schools. It is a question in which the rank and file of the teaching staff are greatly interested.

Those nominated are as follows: David Goldwasser, Henry H. Goldberger, Charles L. Laurence, William L. Bulkley, Albert Loewinthau, Edward R. Maguire, Jacob H. Rohrbach, Francis M. Conboy, Frank A. Young, Thomas M. Donohue, William M. Simmons, Annie E. Cunningham, Elizabeth G. Cooley, Emma A. McCabe, Anna M. Schultz, Ella T. McCue, Catherine I. Tillman, Mabel R. Swartz, and Rose A. McManus of Manhattan; William P. McCarthy and Grace Weinberger of the Bronx, Frederick B. Graham, James A. O'Donnell, John J. Malarkey, Kate R. Miller, Marietta Riley, and Lillian E. Buermeyer of Brooklyn.

In making up the eligible list the Board of Examiners gave the highest rating to Principals of day schools, next to heads of departments and then to day teachers. The assignments to the Principalships of various evening elementary schools were made along about the same lines. The system that had prevailed heretofore, was entirely changed. Teachers, who, as evening school Principals, had built up their schools from small beginnings to larger proportions, were transferred to smaller schools, while the small school men were put in charge of the larger schools.

There is a rule of the Board of Education which says that nominations which have not been acted upon by it become appointments after the lapse of forty days. This time has elapsed since the present nominations were first made. The appointments are to take effect Sept. 25. Appointments to evening schools are made, however, per diem, and the forty-day rule is said not to apply to them.

Thomas W. Churchill led the attack on the report. He instanced the case of a teacher who, as Principal, had built up a fine evening school, but who was to be deprived of it. He moved that the matter be referred to the Committee on By-Laws to decide whether the forty-day rule applied to the evening school. His motion was carried. The committee will report at the board's meeting on next Wednesday.

GRACE NEVINS DEAD, POISON BY HER SIDE

NOT SEEN FOR FOUR DAYS

Lived Alone in West Side Apartment and Had Been Contributor to Suffrage Campaigns.

Persons living in the old-fashioned brownstone "walk-up" apartment house at 223 West Eighty-third Street commented yesterday morning on the fact that Miss Grace Nevins, 54 years old, who lived somewhat the life of a recluse on the third floor of the house, had not been seen for four days. She was considered wealthy, and it was known that she had taken a great interest in suffrage and had been a contributor to suffrage campaigns. The superintendent of the house, on getting no response to knocks and calls, climbed to the spinster's window from the fire escape of the next apartment. He found her dead, lying on the floor beside her bed.

Nearby on the floor was a little phial that detectives later learned had contained hydrocyanic acid. Elsewhere in the apartment was found a small tube of drugs intended for hypodermic use.

She had taken a trained nurse's course and was graduated, enabling her to purchase the acid and drugs, but had not worked as a nurse. For a number of years she had lived a retired life, depending on her income for support.

Her bank books showed a balance of about $10,000, and so the police abandoned a theory that financial troubles had caused her death. They learned that she had no relatives in the city and had often been subject to deep despondency because of her loneliness, and reported that it was a case of suicide.

Miss Nevins came to New York about fifteen years ago from La Crosse, Wis. Her father was a manufacturer there, and she was said to have inherited $250 a month for life from his estate.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Sept. 13.—Grace Nevins, who was found dead in her apartment in New York today, was a sister of Alexander G. Nevins, at one time editor of the Chicago Tribune, who died in 1902. She was a niece of the late Cadwallader C. Washburn of La Crosse, a civil war veteran, Governor of Wisconsin and founder of the Washburn-Crosby mills at Minneapolis, Minn.

FIGHT OVER YACHT SEIZURE

Agent of American and British Co. Held On Hoadley's Charge.

Karl T. Frederick of the law firm of Satterlee, Canfield & Stone, was arrested yesterday on a charge of having attempted to seize the steam yacht Alabama, said to be owned by Joseph H. Hoadley, formerly head of the Board of Directors of the American and British Manufacturing Company, while the yacht was lying in the Hudson River, off the Columbia Yacht Club.

The attempt to seize the yacht was alleged to have grown out of the contention that craft had been purchased by Mr. Hoadley for the company while he was at the head of it.

Mr. Frederick went on board with a private detective named John Kennedy and demanded that the Captain turn the yacht over to him, as it really belonged to the company. The Captain refused and sent two of his sailors to summon the police.

Policeman Adams of the West Sixteenth Street Police Station arrested Mr. Frederick and the detective on charge of disorderly conduct and took them to the police station, where they later were released on bail. Mrs. Hoadley signed the warrant upon which the men were arrested, her husband being away from the city.

The two motorcyclists traveled via Buffalo, Chicago, Omaha, and Denver to Colorado Springs, where they climbed Pike's Peak on their machines, a feat never before accomplished by women, it is said. Their route carried them on to Glenwood Springs and Salt Lake City and across the great American desert. They were on the desert eleven days.

DO YOU NEED ME IN YOUR BUSINESS?

I've had thorough experience in planning and managing selling campaigns through salesmen, advertising and business-getting letters.

I have also successfully handled important negotiations involving large responsibilities and requiring general executive efficiency.

Those with whom I have been associated and with whom I have done business will bear witness to the foregoing, including the concern which I purpose leaving for something offering greater possibilities, either in New York or elsewhere.

TELLS HOW YALE PROPOSED

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Sept. 13.—Continuing her testimony in the Supreme Court today in her action for $50,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage against Edward Yale, 71 years old, a Stanfordville hotel keeper, Miss Lucille Tompkins, 22 years old, underwent cross-examination.

The defense sought to bring before the jury the story of the plaintiff's life, but at the end of the three-hour cross-examination Miss Tompkins left the stand smiling, although she had been in tears several times during the examination.

Questioned as to what occupations she followed, Miss Tompkins said she had conducted an ice-cream "parlor," had worked at home for her mother, had been a ticket taker at a theatre, a singer on the stage, a clerk, a hospital employe, and an amateur actress. It was before she left Dutchess County for Florida, the witness said, that she met Edward Yale. It was in 1912, when she was living in Stanfordville.

After the Florida trip, Miss Tompkins said, she went to live with her mother near Stanfordville, and then Mr. Yale renewed the acquaintance, calling on her to take her out driving.

"He tried to kiss me, but I did not allow it," the witness said.

In telling how Mr. Yale approached the marriage question Miss Tompkins testified he said:

"My girl, I love you." Then she replied: "I know you do."

According to Miss Tompkins, Mr. Yale then said: "I can't get along without you." Miss Tompkins testified that she said she would talk it over with her mother.

Many letters alleged to have been written by both the plaintiff and the defendant were read into the records. Among the letters were those from Mr. Yale to Miss Tompkins, showing how his salutation changed from "My Dear Lucille" to "Dear Madam." The case will be continued tomorrow.

REFORMING "BILLY" GREEN.

The job of reforming "Billy" Green, the 240-pound Clinton Prison "bad man," began at Sing Sing Prison yesterday under the auspices of the Mutual Welfare League. For the first time in years Green got outside of prison walls when he was taken for a walk to the crest of the hill above Sing Sing, facing "Gallery 25," the prison graveyard. Green had been in solitary confinement at Clinton for two years before he was taken to Sing Sing, three days ago, and Warden Osborne decided that the first step in his reformation should be constitutionals to help him regain the health he lost in his lonely cell.

Green's walk yesterday was taken in the company of George Hodson, a six-footer, who is the Sergeant at Arms of the Mutual Welfare League. "Billy" is a native of Ossining, and remarked to Hodson, as he stood on the hill yesterday afternoon, that he had often spent hours when a boy at the same spot. Green, the man who dared death twice to escape from Sing Sing in the "old days," turned to Hodson as they walked along and said:

"Gee, if the Warden of Clinton could only see me now!"

Tomorrow Charles O'Connor, a bank burglar, better known as "Soapbox Hardy," another prisoner who was taken from solitary confinement at Clinton to Sing Sing to be reformed, will take the same walk Green took today.

After the "French leave" taken of Sing Sing by Elmer Schultz on Monday, Warden Osborne yesterday ordered that the guards in the guard houses facing the Hudson be doubled and kept on duty all night.

A convict was taken yesterday to the Westchester Clinic, on the advice of the medical department of the prison, and an X-ray photograph was taken of his head to discover if his brain was affected by bone pressure.

BAKERS CUT SIZE OF LOAF.

Officials of the large bakeries of the city admitted yesterday that another ounce had recently been cut out of each 5-cent loaf of bread placed on the market, reducing the weight to thirteen and one-half or thirteen ounces, and that by most of the companies the weight of the 10-cent loaves had been reduced by two ounces. Moreover, the prospect is that another slice will have to be cut out of the loaf if the war continues to raise the prices of commodities, according to the bakers.

"A great protest goes up every time anybody says anything about increasing the price of bread," one official of a baking corporation said yesterday when asked about the diminishing size of his loaves. "Bradstreet's will tell you that more bakers have failed since the war began than persons in any other industry. It isn't only the soaring price of wheat that is reducing profits. We wrap our bread in paper. It was bad enough a few months ago. Now the paper famine has tacked on another heavy extraordinary expense."

Representatives of other companies said that even with the reduced loaves they were giving the public the advantage of their large purchases of flour when flour prices were lower than they were now, and that if the prices remained at their present level—flour sold at $8.75 yesterday—it would be necessary again to increase the price of bread when present supplies of flour ran out, or to go out of business and let the public make its own bread.

SENATORS SEE WILLCOX.

Brady of Idaho Says Hughes Created Tremendous Interest.

Several Republican Senators and Representatives called upon National Chairman Willcox yesterday in response to a message from the Chairman asking them to call and tell about conditions in their particular States before they returned to their homes. Among them were Senators James H. Brady of Idaho, Reed Smoot of Utah, and Charles Curtis of Kansas.

Senator Brady said that all through his part of the country Charles E. Hughes had created tremendous interest and his speeches had won warmest admiration.

Representative Charles B. Timberlake of Colorado wrote that the issues of the campaign to be emphasized were the Underwood tariff law and the extravagance of the Democratic Party.

Has Kinney Arrested, Alleging Fraud in Rustproofing Common.

Mrs. Milla D. Shonts, wife of Theodore P. Shonts, caused the arrest yesterday of Grosvenor Swan Kinney, Vice President and General Manager of an automobile supply concern at 1,777 Broadway, on charges that he defrauded her out of $4,000 she gave him to buy stocks.

Mrs. Shonts filed suit against Kinney to recover the money some months ago and recently applied for an order of arrest in the case. Kinney spent several hours in custody before he could arrange a $2,500 bond.

In her complaint Mrs. Shonts alleges that in June, 1912, Kinney, who lives at Lynbrook, N. J., was acting as her agent, and in that capacity he received from her $4,000 to buy 200 shares of Bontempi Rustproofing Company common. He has failed to deliver the stock to her and has not accounted for the money, she says.

THREE HITS OFF SCHUPP

Smith Has Hard Battle, but Foe Is Held in Check Until Pol Perritt Comes to the Rescue.

If the Giants keep up this break-neck clip much longer, the only way to stop them will be to arrest the whole outfit for speeding. Up at the Polo Grounds yesterday Manager McGraw egged his fast flying hired men onto the despondent, suffering Cincinnati Reds and knocked the starch out of them in two games. The Giants absorbed the first, 3 to 0, and sneaked away with the second, 6 to 4. This McGraw troupe doesn't hope to get anywhere in their mad drive, but they expect to kick up a lot of dust along the road.

The Giants have hung up eight straight games since the architects, engineers, stonecutters and contractors finished making over the institution known as the New York baseball club. If they weren't so deeply submerged in fourth place, McGraw's lads would have the other league managers in a sanitarium, suffering from shattered nerves. They have acquired the commendable habit of winning, which shoves all of their other habits into the background.

A crowd of more than 5,000 sat in at the soiree, among whom was one citizen from Massachusetts who had a better time than all the other folks put together. His name was Daly and he came down from Holyoke to see this simple and cultured city. Daly's first name is Santa Claus and the first thing he did was to buy all the peanuts in sight and shower them at the press box. He cornered the peanut market and seemed to think that everybody around him was hungry. Daly distributed his gifts far and wide and celebrated his vacation in his own expensive way.

Schupp Quickly Finishes Reds.

While Daly was keeping the air full of peanuts, the ball games were being played out on the diamond. The first one was a quick, decisive affair, with Ferdie Schupp pitching the kind of ball which made the Cincinnati batsmen perfectly miserable. He pinned the Reds down to three hits, Neale, Groh and Toney getting the trio of bangs.

Toney is the king-pin flinger of Mathewson's corps and the Giants didn't bother him much until the sixth inning, when they went at him hard and won the game right then and there without much fussing or fuming. In this prosperous inning, Davey Robertson favored with a single to right. The temperamental Zim forced Davey at second and Fletcher cudgeled a hummer to right, sending Zim to third. Kauff accepted a pass, in violation of the interstate laws, and filled the bases.

The whole Cincinnati team then played in close and Holke was at the bat. Holke lofted a fly over Neale's thatch in left field. Neale was playing in so close that the ball rolled to the fence for a three-bagger, the smash cleaning up the bases, Zim, Fletcher, and Kauff scoring, thereby giving the Giants the three counters which brought them the pastime.

Giants Start With a Rush.

In the encore game, George Smith of Columbia was McGraw's choice, while Matty sent Pete Schneider against the youngster. Schneider was batted out of the box in the first inning and Smith lasted until the sixth, when the Reds drove him into exile.

Smith started out well and fanned Neale. Groh got a pass and went to third on Roush's infield tap and Fletcher's error. Hal Chase, who is crowding to the top of the batting honor list, singled to centre, scoring Groh. Roush tried to get to third, but was thrown out at that station by Kauff. Griffith slammed a high fly to centre, which soared high over Kauff's cap. Benny turned about and raced for the fence, and, making a leap like a chamois going from crag to crag, he plucked the ball out of the clouds with one hand. Great!

Burns began the first inning for the Giants with a single to short. Herzog rolled to McKechnie, who made a bad throw to second for a force-out play, all hands being safe and sound. Robertson singled to centre, shoving Burns home. Zimmerman walked and the bases were as jammed as a Bronx express. Fletcher pushed a hit to centre, scoring Herzog, while Kauff's two-base drive coaxed Robertson and Zimmerman home.

Schneider retired for the good of the cause and Heinie Schulz put his left arm to work. Holke got a pass and the bases were again so crowded that the Giants were stepping on each other's toes. While Rariden was being thrown out at first, Fletcher scored. Smith fanned and Burns ended the Cincinnati agony and the New York joy by popping to Groh. Those five runs were plenty to win.

Perritt to the Rescue.

The Redlegs began to bang Smith in the fourth and triples by Chase and Griffith gave them another run. New York was not satisfied and added another in the fifth. With one out, Zimmerman singled and boldly, yes, even brazenly, stole second and third, scoring on Kauff's Texas Leaguer to centre.

Young Smith's downfall came in the sixth. Groh tripled and Roush skied to Herzog. Chase singled to centre, scoring Groh and Griffith's single sent Chase to third. Prince Hal checked up on McKechnie's spank to centre. Pol Perritt was called to the rescue and squelched the Cincinnati enthusiasm.

The last out in this inning was made by Kauff, who made another fine catch of Wingo's flier. If Benny had not grabbed it as he did, two runs would have trickled over and the Reds would have tied the score. Benny is becoming more useful to the Giants every day. The scores:

PHILLIES GET EVEN BREAK.

Cardinals Take First and Cravath's Bat Wins Second.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—St. Louis got an even break here today. The visitors won the first game by 7 to 4, knocking Rixey off the rubber in the seventh inning, and Philadelphia took the second, 5 to 4, largely through Cravath's hard hitting. Cravath's home run drove in two runners ahead of him in the sixth inning and his double in the eighth helped to score the winning tally. The scores:

BUCCANEERS ROUT SLEEPY SUPERBAS

Jimmy Callahan, pilot of the Pirates, did his best to wreck the hopes the Dodgers have of gaining the National League pennant when his crew defeated the home contingent on Ebbets Field yesterday by the score of 6 to 3, in a game in which the invaders outplayed Robbie's men in every department. The only thing that saved the Superbas from being toppled from first place was that the Phillies lost one of the two games played. The Braves trounced Chicago twice, so that, though the three leaders occupy the same positions in the percentage column that they did before all these fruitful happenings, the first two are separated only by the margin of half a game.

In accomplishing the downfall of the Dodgers Callahan perpetrated what the Flatbush fans consider a mean trick, by slipping in to the line-up another Wagner, whose name was not even on the program. Honus has for years made that name feared in this city, and young Willie Wagner, who went in as catcher yesterday, did so well that he is not likely to make his more famous namesake ashamed of him.

The Wagner clan was entirely too prominent in the proceedings to please the crowd. Honus's activity in the sixth was responsible for the fact that the Buccaneers overcame the slight lead of one run which the Dodgers had gained in the second, and young Willie, with a triple to left, started the trouble in the seventh that put away the victory by adding another three runs to the Pittsburgh total. In addition to that, W. Wagner played his position without an error, as did all the other athletes from the smoky city. Young Wagner has been kept under contract for several years and was recently recalled from Terre Haute by Manager Callahan.

Another mean trick of the Pirate Chief was to put in Cooper, a left handed twirler, which caused Wilbert Robinson to change his batting order and keep Daubert out of the game, as Jake is not on friendly terms with southpaws. Merkle took his place on the first sack and did well enough, but like most of the home team, with the exception of Wheat, was unable to hit the ball.

Wheat was the only one to get more than two hits off Cooper. Two of his three safeties were three baggers, but unfortunately these came when the paths were empty. Sherrod Smith started for the Dodgers and went along smoothly until the sixth. He was pounded heavily from that time until he was taken out, when three hits had been made off him, with only one out, in the seventh. Dell finished out the inning and Rucker pitched the last two sessions.

The trouble with the home team seemed to be that being at home since the opening double-header on Tuesday had made them sleepy, especially while the Buccaneers were careering around the bases. They were charged with three errors, and altogether showed indifference to the fine points of the game. The umpires had their troubles, and as a result of too vigorous a kick over a close decision at third Warner was put out of the fray.

Just before that happened Warner, to open the sixth, singled to right, and after being neatly advanced on Bigbee's sacrifice came home on Carey's single to centre field. Hinchman filed out, and Carey reached second on a passed ball. Honus Wagner was allowed to walk, but shortly showed ingratitude by instigating a double steal. The crowd thought Carey was out at third, but as Mowrey made a second attempt to tag him the arbiter was probably right. Schulte followed with a tap to left that scored Carey and H. Wagner. The disturbance ended when Cutshaw threw out McCarthy.

The lusty young Wagner banged one to the left field fence for a triple to start the next session and, after Cooper was thrown out by Olson, Baird, who had taken Warner's place at third, brought him to the plate with a single in the same direction. Dell stepped to the mound then, but his sleepy supporters allowed Baird to steal third, and on the very next ball pitched Bigbee followed suit by dashing safely down to second. Carey's sacrifice bunt scored Baird, and Hinchman's single to centre allowed Bigbee to add the third tally of the inning. Honus Wagner's hit forced Hinchman, and the agony was ended.

Wheat raised the hopes of the fans when he tripled in the second inning and scored the opening run for Brooklyn on Cutshaw's single. In Brooklyn's half of the sixth another was added, when Myers walked, Merkle filed out, Wheat singled to right, leaving Myers safe on third, to come home on Cutshaw's single. Wheat got as far as third, and Cutshaw to second, but they expired when Mowrey struck out, Olson walked, and Meyers filed to Carey. Wheat made the final tally for the Dodgers with a three-bagger to centre, scoring on Cutshaw's infield out. The score:

YANKS BOW BEFORE TIGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 13.—New York began its final Western invasion here this afternoon by dropping a hard-fought contest to the onrushing Tigers by a score of 4 to 1. Although the Yankees were outhit two to one they kept the local rooters on the anxious bench throughout and the game was much closer than the score would indicate.

Harry Coveleskie, who has been winning with great persistency, was lucky to escape as long as he did. Scintillating fielding by the Tigers held New York back until the seventh, when the left-hander began to wabble and was taken out in the nick of time in favor of Dauss. Vitt, Veach, Bush, and Hellman starred in the field. In the fifth Vitt, by a splendid barehanded stop, robbed Charley Mullen of a triple. When Baker followed with a double, Oscar's feat was important for the Tigers.

Bob Shawkey made a dubious start on the mound, being affected by wildness, but settled down and pitched a creditable game, retiring in the eighth to allow Pipp to take a crack at the ball. The two runs scored in the eighth on Love were partially due to a poor heave by Paddy Baumann in an effort to nab Crawford going from first to third on Hellman's single. Love initiated the trouble, however, by passing Crawford, who was the first batter up.

Two casualties occurred during the afternoon's proceedings. Hughie High turned his ankle in the fourth after driving out a two-bagger and was forced to quit. Spencer retired with a split finger in attempting to stop a wild pitch in the eighth. Vitt opened the festivities with a single to right and Young sacrificed him to second. Cobb drew a pass and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Veach singled over Shawkey's head, scoring Vitt. Bob settled down at this juncture, causing Crawford to pop to Peck and Hellman to ground to the same player.

High got the first hit off Coveleskie in the fourth when he lined a double to left with one down. Hughie turned his ankle and Maisel ran for him. The next two could not help. With two gone in the Tiger half of the fifth Veach tripled to left centre and scored on Crawford's double to left.

The Yankees should have tucked the game away in the eighth, when the Detroit pitchers gave their daily exhibitions of wildness. Miller drew a pass as a starter. Gedeon singled to centre, sending Miller to third, but was himself nailed at second when Vitt intercepted Cobb's peg to third. Alexander singled through Bush, registering Miller. Heeding the call of the fans Jennings replaced Coveleskie with Dauss. Donovan injected Pipp into the contest to bat for Shawkey and Walter was hit by the first pitched ball. Magee's best was a short fly to Cobb. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch. In trying to stop this Spencer suffered a split finger and was replaced by Stanage. With a chance to break up the game Baumann lifted to Veach. The score:

JUNIOR NET TITLE TAKEN BY BINZEN

Fordham Captain Beats Shipway in Straight Sets for Metropolitan Honors.

Elliot Binzen, Captain of the Fordham tennis team and junior national indoor champion, captured the metropolitan junior title yesterday when he defeated C. W. Shipway in straight sets on the New York A. C. courts at Travers Island, at 6—0, 6—2, 6—3. While Shipway made a hard fight against the Bronx youth, he was never a dangerous factor. Binzen volleyed with great force and outgeneraled Shipway every time he endeavored to come in to the net.

In the opening set Shipway was outplayed all the way and his points were few and far between. Binzen played down the side lines, and had Shipway doing all the court covering. The vanquished youngster could never recover the ball to return it with sufficient force to make himself a strong contender.

There was a slight improvement in the play of Shipway during the second set, but it was only because Binzen let down slightly in his speedy game. The Fordham Captain devoted more time to playing the base line, and in this style of play Shipway made more headway than he did in the opening set. The two games which went to his credit were gained through clever placing.

Still more marked was the improvement of Shipway in the third and deciding set. He gained a lead of two games on Binzen, but the latter was content enough to give him this handicap. When it seemed that Shipway was about to take a set Binzen turned on a little more steam, and set the ball bobbing just outside of his rival's reach. Shipway came back after the games were 3—2 in favor of Binzen, and evened the count at three-all, but that was his final effort. Binzen ran out the next three games with ease.

Paired with Benjamin W. Letson, the national boys' title holder, Binzen reached the final round of the doubles through a victory over Vischer and Emerson. Letson and Binzen will be opposed in the doubles final this afternoon by Shipway and Raymond, who triumphed over Forster and Kaltenback at 4—6, 10—8, 8—6. This match was stubbornly contested, with the play seesawing until the final point was made by Shipway. The summaries:

Metropolitan Junior Doubles, Championship.—Semi-Final Round—C. W. Shipway and Raymond defeated H. W. Forster and Kaltenback, 4—6, 10—8, 8—6; Elliot Binzen and B. W. Letson defeated Vischer and Emerson, 6—3, 6—2.

TWO HARVARD MEN SURVIVE.

Caner to Meet Weber and Pfaffman Warren in College Tennis.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—Harvard's prospects of retaining both the singles and doubles championships of the Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Association grew brighter as the result of today's matches in the annual tournament on the courts of the Merion Cricket Club.

G. Colket Caner of Harvard defeated Leonard Beekman, the Princeton star, in the third round of the singles, and will meet Jerry Weber, the Yale Captain, in one of the semi-final matches tomorrow. Caner's teammate, Joseph Pfaffman, won from Arthur Coffey, Princeton, and meets Eugene Warren, of the University of California, in the other semi-final.

Caner and Richard H. Harte, Jr., defeated Beekman and Philip Vandeventer of Princeton in the opening round of the doubles, while the other Crimson pair, Whitehouse and Pfaffman, eliminated Weber and Stoddard of Yale.

The Caner-Beekman match was the feature of the day, and was watched by a large gallery. Beekman outguessed Caner in the first set and won by the score of 6 to 4. In the second and third sets, however, Caner got his long, back court drive working with accuracy and precision and proceeded to play Beekman off his feet.

Pfaffman won an easy victory over Coffey in straight sets, 6 to 3, 6 to 1. Weber's 7 to 5, 6 to 4 victory over Blair of Cornell was much closer than is indicated by the score, as practically every game went to deuce several times before it was finished.

Eugene Warren, the sole surviving California entrant, won from Sidney Thayer, Jr., the last survivor of the University of Pennsylvania racquet wielders. Thayer won the first set at 6 to 4 by clever passing, when Warren attempted to take the net, but in the second and third sets the Westerner acquired control of his short court drives, and dropped them just inside, instead of just outside the court. This steadiness was maintained throughout the last two sets, and Thayer really never had a chance after Warren settled down.

The summaries:

CHAMPIONSHIP SINGLES.—Third Round—Weber, Yale, defeated Blair, Cornell, 7—5, 6—4; Caner, Harvard, defeated Beekman, Princeton, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2; Warren, Southern California, defeated Thayer, Pennsylvania, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1; Pfaffman, Harvard, defeated Coffey, Princeton, 6—3, 6—1.

CHAMPIONSHIP DOUBLES.—First Round—Aiker and Knox, Princeton, won from Alden and Taylor, Johns Hopkins, by default; Whitehouse and Pfaffman, Harvard, defeated Weber and Stoddard, Yale, 6—4, 6—2; Rowland and Edwards, Pennsylvania, won from Benedict and Bowman, Cornell, by default; Warner and McCormick, Southern California, defeated Fisher and Kennedy, Pennsylvania, 6—1, 6—2; Blair and Holt, Cornell, won from Hawkes and Glover, Leland Stanford, by default; Caner and Harte, Harvard, defeated Beekman and Vandeventer, Princeton, 6—4, 6—3.

MATHEY DEFEATS ROBERTS.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 13.—Three Californians and one New Yorker survived at the completion of the fourth round in the men's singles of the tri-State tennis tournament here today. William M. Johnston, Ella Fottrell, and Willis E. Davis, all of San Francisco, and Dean Mathey of the West Side Club of New York came through victorious in their matches.

Johnston defeated T. MaK. Cummins of Wheeling, W. Va. Fottrell vanquished Harold Leblond of Cincinnati, Davis disposed of Fred Bastian of Indianapolis, and Mathey obtained the winner's share in the match with Roland Roberts of San Francisco.

The ladies' singles also reached the semi-final round today. Tomorrow Miss Martha Guthrie of Pittsburgh will meet Miss Katherine Brown of Indianapolis, while Miss Margaret Davis of St. Paul will play Miss Adele Leby of Cincinnati.

BAD THROW BEATS BROWNS.

Wellman's Error in Tenth Enables White Sox to Win, 9 to 8.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Chicago defeated St. Louis, 9 to 8, in ten innings of wild and erratic playing today. Wellman's wild throw of Weaver's grounder sent the winning run across the plate in the tenth after two men were out. The locals pounded Hamilton off the mound in the opening inning, and added three more runs in the fifth, when erratic fielding by St. Louis helped them.

Faber then tossed the lead away in the sixth, when his wildness and three errors gave the visitors four runs. Bunched hits again put Chicago ahead in the sixth, but Jones's men bunched hits behind Ness's error and tied it again. The score:

Packey Hommey Defeats Mooney.

Packey Hommey, the east side lightweight, decisively outpointed Joe Mooney of the west side in the star bout of ten rounds last night at the Pioneer Sporting Club, in West Forty-fourth Street. In the semi-final, also of ten rounds, Kid Burns outpointed Johnny Clinton. Johnny Burke disposed of his opponent, Joe Nelson, in the third round of their scheduled six-round bout, the referee stopping the contest to save Nelson from further punishment.

The performance was too good to be believed.

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—Winning twice from Chicago today, the Boston Nationals gained materially on the Superbas and Phillies in the pennant race. The scores of the games, which were marked by hard hitting, were 7 to 3 and 11 to 6.

Smith's five hits, including a double and a triple out of five times up in the first game, and Maranville's fielding and batting in both contests were large factors in the Braves' success. Magee made a home run with the bases full in the second game. Reulbach pitched thirteen of the eighteen innings for Boston. The scores:

Calms on Homeward Leg Prevent a New Record — Challenger Beats Holder by 2:28:12.

Morton F. Plant's handsome schooner yacht Elena yesterday afternoon at 3:31:29 sailed proudly into New York harbor past the foremast of the lightship anchored in Ambrose Channel, winner of the Cape May cup, for the possession of which she had challenged the holder, Robert E. Tod's schooner Katoura, which one year ago successfully defended the trophy against the three-masted schooner yacht Atlantic, now owned by James C. and Nicholas F. Brady.

Just two hours, twenty-eight minutes and twelve seconds later Captain Tod sailed the Katoura across the line, finishing her long stern chase of 214 miles at 5:59:41, in ample time to hear the booming of the sunset guns at the forts at the harbor's mouth. Then knowing that a good race had been sailed both skippers took their craft inside the hook and found anchorage for the night.

The race thus ended was the eleventh sailed for the possession of the trophy which was presented to the New York Yacht Club in 1872 by ex-Commodore James Gordon Bennett to become the property of any yacht holding it successfully through three successive contests. So Elena's victory gives her but one-third possession of the cup, as she must win it in two more races before the trophy may be added to the collection which now graces Mr. Plant's trophy room. Katoura had two legs on the cup, as she had won it once by forfeiture and again by the actual defeat of the Atlantic, so that Captain Tod's hope of possession of the trophy now go shimmering.

Fair Wind for Start of Race.

This race for the trophy was begun on Tuesday morning when Elena led the way across the starting line off Ambrose Channel lightship at 11:02:28, a minute and thirty-three seconds in front of Katoura, with a fair wind from the eastward which after canting about to the southward increased in intensity sufficiently to carry the yachts on a reach and a run all the way to Cape May, where they had to round the Five Fathom lightship. This was done on Tuesday night, Elena making the turn at 8:49:20, as timed by the passengers on board Mr. Plant's steam yacht Vanadis, which followed the racers over the course. Katoura turned the mark 21 minutes and 55 seconds later, at 9:11:15. This made Elena's time for the first leg of the course, 9:46:52 a remarkably fast trip for the 107 miles, and probably a record for the first leg of the course.

The wind had favored the yachts all through the run and had been from the right quarter so that they could utilize to the utmost every stitch of the vast clouds of canvas both carried except for the club topsails, which were barred under the conditions of the race. All during the long run down the New Jersey course the yachts were in sight of one another so that the rival skippers were able to see just what each was doing to keep his yacht in the most favorable position.

Boats Start a Beat Home.

When the yachts turned the mark and headed for the north the sheets were taken in, for the yachts then had a head wind and a beat for the first part of the second leg of the course. It was a beautiful moonlight night, and with the yachts less than a half hour in time and probably a couple of miles in distance apart, the amateurs of the crew found too much of interest aloft to seek the seclusion which the cabin grants and remained on deck and thoroughly alive to the stirring interest of the sport in which they were participating, trying to outguess the other skipper. That first leg, made in time which if not an actual record for the distance was very close to it, and the good wind they were having incited all to do everything they could to also make the run home in better than twenty-five hours, which would have made a record for the race.

But as morning shadows came there came a lessening in the force of the wind, instead of the storm which the Weather Bureau had promised, and the wind fell so that before noon it had become practically a calm, and there was a long period of drifting which made a new record for the course out of the question. From then on it was a case of working ship all the way to the finish to get the benefit of any breath of air that should happen to be stirring. Those on board Elena had little cause for worry, however, for she moved along as if she were slipping through seas of oil. The faster time sped the further she moved away from Katoura, until when about abreast of Belmar, she was lost to sight altogether, and Elena moved on her majestic and happy way without company.

Calms on Finishing Leg.

Elena's time at the finish for the whole course, was 28:29:01, and Katoura's, 30:55:41, the actual difference in sailing time being 2:26:40. It had taken Elena, owing to the calm and adverse winds, 18:42:09 to make the last leg of the course, nearly twice that required for the run to the southward. Elena finished with hardly enough wind blowing to fill her sails, while Katoura had a twelve-mile wind from the south-southwest to help her along in the last stages of the race.

The two yachts will lie at anchor inside the Hook until Saturday morning, when they will start on their race for the Brentons Reef Cup, which will take them over a course through Long Island Sound to a point off Newport and return. In this case, also, Katoura is the holder of the cup, and Elena is the challenger.

N. Y. CRICKETERS IN DRAW.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—Although behind in the aggregate of runs scored in the two days' cricket match between New York and Philadelphia, concluded at St. Martin's this afternoon, the New York cricketers succeeded in emerging with a draw and escaping defeat. Continuing their innings of yesterday, broken off when 4 wickets were down for only 32, the visitors occupied the wickets until an hour after luncheon, at which time they were all out for 185, or 55 runs behind the Philadelphia total.

Philadelphia then went in a second time and ran up 163 runs for the loss of 6 wickets, at which stage the innings was declared closed. New York had 53 runs for 4 wickets when the match was declared drawn.

MISS TYNDALE IS VICTOR.

Defeats Miss Townsend as Staten Island Title Tennis Opens.

Miss Edith B. Handy, 1915 tennis champion of Staten Island, was not in the field which started play yesterday on the grass courts of the Richmond County Country Club at Dongan Hills for the singles title of Richmond County. The first day of the tourney, however, brought out some keen competition, and a number of the matches were carried to three sets. Miss Ethel Tyndale, who is one of the favorites for the championship, had an easy time defeating Miss Townsend in two love sets.

All but two of the first round doubles matches were contested. Both singles and doubles are expected to reach the final round with continuation of play this afternoon. The summaries:

WOMEN'S SINGLES, First Round—Mrs. W. L. Allum defeated Miss C. R. Wemple, 6—3, 6—3; Miss M. A. Irving defeated Miss Charlotte Garbe, 6—3, 6—2; Miss S. T. Scofield defeated Mrs. M. HARVARD 'VARSITY SQUAD SELECTED Coaches Will Give Plays to First and Second Division Men Today.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 13.—The Harvard football coaches held a meeting tonight to decide which men shall constitute this year's 'varsity squad, and tomorrow the first and second squads will be formed, the plays given to the men, and work started in earnest for the first scrimmage of the season, which will be held Saturday. The drill today was even harder than that of yesterday, the ends and tackles being lined up before the various backfield combinations which have been working all week, and given their first chance to get into the play.

Interference was smashed, but no tackling was allowed. This is still being confined to the dummies. Charley Brickley, Harvard's greatest drop kicking exponent, made his first appearance of the year as a coach. He worked for an hour and got specially pleasing results from Flower, last year's Freshman Captain, Horween and Robinson, now the first choice for the 'Varsity quarterback. Robinson kicks in almost Brickley's own style.

John Desmond, the old Lehigh player, who is expected to make a place for himself on the rushline, reported today. He weighs about 185 pounds, and is in fine shape. He played with the scrubs against the 'Varsity all last year, and had he been eligible probably would have had a place on the regular team. The breaking through work was longer than usual, and so was the session for the ends on handling forward passes.

QUAKERS PRACTICE PASSING

LANGHORNE, Penn., Sept 13.—The missing members of the University of Pennsylvania football squad are rapidly returning to the fold, and Coach Folwell will have at least twenty-four players from whom to choose his line-up for the first game of the season.

Folwell spent much of his time today in developing his famous snap forward pass, which has wrung victory from the very greatest in the world of football, when the present Penn tutor was laboring at Washington and Jefferson. The pass traveled no more than ten yards, and at each snap of the ball from the centre two men were ordered to speed down the green. Folwell counted the number of passes, which were perfectly executed, and his pupils surprised him by running up a string of 52 without a slip. Then Coach Folwell made a short address to the players.

"We are going to have two weeks of mule work; then I am going to let up on you fellows," he said. "I am going to tell you something you may not know: I did not come back to old Penn for any other purpose than to put her back in her place on the football map. I am going to give one year to the job. There will be no friction among the coaches. I will promise you this."

TIGERS' DAY STRENUOUS.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE MINNEWASKA, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Aided by cool weather, the Tiger football candidates were able to get in another good day of strenuous practice today. Coach Rush had the players out in togs both in the morning and afternoon. There were several new arrivals at the Princeton camp today, including Eddie Driggs, fullback on last year's team, who will probably do all the kicking for the Tigers this year. Other arrivals were Latrobe, Mathiasen and Warden. Both Nourse, a guard on last year's team, and Gennert, a veteran centre, are expected to put in an appearance this evening.

Several simple formations and a few signals were given to the players this afternoon, and the coach put them through a short drill in the morning. The formations taught the candidates will probably be used in the first game with Holy Cross on Sept. 30, which will be played at Worcester instead of at Princeton as originally scheduled. One of the biggest problems that the coaches have to face this year is to fill the shoes of Frank Glick at quarterback. Cyril Haas, who was out of the game last fall on account of injuries, made an impression on Coach Rush with his playing in the spring practice, and from all indications will be a likely candidate for the quarterback position this Fall.

ELI SCRIMMAGE PUT OFF.

Lack of Rushline Material Causes Coaches to Change Plans.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 13.—Because of their failure to enroll enough rushline material to make two satisfactory 'Varsity elevens, the Yale football coaches tonight decided to abandon their plans for ordering the first scrimmage practice of the season tomorrow. It was impossible to form two elevens of strong calibre at this afternoon's signal drill, but Head Coach Tad Jones began the practice, using the lineup essayed last week, and ran through practically the entire squad of players, including four quarter backs and three sets of half backs.

MORE DRILL FOR FORDHAM.

Gargan Puts Squad Through Further Signal Practice.

The second signal practice of the season was held by the Fordham football squad yesterday. Starting off with a few simple evolutions the Maroon coachers soon had the new backfield working in a smooth, snappy way that relieves the anxiety felt over the loss of Dunn and Yule, the two stars of a year ago. Each of the backfield quartet was a newcomer and a scrub from a year ago. The full back position was occupied by Fitzpatrick, Fordham's new kicking hope. If his other work compares in any way with the force of his punts and drop kicks yesterday, he is expected to prove the logical successor of Al Yule.

The coaches also received a welcome addition to the squad when another trio of last year's regulars appeared. They were Mulcahy and Bill May, tackles, and Morcaldi, scrub quarter. All the squad, which numbered more than a score, was in full harness and was soon battling in individual training work with the coaches. Mulcahy and May received a special workout with Moriarty, the line coach. They appear in good shape, but will have a much harder time than a year ago to regain their positions, judging from the work done already by some of the freshmen candidates.

The most promising among the youngsters trying for the line is Caddell, the former New Utrecht High School star. Caddell, who was all-scholastic tackle for three years and who is well over six feet tall and built in proportion, fought inch for inch with Moriarty in the individual coaching work yesterday.

Frank Gargan, Fordham's new graduate coach, has issued an order that all the absent candidates must report by Saturday. With the first game at Lafayette only two weeks off, he will hold his first scrimmage that day. It is expected that the tentative lineups of the first and second squads will be announced Friday.

JOCK SCOTT VICTOR AT HAVRE DE GRACE

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 13.—With ideal weather and a crowd which equaled that of the opening day, racing was continued here this afternoon, the second day of the Autumn meeting of the Hartford Agricultural and Breeders' Association. The program was made up of overnight events and furnished some interesting sport.

Heavily played favorites took three events, while the other four races went to well-played second choices. Running in his best form, Gifford A. Cochran's Jock Scott easily accounted for the race for two-year-olds over a five and a half furlong route. Troxler took no chances with his mount and gave the winner a vigorous ride from the start and had two lengths at the finish.

With five lengths to spare, Tim Horn won the steeplechase, which was an event for three-year-olds and upward, at two miles. Tim Horn took command at the drop of the flag and was never headed. The real race was between Meshach and A. J. Davis's Racebrook. At the final jump the latter stumbled and lost his rider. Meanwhile Agon of the Milltown Stable took Racebrook's place and obtained third place.

In the long distance race at a mile and seventy yards, Rae B. was the winner, but the filly had to do her best to obtain a head verdict over Mrs. Arlington's Republican, which toward the end was coming strong and had almost caught the Baxter entry at the finish.

EXPRESSIVE LOU IS VICTOR.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Expressive Lou, Tommy Murphy's bay filly, won the $6,000 American Horse Breeders' Futurity for three-year olds, the feature of today's Grand Circuit races, with impressive ease. The Murphy entry led the field from start to finish in both heats and crossed the line with plenty to spare.

The battle for second honors in the second heat produced a stirring finish. Rounding the turn into the stetch Suldine, Bingen Silk and Lotto Watts were almost on even terms about a length behind the Murphy entry. Within 200 yards of the finish Traynor whipped Suldine into second place.

The 2:10 trot provided a thrill when Leonard drove M. L. J. to win the final heat after finishing sixth in the first and fourth in the second. The result was a surprise, as Howe Constantine had won the first two heats without apparent trouble. He finished seventh in the third heat, tiring rapidly after passing the half mile mark.

A course of eleven and one-half miles has been selected by the committee in charge of the tenth annual race of the Handicap Yacht Racing Class, which will be sailed next Sunday. The starting and finishing line will be off Echo Bay, between the committee boat and the red and black striped buoy on Hick's Ledge. From the starting line the yachts will sail four miles to and around buoy A off Parsonage Point, thence four miles to the red spar buoy D2, between Mott's Point and Prospect Point, thence three and a half miles to the finish line. All yachts must pass to the southward of all buoys on Hen and Chickens. In the event of it being necessary to reverse the course a signal will be made by the committee, in which case all marks will have to be left to port.

Besides the usual prizes in the different divisions the Executive Committee offers the Officers' Cup for the boat making the best corrected time over the course, and Charles P. Tower offers the Handicapper's Cup for boats which have started in three or more races and have not won a first prize during the season. In the event of there being only one such entry the latter event is also open to all boats which have not won more than one first prize. The committee in charge is composed of G. P. Granberry, H. L. Stone, and R. B. Budd.

Galway A. C. Sports Next Sunday.

Gaelic sports will be on tap at Celtic Park on Sunday when the Galway A. C. holds its Autumn field day. The main attraction on the gridiron will be the clash between Kerry and Kilkenny. Both teams have imported talent for this game and a hard struggle is expected. In the hurling game Cork and Limerick will cross sticks for the first time this season.

You wouldn't believe so much power could be so quiet, smooth and soft as to escape the senses—it's uncanny.

Why not today?

Health Commissioner Emerson's belief that the epidemic of infantile paralysis is rapidly ending was strengthened yesterday by the report of only nine new cases from Manhattan, the borough where the disease has been most stubborn. The officials of the Department of Health for two weeks or more have had no fears for any of the other boroughs, but the comparatively high number of new cases daily reported in Manhattan caused them apprehension. They are convinced now that the backbone of the epidemic is broken in every part of the city.

Dr. Charles E. Banks, senior surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, said, however, that he would continue the Federal certificate service into next week, instead of stopping it this week, as planned. Dr. Banks made this decision chiefly because communities outside of New York were still insisting on certificates, and he warned all prospective interstate travelers that they must still provide themselves with them in cases where children were less than 16 years old.

Children recovered from poliomyelitis now number 1,635, of whom 288 were discharged yesterday. All of those who are crippled are receiving after care, it is said. Parents are able to provide orthopedic treatment in many cases, and the Committee on After Care, with which are associated the Henry Street Settlement and other philanthropic institutions, is looking after the children of poorer parents.

Rufus L. Perry, a lawyer representing Mrs. Rose Zimmerman of 276 Stockton Street, Brooklyn, yesterday obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Justice Kelby in the Supreme Court of Brooklyn, requiring the production in court today of Mrs. Zimmerman's two-year-old son, Lester, who has been in the Kingston Avenue Hospital since Sept. 1 as a sufferer from infantile paralysis. In an affidavit accompanying the application for the writ, the mother set forth that several competent physicians had said that Lester never had the disease, and that, shortly before the illness diagnosed as poliomyelitis by an inspector of the Department of Health, the boy ate peanuts, tomatoes, and green apples, which made him sick.

The New Jersey State Department of Health yesterday reported thirty new cases of infantile paralysis in the State, as follows:

Newark, 4; Vineland, 3; Plainfield, 3; Camden, Hamilton Township, Mercer, Trenton, and Paterson, 2 each; Lodi, Behran Township, Chester Township, Pensauken Township, Cape May City, Bloomfield, Nutley, Deal, Avon, and Belmar, 1 each.

President Willcox, at the meeting of the Board of Education yesterday, said that, on the recommendation of the Health Commissioner, he had instructed Acting City Superintendent Straubenmuller to have public school teachers inquire what pupils had lived outside the city in the last two weeks and to get from them certificates showing that they had not been living in infected districts.

Dr. Ira S. Wile opposed the starting of the school year with this sense of fear. The children were going to the moving pictures with freedom, he said, and it was unreasonable to put upon the Education Department this inadvisable act.

It was decided to refer the matter to President Willcox, who will confer with the Health Commissioner and represent to him the opposition in the Board of Education to the measure. Acting City Superintendent Straubenmuller was notified not to send out any notice on the subject to the teachers.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Forty new cases of infantile paralysis and three deaths in the State outside of New York City were reported to the State Health Department during the twenty-four hours ended at 5 o'clock today. The reports showed a decrease of nineteen cases and one fatality, compared with the previous corresponding period.

Two deaths were reported from Poughkeepsie and one from Goshen. The new cases were reported, by counties, from Onondaga, Dutchess, Westchester, Suffolk, and Nassau, four each; St. Lawrence, Orange, and Oswego, three each; Broome, Tompkins, and Ulster, two each; Rockland, Sullivan, Columbia, Erie, and Jefferson, one each.

The Department of Health yesterday announced the receipt of contributions amounting to $2,436 for its brace fund, making the total $36,924. Of the new contributions, the Crutch and Brace Committee of New Jersey sent $1,821, and the National Americanization Committee $251.50. Other contributions were:

E. D. Godfrey, $100; through The New York Times, $99.25; through The New York Globe, $36.81; Anonymous, $30; McKesson & Robbins, $25; Progressive Dress Company $15; William W. Dean, Miss Mabel Rusch, and N. Louis Spring, $10 each; Laura S. Seales, Anna D. Palmer and M. C. Scudder, $5 each; H. A. Pierce, $3.

Charles Platt, $10; Katharine Steele, $5; Maxine Toch, $3.05; S. B., $3, and Gerald Greenberg, Justin Greenberg, Lawrence Ackerman, and Jack C. Higbee, Jr., $1 each.

Maxine Toch, in a letter accompanying her contribution, said:

Dr. Emerson Tells Teachers What Is Expected of Them.

More than 2,000 public school principals, supervisors of hygiene, teachers and officials of the Board of Education gathered in the auditorium of Washington Irving High School yesterday afternoon to attend the session of the Teachers' Institute devoted to discussion of health promotion among children and teachers. Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training and Hygiene in the Public Schools, who presided, urged the local supervisors of hygiene to give special attention this year to the general health of children. William G. Willcox, President of the Board of Education, indorsed Dr. Crampton's words.

Dr. Haven Emerson, Commissioner of Health, said in part:

"We want every school child examined by a competent physician annually. The more this is done on the request of the parent, at the parent's expense, by the family physician, the more permanent will be the results. We want every teacher examined annually and her every illness accurately reported.

"We want children so to learn the fundamental laws of personal hygiene that they can protect themselves against industrial hazards after leaving school. We want children to have so thorough an understanding of the physical damage from alcohol and narcotic drugs (I mean beer, tea, coffee and tobacco) that even the inertia of their home and the civic environment will not distract their habit.

"We want to have it as much a matter of course for a child to stand straight as to spell correctly; as well informed as to the elements of a balanced general diet as in regard to the dates of the Presidents or the capitals of States. We should like to know that the habit of hand washing before eating was so deeply ingrained that they will not tolerate inadequate facilities in their homes and workshops.

"We have arranged to co-operate in the examination of eyes and morning inspection of every school child. We hope the schools will be used for teaching twelve months in every year and that play spaces, baths and assembly rooms will be 100 per cent occupied week days and holidays.

"The graduating diploma should be a certificate of physical as well as mental preparedness to continue to learn and to serve.

"We look forward to the time when children will appear at school in the first grade with a record of their previous illnesses, their physical examination completed and all their removable defects already corrected. That is a Health Department job.

"We look forward to the time when graduation will be a privilege withheld until the pupil can present a clean record as to physical fitness and an understanding of the rudiments of personal hygiene sufficient to protect him against the strains, trials and exposures of self-support and the burdens of establishing a family and household."

Dr. Charles Bolduan, Director of the Bureau of Public Health Education of the Department of Health, said:

"The most powerful weapon at the disposal of health authorities is public health education. And in this connection I wish to mention the great value of newspaper publicity as a means of educating the masses. Great credit should be given to the newspapers for the present good showing in health conditions."

R. PULITZER'S SON A VICTIM.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 13.—Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., publisher of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and the members of his household were quarantined at their Summer home here today, when physicians diagnosed the illness of Mr. Pulitzer's ten-year-old nephew, Ralph Pulitzer, Jr., as infantile paralysis. Ralph, who is the son of the President of the Press Publishing Company, (New York World,) came here recently from a camp in another State. It was stated that the disease was taking the ordinary course, and was not dangerous at present.

The family of Arthur Train of New York was also quarantined in connection with the case, which was the first to develop in this vicinity.

Hearing on Harbor Island Plan.

The United States Harbor Line Board will hold a hearing tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Whitehall Building on the application of John R. Hegeman, Jr., and others for permission to create a 500-acre island for factories and warehouses in New York Harbor on Middle Ground Shoal, off Erie Basin. Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith and Borough President Pounds of Brooklyn will attend the hearing in the city's interest.

Mexican Killed by Constable.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 13.—Constable Robert Carr shot and killed Rafael de Loya, a Mexican, at Clint, twenty miles from here, last night. De Loya, who was employed on a ranch near Clint, telephoned to Clint for help, saying his life had been threatened by other Mexicans. Carr and Deputy Sheriff John Bates went to the ranch where, they say, De Loya opened fire on the deputy. Then Carr killed the Mexican instantly.

Plea for Condemned American.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 13.—Through its representative here, the American State Department has asked that the sentence of death imposed on Harold E. Elton be commuted to twenty years' imprisonment. Elton, who is an American mining engineer, was convicted in Oaxaca of aiding the reactionaries. A month ago, at the request of the United States Government, General Carranza postponed the execution sentence.

BLISS WEIGHS PLANS TO PROTECT BORDER

MEXICAN TAXES UNDER FIRE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 13.—The American and Mexican Joint Commission returned to the question of withdrawing American troops from Mexico and protecting the American border this afternoon after the arrival of Major Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, Assistant Chief of Staff.

Major Gen. Bliss, in conference with the American delegates, discussed all of the plans for taking care of the border which have been proposed, including control of alternate sections by Mexican and American troops, a system of blockhouses garrisoned by United States troops, a neutral zone in which the troops of both sides would be permitted to cross the border, and an international police force under joint Mexican and American control. The suggestion that military forces should be withdrawn from cities which adjoined each other on opposite sides of the border, as El Paso and Juarez, in order to avoid accidental clashes, was also discussed.

General Bliss also gave his opinion on whether there was any good purpose to be served in keeping the American troops any longer in Mexico, but the Commissioners refused to state what that opinion was.

Franklin K. Lane, Chairman of the American delegation, said that no conclusion had been reached as yet whether the Pershing expedition should be withdrawn or what form of border protection was the best.

The Mexican Commissioners have not indicated that they consider the border question extremely urgent, and no pressure to hasten its settlement has been put upon them by First Chief Carranza. At the suggestion of the American Commissioners they marked time while the arrival of Major Gen. Bliss was awaited by going into Mexican internal conditions, which became a proper subject of consideration by the joint commission because of their effect on American citizens.

Carranza's Taxes Discussed.

The Carranza decrees imposing a graduated scale of taxes which bore lightly on small properties and heavily on light properties were brought up. The American delegates had before them the protests of a large number of American mining interests, alleging that the taxes on large mines had reached the point of confiscation. The chief objections of the Americans, besides the objection that the levies were heavy, were that the taxes were the same on low-grade properties as on high grade, and had to be paid in exactly the same measure whether a property was being operated or not.

The Mexican Commissioners admitted that a certain amount of injustice was worked in making the tax by acre just as large on low-grade properties as on high-grade properties, but insisted that it had been found too difficult to classify them. The statement of the views of the Mexican Commissioners was as follows:

"They pointed out that one of the main purposes which the Carranza Government had in view was to prevent the speculative and unproductive monopolization of mining lands by individuals and companies. With this end in view, the Carranza Government has practically reversed the system which was in operation during the Diaz régime.

"Under the Diaz plan the rate of taxation on mining claims diminished in direct ratio to the number of claims, whereas under the Carranza plan the purpose is to encourage the staking of a comparatively small number of the claims which will be actually operated and to discourage the holding of large tracts of mining land which are simply being held for speculative purposes. In discussing the question of taxes on mineral production the Mexican members pointed out that while there had been considerable increase in taxation, this increase was due in part to the fact that under the Diaz régime many mining companies enjoyed exemptions from taxation which would not be justified under present conditions, and that, furthermore, owing to the abnormal conditions at present prevailing in Mexico, it was necessary in order to carry on the work of the Government to fix the rate of taxation somewhat higher than it would be under normal conditions."

Another series of complaints, which were brought up by the American Commissioners, charged that the Carranza Government had compelled merchants and transportation, sometimes under the threat of the death penalty, to accept the nearly worthless Carranza paper money.

Explanation of Mexicans.

"In dealing with these matters the Mexican Commissioners pointed out that in so vast a country it was humanly impossible to guard against all possible abuses, but they laid emphasis on the fact that while such extreme decrees had been issued by subordinate military commanders the national Government has constantly urged moderation upon the State Governors and that they had no record of a single instance in which any of these extreme penalties had been inflicted."

The Joint Commission later will take up numerous complaints of Americans, which have been turned over by the State Department to the effect that the Carranza decrees in many cases are confiscations of the properties of Americans. There are two representatives of large American agricultural interests in Mexico now at the Hotel Griswold, where the commission is meeting. Herbert A. Sibbel of Los Angeles, Cal., a representative of the Richardson Construction Company, in which John Hayes Hammond, Harry Payne Whitney and other wealthy New Yorkers are interested, has arrived with a voluminous statement to submit to the commission in order to prove that the great tract of the company, which has built 400 miles of irrigation canal and has under cultivation 400,000 acres in Sonora, has been subjected to confiscatory taxes. According to Mr. Sibbel, an attempt has been made under the Carranza decrees to collect, in one year, more in taxes than the property could be sold for.

Complaints have been made to the commission that, in addition to other excessive taxes, the Carranzista Government, under the late decrees, adds a punitive impost of 250 per cent. on uncultivated agricultural land. It has been charged that this power to impose a punitive tax has been applied by classifying pasture land and arid land as agricultural, when it appeared that the owner had money and might submit to the extortion rather than have the property confiscated.

Watching the Conference.

Another man watching the proceedings of the Commission with interest is T. E. Gibbon, a Los Angeles railroad builder, who is a large stockholder in the California and Mexico Land and Cattle Company, which owns 800,000 acres in the Imperial Valley, from the Mexican side of the border to the head of the Gulf of California. Mr. Gibbon, who is an old friend of Mr. Lane, has informed him that the most vital questions in relation to Mexico are those of obtaining respect for American lives and property and of finding a way to reestablish Mexican finances so that the enormous claims of damages by foreigners could be met at the end of the European war when the European powers are free to turn their attention to the Mexican question.

Mr. Lane said today that the American commissioners had passed no opinion on the justice or necessity of the Carranza tax decrees, but that it appeared that no American property had yet been forfeited under them.

Alfred [illegible], the financial agent in New York of the Carranza Government, after a conference with Luis Cabrera, stated that the Mexican Government would not ask for a loan until after the adjournment of the present commission and that it was improbable any serious steps would be taken along financial lines until a situation had been developed in Mexico which would warrant American capitalists in placing their money there. He said that there was not the slightest foundation for reports that American capitalists already had been approached.

It was announced that the Mexican Commissioners would make an effort to give the Mexican situation a little publicity in connection with the present conference. A press agent arrived today and it was stated that many phases of the situation which do not come before the commission, but which have a bearing on the conditions in the Southern Republic, would be discussed at opportune times by the commissioners for publication.

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 13.—All mining properties in the State of Guanajuato not in operation by Oct. 1 will be confiscated by the Mexican de facto Government under a recently promulgated decree of the Civil Governor of the State, according to an American mining engineer who reached the border from Guanajuato City today.

ENGINEERS IN RECORD HIKE.

McALLEN, Texas, Sept. 13.—After hiking more than twenty-one miles in less than seven hours, setting a record for the New York Division in the Texas encampments, Company I of the Twenty-second Engineers is back in camp today. Both officers and men say they have made another record in rebuilding a windmill and getting a rusty, disabled engine into running order in less than twenty-two hours' working time, and in constructing a storage tank of 1,800 gallons' capacity for the use of the regiments that will use the artillery field at La Gloria for field firing exercises.

Under orders to leave La Gloria as soon as their work was finished, the engineers began their march at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon after finding a road that cut the distance from La Gloria to Mission to a little more than fifteen miles. While the other hiking regiments had taken a longer route of about twenty miles, the company marched the distance in five hours and twenty minutes. At Mission the command rested for an hour, and then marched six miles to camp in less than two hours.

Of the 103 men in the company only three fell out on the hike. A few miles out of the camp one man sprained his ankle, and Lieutenant A. W. Palmer, in command of the unit, gave his horse to the disabled man and marched along with the men. At Mission another man who had tried to march on for several miles with blisters on his feet was forced to give up. Lieutenant C. E. Bregenzer, second in command, then gave up his horse and took to the road. One other man who was not able to stand the pace had to ride in on a combat wagon.

No mistake was made in the distance traveled, for road measurers were placed on three escort wagons, and the officers carefully noted the marching time, and then compared figures. Officers believe that this record shows that the men now need only to become accustomed to the warm days.

CO-OPERATING WITH PERSHING

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mexico, Sept. 13.—With the troops of General Huerta Vargas posted along the line of the Mexican Central Railway ready to head off any attempt of the Villa troops to escape in that direction, General Cavazos, pushing northeast with his command from Namiquipa, and the American expeditionary force forming the third section of the circle, General Trevino states here that Villa is now in a position from which it will be extremely difficult to escape.

The American expedition has forces at San Buena Ventura and Carmen on the lookout for the bandits. San Buena Ventura is on the main wagon road to the Central Railway and gives the Americans the control of the only easy exit for Villa from his present position into northwest Chihuahua.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 13.—General Pershing sent a message today to General Funston in which he said that no new traces of Villa had been discovered either by his patrols or the Carranzistas. No mention was made of the stationing of American patrols at San Buena Ventura and Carmen, but the fact that the American commander and the Carranzistas had exchanged information was taken here to indicate that they were working together to eliminate the bandit.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 13.—Military authorities here today energetically denied border reports that Villa had a considerable following and was moving toward Namiquipa to engage outposts of American troops stationed near there. The officials declared that Villa's command, after being defeated by General Elisonda's troops at Cienega de Ladrones several days ago, was attempting to escape pursuit by Government forces.

However, General Trevino has ordered sufficient men to check an advance of the bandits in case of their attempting to move northward. General Francisco Gonzalez, Juarez post commander, has sent a strong force to co-operate and intercept the bandits.

The opinion is expressed in military circles here that Villa's efforts to harass Americans at a time when the joint commission is meeting will be a complete failure, and that the proceedings of the conferees will continue without difficulty.

SEEKS RECRUITS AT SEAGIRT.

Officer Would Enlist Militiamen in the Regular Army.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 13.—A lieutenant of the regular army has arrived in the camp of the First and Fourth New Jersey regiments, which have just returned from the border, and will seek to enlist as many men as possible from the two regiments for the regulars.

Although the enlisted men are not expected to join in any great numbers there is a shortage of young officers at present because several second lieutenants are serving with regular regiments on trial with a view of being commissioned in the regular army. Many first lieutenants in the State service are willing to take places as second lieutenants in the regulars, but are barred by the provision that they must not be married.

Guardsman Kills Himself.

McALLEN, Texas, Sept. 13.—Fred E. Bishop, of the First Ambulance Company of the New York Division, accidentally killed himself in the camp of the First Field Artillery yesterday afternoon. He was visiting his cousin, Roy E. Kimble, Quartermaster Sergeant of Battery C, and with a companion went into a tent to see another artilleryman. He began pumping the cartridges from an army pistol when it went off, killing him. Bishop lived in Johnson City, near Binghamton, where his wife and two children are now.

WAR FUND INQUIRY EXONERATES BAYLIS

TO PAY UP SUBSCRIPTIONS

Colonel and Judge Parker Want $4,000 Used for Overhead Charges to be Sent to the Allies.

Dr. Charles T. Baylis of Brooklyn, Director General of the Allies' Hospital Relief Commission, who has been indicted on charges of grand larceny because of his manner of conducting the commission, was exonerated in a report by R. J. Caldwell, a member of the commission, and by C. Walter Randall, made public yesterday.

Dr. Baylis was indicted after it had been alleged that of $8,000 collected by the commission not one cent had been turned over to hospitals of the Allies. The report said:

"We have been unable to find a single instance of malfeasance on the part of Dr. Baylis. He has apparently kept faithful, accurate and detailed reports of all his expenditures and receipts and has accounted for everything that has been received from any source. The fact that literature appealing for funds was sent out advising subscribers that 'you have assurance that every dollar of your donation will be used in meeting their (suffering fellow beings) trying needs; for the expenses of the commission are met from a fund maintained by the members and by special contributions,' does not impress us with any bad faith on Dr. Baylis's part. He has advised us that the expenses of the commission were to be met through the entertainments and benefits which the commission was working on, and we are convinced of his good faith in believing that it would not be necessary to use any part of the donations for operating expenses."

The report shows that the overhead expenses of the commission ate up all of the receipts and left a deficit, which is now about $4,000.

The investigation was instituted by a letter sent on Aug. 18 by Colonel Roosevelt and R. J. Caldwell, members of the commission, to Judge Alton B. Parker, its President, asking for an investigation. A letter signed by Colonel Roosevelt and Judge Parker says this about the report of the investigators:

These reports in our judgment establish that a great injury has been done Dr. Baylis. Nevertheless the fact that attacks upon him have been given wide circulation through the press, followed as they have been by an indictment for larceny, leads us to the conclusion that the usefulness of the commission has been seriously impaired and it should pass out of existence. Therefore, we recommend:

First—That the commission be at once dissolved.

Second—That the several members of the association contribute the moneys necessary (a) to pay off the debts of the commission, and (b) to turn over to the Allies' hospitals the money contributed in response to the letter of the commission dated July 14, 1916, promising that all money received in response to such letter should be turned over to the Allies' hospitals.

The letter, which is addressed to members of the Executive Committee, concludes:

If you agree with us, please apportion the sum required between all the members of the association and request the remittance. We stand ready to do our share.

In reference to the alleged unauthorized use of names by Dr. Baylis, the report says of the case of Henry Clews, who repudiated his being listed as Treasurer of the commission, that Mr. Clews had promised to act as Treasurer if the association was incorporated, and adds: "It may be that Dr. Baylis took too much for granted in anticipating the incorporation of the association, but it does not appear that any deception was practiced on Mr. Clews in the matter."

BABIES MIXED IN HOSPITAL.

Mothers Come to Their Own Through Visit of Mutual Friend.

Richard, 2 years old, son of Mrs. Dora Bel Bianna, 1,380 Smith Street, and Samuel, 2 years old, son of Mrs. Anne Constantina, 663 Fifth Street, North Bergen, N. J., were sent to the infantile paralysis hospital on June 28.

Richard and Samuel were tagged, treated and pronounced cured on Sept. 7. Mrs. Constantina went to the hospital the next day for her baby, but insisted it wasn't her Samuel she received, because Samuel had darker hair. But as the hospital people insisted that it was so, she decided that the paralysis had changed her offspring, and took the baby home.

The next day Mrs. Bianna received a baby. She, too, protested because Richard had lighter hair than the boy turned over to her, but took the child.

"Why, this isn't your baby. This is Mrs. Constantina's baby," said Mrs. Schwartz.

Mrs. Schwartz then went to Mrs. Constantina's home and confirmed her suspicion that the babies had been mixed. With Mrs. Constantina and her baby charge she hastened back to Mrs. Bianna.

Seeks $5,000 on Pavlowa Note.

A suit to collect on a note for $5,000 executed by Anna Pavlowa, the dancer, to herself on Sept. 17, 1915, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by James L. Steuart, executor under the will of Charles Dickinson Stickney, who discounted the note. Mr. Stickney, who was a lawyer, died on March 9 and gave the bulk of his estate of about $100,000 to Mrs. Maud Booth, widow of General Ballington Booth and Commander of the Volunteers of America.

DELAWARE RIVER AGLOW.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—Illuminated by thousands of electric lights and searchlights which played from warships, the Delaware River tonight was the scene of a splendid water pageant. The occasion was a welcome to the delegates of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, who were returning from an excursion to Trenton, Bordentown, and Bristol on the steamship Queen Anne. More than 500 small boats, many power cruisers, yachts, battleships, revenue cutters, and merchant vessels engaged in the demonstration.

On either bank of the river were huge bonfires, electric displays, fireworks, booming cannons, bands, and thousands of persons waving flags and shouting greetings. Preceding the Queen Anne was a destroyer, which acted as a convoy for the vessel. Just before the vessel reached the bridge at [illegible], N. J., she was joined by a fleet of boats from the Delaware River power squadron. These vessels were covered with many colored lights, and so arranged themselves that they formed an inverted V, the two lines extending around the Queen Anne.

The battleships Illinois, Maine, and Alabama and the cruiser Chicago and the revenue cutters Seneca and Onondaga, which were in the harbor to greet the returning delegates, looked as though they were masses of light in the shape of vessels. This ended the second day of the ninth annual convention of the association, which is meeting in this city.

FREIGHT RISE HEARING ENDS

Shippers Oppose Increase by New Haven and Boston and Albany.

Shippers, objecting to the contemplated withdrawal of the proportional and transshipment rates on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads and the Boston & Albany, [illegible] William A. Disque of the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday at a hearing in the Assembly Room of the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building. They said that the proposed change in rates would injure the business of the coastwise [illegible] to Southern ports asserted that if the railroads put into operation the new and higher rates [illegible] their business, [illegible] compelled to raise their rates or go out of business.

F. O. Riske, who appeared for the Boston Wool Trade Association, testified that the proposed higher tariff would affect seriously the trade in Boston. He asserted that [illegible] pounds of Texas wool, which was shipped every year by the coastwise lines, would be affected. [illegible], Traffic Manager of the National Fireworks Manufacturing Company of West Hanover, Mass., said that the higher rates would injure his company. Testimony along similar lines was given by J. H. McCammon, Traffic Manager of the Boston Woven Hose and Rubber Company, and Charles Hoffman, Traffic Manager of the New England Confection Company of Boston. Higher rates, both witnesses declared, would be detrimental to ocean coastwise shipments between New York, Texas, New Orleans, and the Pacific Coast points.

L. H. [illegible], General Freight Agent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and R. Van Ummerson, occupying a similar position with the Boston & Albany Railroad, controverted the testimony of the coastwise steamship representatives. They insisted that the withdrawal of the proportional rates to the steamship companies [illegible] was irrelevant and had no particular bearing on the case. They took the position that the proposed rates [illegible] were reasonable.

The hearing was closed after counsel had been instructed to file briefs within thirty days.

The Germania Importing Company protested the action of the Collector in assessing duty on linoleum imported by the protestants under a contract with the Navy Department. Free entry was claimed under the provision in the Panama Canal act for ship's "equipment." It was shown at the trial that the linoleum was used on naval vessels solely as deck coverings—that is, to cover iron or steel decks in such places where the deck is not exposed to the weather, as in officers' mess rooms, crew's messing spaces and officers' staterooms. Judge Hay, taking into account the testimony and a stipulation filed with the protest, decided that the claim was well taken, the Collector being reversed.

Adverse action was taken by the board on a protest by the Ames-Bonner Company, Cleveland. The merchandise in question was classified by the Collector as imitation horsehair yarn, duty being taken at the rate of 35 cents. The importers claimed that the goods were dutiable by similitude to bristles at the rate of 7 cents per pound or in the alternative at 20 cents a pound as silk not further advanced or manufactured than carded or combed. Judge Howell said the difficulty encountered by the board in the present case was the entire absence of any testimony tending to show how the article is known in the trade of this country, by what process it is manufactured, or of what material it is composed. He added that the examination of the sample put in evidence tended to support the classification of the product as an imitation of horsehair. The protest was accordingly overruled and the Collector affirmed.

Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, won in a contention relating to classification of barrettes composed of black glass made in imitation of jet. The importers claimed entry at 45 per cent. under the act of 1909 as manufactures of glass or paste. Judge Sullivan agreed and reversed the Collector in his assessment of 60 per cent. as jewelry.

The board refused to give relief to Lunham & Moore. They made a protest against the assessment of duty by the Collector on certain oil upon the value stated in the pro formal invoice, claiming that the value stated in the Consular invoice, for the production of which a bond was given, should obtain. It was also claimed by the protestants that the liquidated value was too high, owing to a depreciation of currency in Mexico. It appeared from the papers in the case that the entry was liquidated upon the proclaimed value of the foreign currency, there being no certificate of depreciation filed. Owing to the failure to file such a certificate the board overruled the protest.

Judge Sullivan sustained a protest by the Newark Tortoise Shell Novelty Company, Newark, dealing with the classification of celluloid in sheets, not polished. The Collector assessed 40 per cent. duty on the ground that the product was a finished article within the meaning of the law. The importers claimed that further processes were necessary to put the merchandise on the market and make it a finished product. The testimony supported this claim and the Collector was reversed.

Are Looking for Plaids.

The shortage of colored goods in this market, plaids among them, is giving concern to many buyers. Not all of the anxious ones are jobbers or big retailers, for yesterday representatives of one of the largest mail order houses in the country were combing the Worth Street district for samples, prices and deliveries of plaids.

Platinum Still Going Up.

Platinum is still on the rise in this market. Yesterday it was quoted at $86 an ounce for the medium grade and at $91 an ounce for metal containing 10 per cent. iridium. Iridium by itself was worth $110 an ounce. From present indications it appears that the advance in platinum is due to an actual shortage of the metal, rather than to any hoarding or speculative buying of it.

Vivid Colors Promised.

In dress goods and materials used in the manufacture of women's apparel there is a distinct tendency noted toward more vivid colors. From Paris come reports that the dressmakers there intend to get away from the sombre effects that were brought out soon after the war started. The popularity of sport clothes was ascribed by one coat and suit manufacturer as one of the reasons why colors will become brighter.

Buyers Ask Spring Silk Prices.

Silk buyers seem anxious to get a line on prices for next Spring and, consequently, they are urging orders on the manufacturers. The latter as a rule are holding off until conditions become more settled. At the present time orders are being taken in a steady volume and there are not many style changes to report. Satins are still in favor and there is a tendency toward taffeta warp prints, satin-faced warp prints and faille warp prints for evening wear during the next three months.

Some More "Unearned Increment."

There is a certain bleaching concern not more than a thousand miles from this city that is $96 richer today than it was a week ago, and simply because of forgetfulness on somebody's part. One of the German dye concerns sent this bleachery a twelve-pound sample tin of a certain blue shade before the war, hoping to get an order therefrom. Somehow or other the tin got mislaid. The other day it came to light, and the bleachery, having no use for the color it contained, sold it to a finishing concern at $8 a pound.

Fine Goods Moving Well.

Mill agents representing the higher grade lines of fancy piece goods are fairly well satisfied with the demand they are getting. With the color situation not of the best as regards both quantity and variety, greater difficulty was expected to arise in the marketing of such product. Some few complaints are heard on fugitive colors, but as a whole the clothiers have learned to accept the use of colors that are not of the fastest because they have become convinced that nothing better is to be had. It is a source of wonder to many mill agents how the clothing manufacturers will be able to ask the prices they must for next Spring's merchandise.

Styles and Home Dressmaking.

An accurate idea of just what women will think of high prices for suits during the coming Fall and Winter season has not yet been determined by those who make valuable use of such information. Speaking of the situation, one maker of women's apparel said yesterday that the simplicity of the present styles may induce many women to save money by either making their own clothing or buying the material and turning it over to their dressmakers. "The styles we have now," said he, "permit this more than ever before, and I shouldn't be at all surprised if the combination of a simple fashion and high prices demanded for ready-to-wear would lead women to make up their own clothes."

Plan to Investigate Markets.

The suggestion of Secretary Wry of the National Association of Retail Clothiers made to the convention of that body in Chicago, that the market be well investigated before the buying season, holds quite some interest to the wholesalers. One of them, commenting on the plan yesterday, said that it would prove of benefit to the manufacturers as well as to the retailers. A point he brought out was that, if the clothing buyers were thoroughly acquainted with the condition of the market before making their purchases, cancellations would not be so heavy, and there would not be the great nuumber of revisions that now have to be made by the manufacturers.

No More Fifty-Cent Sweaters.

The cotton sweaters that used to retail at 50 cents will be missing from the stores this year, according to opinions expressed by local knit goods wholesalers. Not only are these goods very scarce at any price, with deliveries anywhere from a couple of weeks to two or three months behind, but sweaters that used to job at $4.50 a dozen are now being held at $8 to $8.50 a dozen. This means that they must be retailed at least at $1 in order to show any real profit. It was said yesterday that 25 dozens of these goods, which had been carried over for several seasons by a certain wholesaler, had recently been snapped up eagerly by a buyer at $6 a dozen, in spite of their age.

Wall Paper Salesmen Are Busy.

Salesmen on the road with the 1917 lines of wall paper report an excellent business. They tell of good buying by jobbers, especially those who did not attend the recent show here, and they are being helped by the fact that the number of small and so-called local jobbers is increasing. More and more of the stores that were formerly devoted entirely, or nearly so, to retail selling are now increasing their stocks and entering the jobbing field. This naturally broadens the outlet of the mills, as does the increased number of journeymen who are going into the paperhanging business on their own account. Through the solicitation of these men, it is said, the consumer demand for wall paper in the less populous towns and sections is showing a definite increase.

Changes in Drug Prices.

Weekly Drug Markets will say today that advances and declines in drugs and chemicals were about evenly divided in the last week. Domestic and Japanese refined camphor and crude glycerine led in importance the articles on which higher prices were quoted. Several varieties of leaves and roots were higher also, with celery seed showing a remarkable rise in values. Crude and refined glycerine sold well for domestic and export account and was higher, while several of the essential oils also went up. Among the items that went down were citric acid and sodium salicylate, the latter in second hands. Mercury was unusually unsteady, having both advanced and declined during the week. It closed at $75 per flask of 75 pounds, a drop of $5.

Neckwear Novelties Numerous.

This is proving to be one of the biggest novelty seasons the women's neckwear trade has seen for some time. Not only is a bewildering array of jabots, fichus and similar effects being offered and taken, but there is a profusion of beautiful collars in embroidered broadcloth, crepe de chine, Georgette, organdies, nets, piques and voiles. Striped collars of silk, with Windsor ties to match, are shown, as are quite a few natty tinsel effects on net grounds. One of the newest things is a collar on the order of a cowl that goes finely with certain types of the new Fall dresses. Many dainty color touches are seen in the various lines, which, among other novel things, include large cape effects trimmed with marabou or fur, to be used either for street or party wear. Collar and cuff sets are also big sellers.

Buying Bleached Goods Instead.

Several of the big jobbers in the Middle West have stopped buying printcloths in the gray and are taking them in the bleached state instead. The reason is that it is cheaper to buy the cloths after they are bleached. Within the last two weeks or so one of the biggest jobbers in the country bought heavily of bleached 39-inch 80 squares at 9 cents a yard, less 3 per cent. for prompt payment. The discount brought the yard cost of the goods down to 8.73 cents, while they sold here yesterday in the gray at 8.75 cents. The bleached goods bought were for Fall delivery, so the buying concern not only gets them more cheaply than in the gray, but also avoids any delay and annoyance that might come up in the bleaching process or in transportation. The rise in gray goods during the last spurt was so rapid that it distanced the resultant advance in the bleached cloths, thus making it cheaper to buy them in the latter state.

Gray Goods Trading Improves.

There was a little more snap to trading in the local gray goods market yesterday, though the aggregate yardage disposed of was not great. In the printcloth end 38½-inch 64-60s supplied the feature. Offerings of these goods from second hands at [illegible] cents were quickly taken up, and during the afternoon bids of that price for fully three times the quantity sold were in the market untouched. The best that can be done at the moment is 6½ cents. Sales of 39-inch 80 squares were made for prompt delivery at 8¾ cents, though rumors persist that some of these goods can be had at 8⅝ cents. For 39-inch 68-72s the mills are asking 7⅞ cents, with few takers. Not much was said about sheetings in different quarters of the trade, but business was done on 30-inch 3.25-yard drills at 8½ cents for November-December delivery, and on 37-inch 2.75-yard drills at 10 cents for October-December shipment. Closing printcloth prices were:

39-inch, 68-72s	*7⅞c	38½-inch, 60-52s	5⅝c

FUR PRICES SHOW DECLINE.

Poor Quality of Skins Offered at Auction Said to be the Cause.

The highest advance over March prices touched by bids made yesterday at the New York fur auction was on Northern wolf, which ran 20 per cent. above what was paid for similar skins at the last sale. There were a number of declines in value, but this was ascribed to the fact that the skins were not of first quality. The absence of bidding from the cloak manufacturers was felt when certain furs used largely by them for trimming were put on sale. Beaver declined 25 per cent. There has been practically no "bidding in" during the auction, it was said, owing to the fact that dealers are satisfied with the prices they were getting.

A Russian sable skin was sold yesterday for $202, and two sea otter skins brought $350 and $550, respectively. The attendance was good up to the close of the day's session.

Prices reckoned in percentages and compared with those of the last sale in March were as follows: Nutria, no change, bear, Northern, 10 per cent. higher; bear, no change; badger, no change; muskrat, Spring, no change; muskrat, Winter, 10 per cent. higher; muskrat, Fall, no change; muskrat tops, 10 per cent. lower; muskrat, black, 20 per cent. higher than in January; lynx, 25 per cent. lower; wildcat, Northern, 20 per cent. lower; wildcat, Southwestern, no change; housecat, black, 30 per cent. lower; housecat, common, no change; ermine, 10 per cent higher; beaver, 30 per cent. higher; Russian sable, no change; civet cat, 20 per cent. lower; American opossum, 35 per cent. lower; wolf, Northern, 20 per cent. higher; wolf, Southwestern, no change.

The auction will be concluded today.

MINE EXPERTS TO ARIZONA.

The Eastern delegation of the American Institute of Mining Engineers will leave this afternoon for the Western meeting of the institute in session in Arizona throughout the week of Sept. 18. The trip will include inspection of practically all the principal mining properties of New Mexico and Arizona.

The New York delegation will be joined at Albany by the New England representatives, and at Chicago and Cleveland the Middle Western members will meet the party. Among the prominent engineers who are taking the trip are L. D. Richetts, Benjamin B. Thayer, William L. Saunders, Sidney J. Jennings, George D. Barron, and Philip N. Moore.

At El Paso the engineers' train will meet a special from Los Angeles bearing the Pacific Coast members.

HEAVY WOOL BUYING.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"Big purchases of territory wool took place during the last week. The total sales of all kinds of wool amounted to 5,600,000 pounds. Some mills are delaying their purchases in the hope that the market may decline, but they are losing sight of the fact that Boston prices are now from 8 to 15 cents lower than those in the primary markets.

"No great change has taken place in the woolen goods market. Sales have been fewer than during the week previous. It is felt that Summer fabric business is to be much larger in the future. The prejudice in favor of darker and heavier men's wear fabrics has been gradually breaking down. In the women's wear market the situation appears somewhat more satisfactory than in the men's wear market.

"The fear of a railroad strike brought about a great deal of activity, inasmuch as buyers asked for shipment of as large quantities of goods as possible by express.

"The cotton goods market is in a particularly strong position. The orders placed recently have been much larger than the possible production. Price advances have been general but, with continued high cotton and the large demand, still further price increases are likely. There is every indication that today's prices will represent very good values inside of a comparatively short time."

London's Wool Auction.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The offerings at the wool auction sales today amounted to 8,780 bales. Greasy clips continued in demand and were firm. New Zealand crossbreds sold at 2s. Tasmanian merinos, 2s 4½d; Victorian, 2s 2½d, and West Australian 2s 3d. Scoureds were irregular.

URGES COST INQUIRIES.

Federal Trade Commissioner Cites Carelessness in Business.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13.—Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, in an address before the Ohio Bankers' Association here today, said:

"The man who does not know his true costs is just the man who prices his goods foolishly, and thereby impairs the business of his sound competitors at the same time that he ruins his own."

He urged that efforts to increase American foreign trade, particularly by establishment of branches of American banks abroad, be made to meet the more efficient and larger scale production of European countries when peace comes.

Nine-tenths of the concerns reporting to the Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Hurley said, did not keep adequate cost systems.

"Since they cannot tell where they are making money and where they are losing it, they cannot tell where to introduce economies," he added. "Out of the 60,000 corporations that report an annual income of $5,000 or over, half do not charge off a single penny for depreciation. They even go on paying taxes to the Government on inflated values and inflated earnings."

The Trade Commission, Mr. Hurley said, had prepared pamphlets describing fundamentals of cost accounting and was prepared to send experts to assist trade associations in adopting sound systems. In conclusion, Mr. Hurley said: "We are permitting our commercial rivals to do our foreign banking for us and to obtain the profits and commercial advantages that naturally result."

Asks Venue Change in Gas Suit.

District Attorney Lewis of Kings County applied yesterday to Supreme Court Justice Cohalan in New York for a change of venue to Kings County in the suit of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company for a writ of mandamus restraining the Public Service Commission and the City and State from suing to collect penalties from the company for failure to comply with the 80-cent gas law. The company contends that the law is unconstitutional, and it is conceded that if it should be held valid and all penalties collected the company would have about $28,000,000 to pay. The Court reserved decision.

Executors Must Notify Collector.

Mark A. Eisner, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third District, called attention yesterday to the fact that among the provisions of the new Inheritance Tax law, which went into effect Sept. 8, was one requiring an executor or administrator within thirty days of taking charge of a decedent's property to give notice that he had done so the Internal Revenue Collector of the district in which the decedent resided at the time of his death.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The stock market yesterday overtopped the high price of last January, and made a new record for the year in the general level of prices. This result was brought about mainly by the rise in the industrials, but with some help from the railroads, a few of which were decidedly strong and most of which showed some net gains. The volume of trading was maintained on the recent large scale. Both in the violence of the movement in some stocks and in the character of the rumors which were circulated in trading circles there was an indication that speculation was being carried on perhaps too impetuously; but yesterday no more than on earlier days of this movement has there been any doubt of the substantial character of the underlying forces.

Industry has been prosperous, and its prosperity is finding reflection in prices. Every week and almost every day bring fresh evidence of business activity. The reviews of the steel trade issued yesterday told a story long familiar, but which has not thereby lost its significance. The chief problem in the industry is to ship goods as fast as they are wanted and those who seek to provide for future needs find it necessary to accept delivery at very distant dates and often to compete with urgent foreign buying. The Iron Age points out the noteworthy fact that congestion has been very little relieved by the addition of about 2,700,000 tons of ingot producing capacity since the beginning of the year.

Wall Street helped to account for the day's strength in the railroad stocks by the suggestion that the chance of Republican victory has increased and that the leaders of that party would be in favor of unification of railroad regulation by substituting single Federal supervision for the present multi-form supervision of State and Nation. The Street may have been inconsistent in this, for it had very lately been worrying over the latest application of Federal regulation, namely, the eight-hour-day law, but it was in a mood to think better of the railroads, and partly for the simple reason that the industrials had improved so much that some improvement in the railroads seemed in course. There is a further reason for the showing which the railroads made yesterday, and that is to be found in the expectation that the forthcoming reports for August will better any showing previously made. The railroads and the industrials thus had a common cause for strength, namely exceptionally large earnings. These would be more effective in shaping the market for railway shares were the roads not handicapped in ways unknown to industrial concerns.

Stock market experience has often shown that no matter how solid may be the foundation upon which a market structure is reared, too great violence of forward movement invites reaction, no matter what the later course of prices may prove to be. In several parts of the list the market yesterday moved in a headlong fashion. In some instances the abruptness of the advances was brought about through the discomfiture of a short interest which had persisted in its position notwithstanding the very strong tendency which the market had lately shown. The elimination of a short interest in this fashion would lessen the strength of the technical position of the market, though it would not affect underlying conditions. Only in isolated instances, however, did short covering seem to offer the chief explanation of the course which prices took.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New Auto Stocks on 'Change.

Followers of the automobile company stocks will find two additions to those on the Stock Exchange when they get down to business this morning, Saxon Motor and Stutz Motor shares having been listed yesterday. The two together will supply 137,000 new shares for investors and speculators to contemplate. One company makes low priced cars and the other has for a number of years been manufacturing cars within the comfortable reach only of persons with sizeable incomes. The balance sheets printed with the listing applications showed that in the five months ended March 31 last the Saxon Company's profits amounted to $707,787, and in the same period the Stutz Company's profits aggregated $267,981. The latter's capital stock is described as "authorized 75,000 shares without nominal or par value declared under the Stock Corporation law of the State of New York at $5 a share," and the former has 60,000 shares of $100 par.

Strength in Railroad Shares.

A fair amount of buying of railroad shares was again in evidence with Union Pacific in the greatest demand. Leading the railroad list, the old Harriman favorite gained 1¼ points on the day after sales of more than 40,000 shares. Fractional gains were made in most of the other standard rails and a great deal of attention was paid to this movement as reflecting opinion on the steps under way to test the eight-hour law and on the popularity of that law as disclosed by the Maine election and other evidences of public opinion. Both of these circumstances have injected new elements of speculation in the railroad issues.

Foreign Selling of Rails.

Speculators are not now so apprehensive of foreign selling of railroad shares. That many more railroad bonds remain to be placed on the New York market or to be used here as collateral for loans is well understood, but the impression is probably well founded that European countries have disposed of most of their railroad stocks. There is nearing completion a third of these compilations of foreign holdings of American railroad securities which have been made under the direction of President Loree of the Delaware and Hudson. Though the figures of the reduction from the last previous compilation are not available, it is known that the amount of the reduction is remarkable. The last previous compilation, as of July 31, 1915, placed the aggregate of railroad securities in foreign hands at $2,223,510,000, of which $488,415,000 were common stocks.

Getting Off at Their Starting Point.

One of the most amusing things about a bull market is the eagerness with which many traders sell out stocks they have held through a long decline, and then kick themselves for not having waited for a profit. The advance of the last few days has enabled many people to get out even on speculative ventures entered into during the last upward movement. There are still a number of issues, such as Baldwin, Midvale, Crucible and others which must move up many points further before those who took stock on the previous advance can retrieve their investment, but the list of involuntary investors is narrowing each day.

Directors Who Own No Stock.

The listing statement of the Stutz Motor Company provides that directors of the company need not be stockholders. Formerly the first requirement of a member of the board was that he should also be a shareholder, on the theory that he could not properly represent other holders unless he himself had an interest in the company through stock ownership. Lately the tendency has been to remove this restriction to enable employes to accept places on boards. In practice the stock requirement never had much effect, since it was always an easy matter for newly elected Directors to qualify by having one share put in their names.

Better Feeling Toward Mexico.

Perhaps from the very fact that the Mexican Commissioners at New London have so far said nothing about arranging a big loan in this country, bankers are beginning to consider possible ways of making an advance. Ten days ago the opinion seemed to be unanimous that nothing short of a straight guarantee from the United States Government would make Mexican promises acceptable. Now leading financiers are disposed to seek other ways of making repayment certain, and some of them say that the Government guarantee, always regarded as impossible to obtain, may be dispensed with if Mexico will consent to the supervision of the expenditure of any sums advanced, and to the collection or supervision of customs. If leading Mexicans show a disposition to call upon outside aid only for the purpose of supplementing efforts made at home, it is not unlikely that a way will be found to provide money in this country.

LONDON MARKET IS QUIET.

American Securities Are Dull and Featureless.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The stock market was quiet, with a good undertone today. Peruvian issues and rubber and industrial shares were firm, but gilt-edged securities and home rails were inclined to ease off under the lead of consols. American securities were dull and featureless.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent rentes, 84 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 92½ centimes. Five per cent loan, [illegible] francs.

GOLD CLOGS ASSAY OFFICE.

$15,000,000 Received This Week to Morgan & Co.'s Account.

An additional $10,000,000 in British gold was taken into the Assay Office yesterday for the account of J. P. Morgan & Co. A shipment of $2,500,000 was received on Monday and one of $2,500,000 on Tuesday, making $15,000,000 so far this week. On the import movement which began early in May total receipts are now $284,500,000.

The Assay Office was so clogged with gold yesterday that no attempt was made to unpack the boxes containing yesterday's receipt of sovereigns.

SHIP STEEL A PROBLEM.

American Mills Will Be Hard Pressed to Supply Demands.

In the steel trade close attention is being paid to the effect which the carrying out of the Government's plan for naval expansion will have on mill capacity. Coming at a time when plate makers are already pressed to the breaking point by the demands of ship builders, it is expected that Government buying will precipitate something of a scramble among private buyers.

"An unusually large tonnage of shipbuilding steel, totaling not less than 200,000 tons," says the Iron Trade Review, "is before the makers, this including the 125,000 to 150,000 tons for the first year's construction of the Government's naval program. The yards working on private contracts are endeavoring to put themselves in a safer position on their needs during the last half of 1917, as they are more apprehensive as to their supply. In fact, it is becoming a question where all the marine steel needed is to come from because of the present sold-up condition of the mills."

Discussing the work at the mills and new additions to steelmaking capacity, The Iron Age says: Producers and consumers of steel are so beset with delivery problems that for the time new transactions are taking a secondary place. The operation of mills is more satisfactory under September conditions, and some headway against accumulated orders should be made in the next six weeks.

The outstanding fact in the present congestion is the small impression made upon it by the year's additions to steelmaking capacity. A canvass shows that about 2,700,000 tons of ingots a year are represented in new open-hearth furnaces started up since Jan. 1 and about 500,000 tons more will be in operation before the close of the year. This is an 8 per cent. increase on the 40,000,000-ton rate of steel production at the beginning of 1916, or less than the normal gain. There is little promise of any pronounced change in the relation of supply and demand from new capacity before the middle of next year, if then.

In commenting on orders for plates and other material, this periodical notes that Japan, with all her recent heavy buying of ship steel in this country, is still in the market for 6,100 tons, while Russia has closed a contract for 13,000 tons of barbed wire.

LACKAWANNA STEEL COMMON PAYS 6 P. C.

First Dividend Since 1913, When 1 Per Cent. Was Paid, and Second in Company's History.

$10,000,000 IS LIQUIDATED

Directors of the Lackawanna Steel Company yesterday declared a dividend of 6 per cent. on the common stock, payable in quarterly installments, the first of 1½ per cent. going to stockholders on Sept. 30.

This is the first dividend declaration since 1913, when 1 per cent. was paid, and the second since the company was formed in 1902. The distribution will make a comparatively small inroad upon the company's earnings, inasmuch as the semi-annual report issued a few weeks ago showed that a net income of $7,298,627, more than three times the amount required for the dividend, was earned in the six months ended June 30.

Almost as gratifying to stockholders as the dividend was the statement issued by the Directors, showing that the company had been able to liquidate its outstanding indebtedness. The statement said:

"The Directors of the Lackawanna Steel Company, being advised that the company had paid off all the moneys borrowed in connection with the redemption on March 31 last of the company's two-year 6 per cent. gold notes, thus completing the payment during the last two years of $10,000,000 face value of funded indebtedness, and that the company was now free of floating indebtedness, and that the privilege of discounting payments for current supplies was being regularly availed of, felt that in view of the large current earnings it was proper to begin distributions to the stockholders."

The Lackawanna was one of the companies which figured last Winter in negotiations intended to lead to a combination of itself with the Cambria Steel Company and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company. The deal fell through when J. Leonard Replogle and associates, who owned a big block of Cambria shares, decided to sell their interest to the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company.

Chicago Wholesalers Comment on Increase in Cash Business.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The leading wholesale merchants of this city assert that the wave of prosperity which began to sweep over the country shortly after the European war started, is placing retail merchants more nearly on a cash basis than ever before. Proof of this statement they say is to be found in the increase in their cash business in the country districts. Collections on credit accounts with country merchants, moreover, have been much more easily made than before and with a smaller percentage of loss. The large crops last year and the high prices are given as causes of the improvement.

In the hardware trade conditions are excellent. "Our cash receipts from the agricultural sections," said F. L. McComber, manager of the Credit Department of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., "have been greater than they were a year ago, and the improvement in collections over those of recent years has been striking. This would indicate that rural sections of the United States, as well as the industrial centres, are in an easy financial condition."

One of the largest wholesale dry goods companies in the country reports a great improvement in the matter of collections and cash business from the country merchant. The credit manager of this house said today:

"Collections have been much better than in many years. The banner year was 1907, and I believe that this Fall will equal if not surpass the record of 1907 in this respect."

BEARS NEAR PANIC IN BALLOONING MARKET

Motors Jumps to 697, Highest Price of Any Stock Since No. Pac. Squeeze of 1901.

The stock market appeared to halt for breath yesterday morning after the speed inspired on the preceding day by the Republican success in Maine, but later there were fireworks of a sort seldom seen since the war market of last year was on the up grade. The issues which were most prominent a year ago—and it was twelve months ago at this time that the boom was approaching its climax—again occupied the centre of attention. It was the thirteenth million-share day since Jan. 1. It was also a sorry day for the bears.

Except for strength in American Smelting and Refining and several specialties, the early trading appeared to be marked by extensive profit taking which caused irregularity of prices. Before noon, however, General Motors had sold at a new high price of 645, and Steel stood up firmly under tremendous selling orders. The transaction in General Motors comprised 200 shares, and later 100 were sold at 697, the highest price ever reached by a stock on the Exchange with the exception of Northern Pacific's abnormal movement up to 1,000 in the corner of May, 1901. It was reported on the board that the buyer of the 200 shares let 100 of them go in the second transaction, making a profit of $5,200 within a little more than an hour.

Bethlehem Steel, too, moved forward while records were being made by General Motors, and there was a fair degree of strength in Crucible Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, and the motor issues. In the last half hour the pace quickened so rapidly that traders who had sold stocks short the day before, expecting to buy them back cheaper when the influence of Maine politics had worn away, hurried in covering orders. There was by no means enough Crucible, Baldwin, and Maxwell Motors to go around, with the result that a close approach to a bear panic was witnessed in the closing fifteen minutes. Crucible and Baldwin were bid up a half point at a time, and the gong rang with brokers vainly trying to buy stock for excited customers who feared that delay would greatly extend their losses. The way the more prominent stocks soared is shown in this table:

	High.	Low.	Net Gain.
Atlantic, G. & W. I.	84⅝	81⅜	3⅛
Baldwin Loco.	86½	81½	5¼
Bethlehem Steel	552½	523	30¼
Crucible Steel	91	85⅝	5⅛
General Motors	697	645	55
Maxwell Motor	88⅝	83⅝	5⅜
Studebaker	130	124⅝	6⅝
U. S. Steel	105⅝	104	⅝

The railroad group gave a good account of itself in the morning, with Reading and Union Pacific selling close to their record prices for 1916 to date, but when the real speculation began the carriers were relegated to the background. The boost given to the quondam "war brides," and the motor issues was sufficient to lift the average quotation for fifty stocks, as set forth in another column for a new high point for the year. The twenty-five industrial issues used in making the compilation rose more than 2 points. The former maximum record was established on Jan. 3, being 91.87 for the fifty issues, compared with 91.91 yesterday.

The market to all intents and purposes was influenced by little outside its own environment. The bears found themselves in a bad situation when the list failed to turn backward under pressure, and the urgency of their need for stocks found reflection in the big gains scored. The turnover was close to 1,250,000 shares.

COTTON MAKES GAIN DESPITE RAIN REPORT

In spite of the fact that the weekly weather report showed favorable conditions, so far as picking and ginning were concerned, the cotton market yesterday experienced a renewal of firmness, with prices working up to a net gain of 20 to 22 points. There was some irregularity, but the undertone indicated less uncertainty. Southern selling was in evidence at times, but new buying for long account, covering by shorts, and trade purchases were sufficient to absorb offerings.

The daily weather news was favorable, inasmuch as scattered beneficial showers fell over the Eastern Belt. Arkansas received beneficial showers, and moisture in fair quantity was reported over practically all of Texas.

The steadiness displayed by the market in the face of the favorable weather and crop news was taken as an indication of its sold-out condition. Liverpool was considerably higher than due, and the local opening was firm at an advance of 14 to 18 points. Liverpool was prominent as a buyer in the first hour. The speculative element, including those who sold out on the rise a week or so ago, also was active on the buying side.

A New Orleans wire says that the Interstate Trust and Banking Company of that city estimates the total crop, including linters, at 12,690,000 bales. Their estimate last year was 12,150,000 bales, which was approximately correct.

The Montgomery Advertiser states that the Alabama crop promises to be about 750,000 bales. The Memphis Commercial-Appeal says that crop conditions are about unchanged from the situation existing about two weeks ago.

The weekly weather report, in addition to noting favorable picking conditions, said there had been some improvement in Oklahoma, and that conditions were well maintained in the Carolinas, although deterioration was indicated in Georgia and Northern Alabama. The weevil was said to be doing damage in Texas.

WHEAT.

The holiday in the Chicago grain market yesterday had a restraining influence on the wheat market in general, and price changes during the day were comparatively narrow. In the Northwest Winnipeg showed a net advance of ½ to ⅝c, while Minneapolis was 1c net higher to ⅜c lower. In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at $1.73; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.66; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.78, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.73, all free on board, New York.

CORN.

The corn market was inactive and irregular in the Southwest, St. Louis and Kansas City being the only markets open. Prices ranged from ⅞c lower to ⅞c net higher. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 96c, cost, insurance and freight, New York. Exporters were said to have taken about 150,000 bushels during the past day or two.

OATS.

Oats were dull and featureless, although Winnipeg showed a slight advance. In the local cash market prices were easier; standard quoted at 51¼@51¾c; No. 3 white, 51@51½c; No. 4 white, 50¼@50¾c; fancy clipped white, 53¼@55¼c; ordinary clipped white, 51¼@53¼c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Provisions were dull and nominal owing to the holiday in Chicago and unchanged hog markets. Cash prices were firm, and there were rumors of export demand. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 21,000, and estimated for today 18,000. Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 4,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was active and strong, with aggressive buying by outside interests. The demand was thought to be based on firmness in the cotton market, and, while the Chicago lard market was closed, the volume of business was of good proportions. Final prices were 28@47 points net higher, and total sales were 35,100 barrels. Range of prices:

Sales were reported of 56,250 bags, including exchanges of December for May at 23 points and for July at 32 points, while March was exchanged for May at 10 points. SUGAR.

An advancing refined and raw sugar market caused a firm market for sugar futures throughout the day, and after opening 11 to 14 points higher the market showed rapid advances, and at one time net gains were 14 to 25 points, with general business very active. Realizing at the close sent prices off from the best points of the day, the close being 9 to 19 points net higher, with total sales at 37,350 tons. A transaction in February covering a lot of 10,000 tons was the record of the Exchange for an individual sale. Range of prices:

All refiners are now accepting orders at 6.40c for fine granulated, although one refiner was listed at 6.60c. Raw sugar was firm at the close at 5.52c for Cuban centrifugals. There was a sale of 22,000 bags Cubas, for store, at 4½c cost and freight basis. Quotations follow: Centrifugals, 5.52c; molasses, 4.75c; cost and freight, 4½c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 15,113 packages. Buyers were more in evidence and the market was fairly active and about ¼c higher on most grades of creamery. EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 16,056 cases. The market maintained a generally firm tone, although the demand for fresh-gathered stock of usual qualities is only moderate. There is a light offering of exceptionally high-grade Western, and demand for these is absorbing the supply promptly at firm prices. Good medium qualities are quite freely offered. Undergrades relatively firm. The greater part of the stock arriving has a value ranging from 30c to 32c. Storage eggs are held with marked confidence, and tone of the market is firm at unchanged prices. Nearby white eggs of uniformly fancy quality are in small supply and firm, with a fair demand; most of the offerings are more or less defective and mixed in quality, and are moving very slowly, with a considerable accumulation. FATHER CASHIN AIDS HIM

Many Are Convinced Death House Inmate Is Not Guilty of Killing Policeman Dapping.

While the electric chair in Sing Sing is being prepared for the execution of Thomas Bambrick tomorrow morning, Alexander Karlin, counsel for the convicted man, will make a final appeal to Governor Whitman today for a further stay of sentence on the ground that he has a new affidavit from a reputable witness that it was not Bambrick who shot Patrolman George Dapping at a picnic of the Thomas J. McManus Association in Manhattan Casino on Sept. 24, 1915. The Governor was at Syracuse yesterday. Mr. Karlin expects to meet him in Albany some time today.

Bambrick was to have been executed on Sept. 1, but on application by Mr. Karlin and others Governor Whitman granted a reprieve to the week of Sept. 11. Not having heard of any order of stay of execution, Warden Thomas Mott Osborne of Sing Sing yesterday issued invitations to the execution of Bambrick Friday morning and ordered the necessary preparations to be made today.

Father Cashin, the Sing Sing Chaplain, who has taken a deep interest in Bambrick's case because he believes there is some doubt of his guilt, came to New York yesterday and, with Mr. Karlin, held a three hours' conference with Assistant District Attorney Dooling, after which Mr. Karlin said he did not believe the District Attorney's office would oppose an application for a further reprieve. There were twelve affidavits presented to Mr. Dooling tending to show that Bambrick did not shoot Patrolman Dapping. One was that of Frank Meehan, now a convict; another affidavit was by Charles S. Sylvander, a bartender, who furnished an alibi for Bambrick. There were affidavits by Bambrick's father and sister as to a story told them by a woman who said she was a witness to the shooting.

Mr. Karlin said that the affidavit in which he placed the most reliance was by a newly discovered witness of the shooting, whose name he would not divulge.

"This man," said Mr. Karlin last night, "saw the shooting and declared that the man who did it was unknown to him, but that it couldn't have been Bambrick, whom he knew. He said that the man who did the shooting was a tall man; Bambrick is a short man. We also have evidence that the table at which Bambrick was said to have been sitting was sixty feet away from Dapping, while it was testified at Bambrick's trial that the policeman was shot in a hand-to-hand encounter.

"The attitude of the District Attorney's office is very fair, and I believe that Judge Swann will not oppose the reprieve if he is convinced the affidavits are dependable."

Commissioner Woods, whose attention was called to the case by Father Cashin, has taken a deep interest in the outcome of Mr. Karlin's efforts.

Bambrick has all along persisted in the declaration of his innocence, but almost on the eve of the day set for his execution he refused last night to say whom he suspected of the shooting or who he was with on the night of the picnic. He did not testify at his trial because he believed his previous criminal record would injure him. He seemed to have believed that the guilty man would confess before his execution.

"I am going to do everything I can to get that reprieve tomorrow," said Mr. Karlin, "because I am very sincere in my belief of the innocence of Bambrick. I realize that I have got to get action by the Governor today and will try my best to get it."

Mr. Karlin is counsel for Warden Osborne in the Grand Jury proceedings being conducted in Washington County into a charge of an alleged conspiracy growing out of the indictment and trial of the Warden a few months ago.

NEW VIEW OF 8-HOUR LAW.

S. P. Dunn Suggests It May Prove a Boomerang to Brotherhoods.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Sept. 13.—Samuel P. Dunn of Chicago, editor of a railroad magazine, who acted in an advisory capacity to the railroad Presidents in the negotiations which preceded the passage of the Adamson act, suggested in a speech here tonight that the eight-hour law might prove a boomerang to the brotherhoods. He asserted that the law fixed an eight-hour payday and not an eight-hour workday.

Mr. Dunn's remarks were addressed to delegates to the convention of the Railway Signal Association.

"This law," said he, "does not limit the number of hours that railway employes may work in a day. It merely limits the number of hours that the railway may require them to work before it pays them a day's wage. In other words, it fixes an eight-hour payday, and not an eight-hour workday.

"It is certain that under this law, if it should be upheld, the railways would have to pay a day's wage for eight hours' work, but it is not equally obvious that the law prohibits them from paying any employe in the train service a day's wage before he has done at least eight hours' work. It says eight hours, no more and no less, shall be the standard. It would appear, therefore, that under this provision, if the railways should pay any employe a day's wage for less than eight hours' work they would violate the law and subject themselves to its pains and penalties."

Many trainmen in passenger service, it is said, receive full pay for less than eight hours' work.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Record Eighth Avenue Lease at Corner of Forty-second Street—Liberty Tower Bought in for $1,800,000—Shearson Home at Greenwich in $275,000 Sale—Mid-Broadway Deal.

An interesting lease near Times Square, which marks the final passing of one of the oldest mercantile houses on Eighth Avenue, was closed yesterday in the leasing by James Duignan from Heyman Vogel of the plot at the southwest corner of Eighth Avenue and Forty-second Street, including 655 and 657 Eighth Avenue and 300 West Forty-second Street.

The plot has a frontage of about 50 feet on the avenue by 55 feet on Forty-second Street, the rear portion having been previously leased to a moving picture theatre builder. That structure, with a 35-foot frontage on Eighth Avenue, adjoining the corner, and a 45-foot frontage on Forty-second Street takes in the rear portion of the immediate corner building formerly used by the Vogel clothing store, occupied for over fifty-seven years by Vogel Brothers.

For this small corner parcel the lessee will pay for the twenty-year term for which it has been taken an aggregate rental of about $325,000, or a little over $16,000 a year, being a record rental value for Eighth Avenue in the vicinity.

Broadway Sale Near 21st Street.

The five-story commercial building at 925 Broadway, 21.4 by 97.5, was reported to have been purchased by the Bradish Johnson Estate from the Richard M. C. Livingston estate, which has held the property for twenty-two years. The Johnson estate owns the adoining building on the northwest corner of Broadway and Twenty-first Street, 44.1 by 115.6, and also the seven-story building abutting on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, 62.4 by 79.6.

$1,800,000 for Liberty Tower Building.

The Garden City Company, of which Allan W. Evarts, of Evarts, Choate & Blaman is President, representing the second mortgage interests, purchased the thirty-one-story office building known as Liberty Tower at the northwest corner of Liberty and Nassau Streets, 82 by 57.9, at auction yesterday, for $1,800,000. Daniel Greenwald was the auctioneer.

The sale was the result of a foreclosure suit brought by the Title Guarantee & Trust Company as Trustee against the Liberty-Nassau Building Company to recover judgments aggregating $724,000. The buying company held a second mortgage bond issue of $550,000. There is a prior mortgage of $1,000,000. The building, which has been in financial straits from its completion in 1910, is now well rented. The mortgages and bond issues were too heavy for the property. The effect of the sale will be to wipe out some of these and the controlling interests expect to put it on a paying basis.

Upper East Side Sale.

A builder has purchased from A. C. Quackenbush the vacant lot, 25 by 100.11, know as 415 East 101st Street. Warren F. Quackenbush negotiated the sale.

Operator Trades Heights Flats.

An investor has purchased from Frederick Brown, operator, 506 West 176th Street, a five-story apartment, on a plot 43.6 by 99.11, located between Amsterdam and Audubon Avenues. In part payment the buyer, who is a client of A. N. Gitterman, gave a plot, 44.6 by 100, on the west side of Marble Hill Avenue, 392.5 feet north of 225th Street. Mr. Brown acquired the 176th Street property only a couple of weeks ago.

The property has been held at $275,000. It was sold for Mr. Shearson by Pease & Elliman. Mr. Snowden intends to occupy the house as his permanent home.

Morris Bravo purchased from the Newport Holding Company, H. P. Dworsky, President, the St. Cloud, a six-story elevator apartment occupying a plot 75 by 100 feet on the northeast corner of 164th Street and Prospect Avenue. WANT ARMOR PLANT ON BREAKER ISLAND

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—An offer to sell Breaker Island, situated in the Hudson River, three miles from Troy, to the Federal Government as a site for the proposed new $11,000,000 armor-plate plant for the United States Navy was submitted today to Secretary Daniels and other members of a special naval committee, who opened hearings in Mr. Daniels's office as a first step toward the selection of the place where the plant is to be established. The Breaker Island offer was one of 115 made by delegations from that many places.

Most of the important large cities of the East and South had committees here urging their advantages. More than 300 representatives of cities were on hand, and they so crowded the office of Secretary Daniels that it was difficult to conduct the hearing in comfort. Chief among the claims urged were those of New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Richmond, Norfolk, Birmingham and Raleigh. Very strong arguments were made in behalf of a number of other cities.

Few naval officers had heard of Breaker Island before today's hearing. After the case had been presented by City Engineer Roach of Troy and ex-Congressman Knight of New York it was agreed, without disparagement to the other claims presented by rival cities, that a novel argument was presented in favor of Breaker Island. It was contended that an armor-plate plant on the island would not have unusual rail and water facilities, but that it would be extremely safe from attack by a foreign enemy.

Secretary Daniels was told that Breaker Island, which covers 175 acres, was 100 miles north of West Point, 150 miles north of New York City, and 100 miles from the naval storehouse on Iona Island, in the Hudson. It was argued that it would also be advantageous to the Government to place the plant on this island because it would be within a mile of the Government's arsenal at Watervliet, that armor manufactured there would not be affected by salt air in the course of manufacture and that it could be shipped down the Hudson for use by the Government and private shipbuilding yards in the East.

Engineer Roach asserted that an armor plant on Breaker Island would be impregnable against attack, as an enemy would have to pass the Palisades of the Hudson or the mountains of northern New York and Vermont to reach it. At the same time, he asserted, the island was on a tidal river and had rail connections with the East over the Boston & Maine, the Rutland, and the Boston & Albany Railroads; with the South and West over the New York Central & West Shore roads, and both North and South by way of the Delaware & Hudson, which tapped the coke, coal and steel regions of Pennsylvania. It was near the eastern terminus of the New York State barge canal and near the southern terminus of the Lake Champlain canal, Secretary Daniels was informed, and had very peculiar advantages of situation on tidewater, 150 miles from the sea.

The various city delegations were heard in the alphabetical order of their States. The cities from which bids were submitted by briefs, correspondence or orally were:

Alabama—Tuscaloosa, Mobile, Birmingham, Gadsden.

Georgia—Savannah.

Husband 100 Years Old, Has Aged Partner Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST MEADOW, L. I., Sept. 13.—John Lubetsky of this place, who says he is 100 years old, had his wife, who is 90, arrested yesterday upon a charge of having slashed him with a knife.

When Lubetsky applied to Justice Walter L. Jones of Hempstead for a warrant the complainant asserted that he and his wife had lived together peaceably during their sixty years of married life, until yesterday, when they had a controversy about some small matter.

Mrs Lubetsky was taken to court and the Judge, in view of her advanced age and the long time she and her husband had lived together, endeavored to patch up the difficulty. But the husband said he meant to press the charge. The aged defendant demanded a jury trial and the case was adjourned until Oct. 27.

THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Brakes Fail to Hold on Steep Hill and Car Overturns.

YONKERS, N. Y., Sept. 13.—While Howard Simon, proprietor of the Clason Point Inn, in the Bronx, was giving three of the guests of the inn an automobile ride through Westchester County this afternoon, the brakes on the car failed to hold while the party was descending the steep hill on Lamartine Avenue here. As the car shot down the hill toward the Hudson River, Simon kept his head and when the auto neared Warburton Avenue he attempted to turn into that street, but the car was traveling so fast that it went into the curb, overturned, and three of the four occupants were thrown to the street. The three men were badly injured and were removed to the hospital, but a woman in the car was not hurt.

With Simon in the car at the time of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Handler and Oscar Hoffman. Hoffman is the most seriously injured and is still in St. John's Hospital, suffering from a probable fracture of the skull. The other two men, after receiving treatment at the hospital were able to go home. The machine was wrecked.

Assistant Secretary of War W. M. Ingraham, who was in Maine, declared that President Wilson was much stronger than his party, and that he would not be surprised to see him carry Maine in November.
